Auto Strike Talks Renewed as Hope For Peace Mounts

Gov. Murphy Speeding Labor Negotiators in 'Desperate Effort.'

2 Proposals Hold Key to Agreement

Dispute to Be Settled by Tonight, Michigan Democrats Hear.

By the Associated Press.

Detroit, Feb. 10.—Gov. Frank Murphy called negotiators in the General Motors strike stalemate together again tonight while reports gained strength that agreement on obstacles to settlement was near.

An authoritative source, demanding anonymity, said the conferees were "making a desperate effort to settle this thing immediately."

An equally reliable source said there was no likelihood of announcing a settlement tonight and that any tangible progress would not be disclosed, even though accomplished tonight, before tomorrow morning.

At Grand Rapids, Edmund C. Shields, Michigan Democratic national committeeman, told his party's State convention tonight that the General Motors strike would be settled by tomorrow night at the latest.

"I am happy to say," Shields said, "that through the courage, patience and tolerance of Gov. Murphy that the General Motors strike will be settled on a basis satisfactory to all concerned many hours before this convention adjourns tomorrow."

The conference was moved to the Hotel Statler after seven fruitless days of conversations in the chambers of Recorder Judge George Murphy, brother of the Governor.

"Brighter Atmosphere."

"I intend to keep the parties in negotiations until we have come to a peaceful and satisfactory settlement," Gov. Murphy said tonight.

His statement was not construed to mean, however, that he planned a meeting such as the 17-hour session at Lansing, Mich., January 15, he added.

"There is a brighter atmosphere of mutual tolerance and good faith and co-operation that cannot help but bring good results."

The key to settlement of the six-week-old strikes was said authoritatively tonight to lie in these proposals:

1. Recognition of the United Automobile orkers of America as collective bargaining agency for its own members, accompanied by

2. Positive guarantees that the corporation will not discriminate against the union.

The conference had been reported deadlocked for several days on the union's "sole bargaining agency" demand.

The new proposals for settlement of the strikes paralyzing every passenger car assembly line in every General Motors division, were understood to be based on the recent agreement which ended the strike of the Federation of Glass Workers, another C. I. O. affiliate, in the Libby-Owens-Ford plants at Toledo.

Flint Mayor Quits Buick.

During the peace conferences here which now have extended for eight days, Sheriff Thomas Wolcott, at Flint, Mich., strike "hot spot," has withheld action on an order for arrest of several hundred sit-down strikers in two Fisher Body plants, and of U. A. W. A. officials charged with violating a circuit court injunction. Similarly, General Motors has delayed asking for an injunction against sit-down strikers who took possession of the Chevrolet motor assembly plant at Flint a week ago Monday.

Mayor Harold E. Bradshaw, of Flint, given virtually dictatorial power in city government in view of the tense situation which brought more than 3,000 Michigan National Guardsmen to preserve order there, said today he had resigned from the sales department of the Buick Motor Car Co., a General Motors division, effective last Monday.

"I consider I should not be employed by that company during the present industrial situation," the mayor said.

Troops Patrol Flint.

Flint, Mich., Feb. 10 (AP).—Tension heightened in strike-ridden Flint tonight as National Guard Field Artillery trucks, bearing mounted guns, patrolled the No. 4 Chevrolet plant, occupied by stay-in strikers.

The normal Infantry Guard, with machine guns and 1-pound field pieces, remained on duty.

The unusual concentration of military strength in the occupied zone apparently was caused by growing resentment among the Chevrolet strikers against what they considered inadequate heat.

Robert C. Travis, United Automobile Workers organizer, said the men had opened the windows as a gesture of protest and that sewer pipes on the ground floor froze. The temperature outside was around 20 degrees above zero.

There were other reports that water pipes also had frozen and that the company had shut off the water supply from a valve outside the plant to prevent damage.

Roy Reuther, another of the strikers' leaders, said feeling inside the plant was "very tense."

Security Bill Passed.

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 10 (AP).—New York's Legislature gave final approval today to a social security program aligning the State behind the Federal act, and sent it to Gov. Lehman for his signature.

Bishop Mouzon Of M. E. Church South Is Dead

Senior Prelate of Group Noted for Attempts at Unity; Foe of Al Smith.

By the Associated Press.

Charlotte, N. C., Feb. 10.—Bishop Edwin Dubose Mouzon, senior bishop of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, died late today.

The 68-year-old churchman was a leading spirit in the movement toward unification of the three major branches of Methodism, and in his latter years saw rapid strides made in that direction.

Bishop Mouzon gained wide attention in 1928 as the result of his strongly pronounced opposition to the candidacy of Alfred E. Smith in the Presidential campaign.

Bishop Mouzon returned to his home here Saturday from a strenuous mission into Florida, Alabama and Mississippi as one of the church officials conducting the "bishops' crusade" in that area. He preached here Sunday—his last sermon.

Bishop Mouzon was a vigorous opponent of the repeal of the eighteenth amendment and of the modification of any of the prohibition laws and it was on this ground, he had said, that he opposed Smith's candidacy in 1928.

A native of Spartanburg, S. C., Bishop Mouzon began preaching in the Texas conference and served pastorates at Austin, Galveston, San Antonio and also at the Central Methodist Church at Kansas City, Mo.

He was elected bishop in 1910.

Immediately after his graduation from Wofford College in 1889, he went to Texas as pastor at Bryan. He remained in Texas about 20 years before becoming a bishop. In his first five years as a bishop he made official visits to missions in Mexico and South America and was a leader in promoting Southern Methodist University and Scarritt College.

Only January 12 the churchman was in this city to attend the Bishops' Crusade, a meeting headed by bishops of the Methodist Church South.

This coming Sunday Bishop Mouzon had planned to preach here in two churches, Francis Asbury and Emery. On Monday he was to speak to M ethodist ministers of the District at a meeting at Mount Vernon Place Church.

Forces Mass For Defense Of Barcelona

Warship ShellsKeyPort; Council of Ministers Issues Decree.

By the Associated Press.

Barcelona (Thursday), Feb. 11.—The Catalan Council of Ministers early today decreed a new mobilization to meet the threat of a Fascist insurgent offensive.

The action followed bombardment of this port by an insurgent warship, believed to signalize the launching of the long-threatened rebel onslaught on autonomous Catalonia, Socialist stronghold.

Civilians took refuge in bomb-proof shelters and all lights were extinguished as shore batteries traded shells with the vessel which kept far out at sea. Few of the insurgent shells registered direct hits on the port.

Command Centralized.

The council called out immediately the classes of 1934 and 1935. It directed the incorporation of all militia in the regular army and placed all armed forces in the region under a single command connected with the central general staff of the republic.

Officials said they could not estimate the number of men affected by the mobilization order.

Other decrees called for the augmentation of fortifications and the employment of all men available for the work; immediate constitution of a superior defense council, and an urgent declaration on the necessity of order in the republic.

Meanwhile, Fascist reports from Madrid declared that desperate Socialist soldiers, striving to reopen the capital's supply route to Valencia, were repulsed by insurgents defending the positions they won yesterday along the highway.

Heavy Losses Reported.

Fascist fliers killed an undetermined number of civilians in a bombing raid on Alcala de Henares, 20 miles northeast of Madrid, while others dropped leaflets on the capital urging surrender.

Government lines in the University City sector, adjoining West Park outside Madrid, withstood artillery and machine gun fire in a rebel attack.

Insurgents advanced to the outskirts of Vaciamadrid, southeast of Madrid on the south side of the Valencia highway, but were prevented by a Socialist barrage from advancing further, according to government reports.

Fascists Push "Mop Up."

Malaga, Feb. 10 (AP).—Malaga's Fascist captors combed the Mediterranean seaboard east of this port and the mountains to the north in an effort tonight to clean out the last vestige of Socialist opposition.

Under ready guns of insurgent troops, commanders reported, "large numbers" of Socialist snipers threw down their weapons in surrender as the "mopping up" was pushed toward Motril, 68 miles away.

Socialist Fighters Spurred.

Valencia, Spain, Feb. 10 (AP).—Spain's Socialist government spread the word today of the fall of the southern seaport of Malaga in an effort to stimulate its soldiers to strong new efforts to crush the Fascist insurgents.

Foreign Minister Julio Alvarez Del Vayo, who has pleaded the Socialist government's case at Geneva, announced he would demand that the League of Nations "place the responsibility for foreign intervention in behalf of the rebels in their attack on Malaga."

4 Bodies Recovered as Plane Is Raised in San Francisco Bay

By the Associated Press.

San Francisco, Feb. 10.—Salvagers hoisted a wrecked skyliner with its dead crew of three from the depths of San Francisco Bay today and diverr groped for the bodies of eight passengers while puzzled officials sought the cause of the spectacular plunge within sight of the destination of the transport.

Coast Guardsmen, using grappling hooks, tonight recovered the broken body of Mark Fontana, millionaire San Francisco food manufacturer, from the muddy bottom of the bay near where the plane crashed. Search for other bodies was discontinued for the night.

The huge, new plane's death dive in fair weather brought to 43 the number of persons killed in Western airplane tragedies since December 15 and intensified official determination to single out and curb the unidentified hazard.

Recovery efforts started with the raising of the 12-ton ship out of 26 feet of water about 3 miles off the Municipal Airport south of the city.

Huge cranes brought the wreckage to the surface, revealing Pilot A. R. "Tommy" Thompson, one of United Airlines' star pilots, crushed ot death in the control seat. The mangled body of Co-polit Joe Cesaro was at Thompson's side.

The roof of the fuselage was torn out, apparently by the impact of the eight passengers striking against it as the big ship struck the water and flopped over on its back with terrific force. Apparently the passengers' bodies had slipped through the gaping roof hole and out into the bay.

Divers worked from two boats, but murky waters and shifting currents made uncertain their search for the plane's victims. Boatmen expressed the belief the bodies might be caught in the mud of the bay bottom unless tides and currents carried them to deep water.

Several investigators, among them Coast Guard Lieut. Comdr. C. C. Paden, expressed the belief Thompson had throttled down his motor too soon, accidentally stalling the plane.

Mattson Case Suspect Used Alias in Note

Post's Red-Haired Girl Friend Now Sought by Police.

By the Associated Press.

Seattle, Feb. 10.—State police said tonight the man held here in connection with the kidnaping of Charles Mattson was arrested at a downtown hotel where he registered as "Tim Donovan," the same first name used in the crudely printed $28,000 ransom note left at the Mattson home by the kidnaper December 27.

Police declined to elaborate further. Federal Bureau of Investigation agents also declined comment.

The prisoner, booked as H. A. Post, 32, seaman, was arrested yesterday. Also known as James G. McDonald, he had been sought since February 5 on "general pickup orders."

Is Former Convict.

The prisoner, a former convict of San Quentin Prison, Calif., has denied knowledge of the kidnaping and death of 10-year-old Charles, whose nude body was found battered January 11 near Everett, Wash.

Chief William Cole of the State patrol, who ordered the man's arrest last night, said Post answered the kidnaper's description perfectly. Many other persons, however, have been arrested for their resemblance to the dark, unshaven man who broke through a French door in the living room of the Dr. W. W. Mattson home at Tacoma and took his son. All others have been released.

Federal agents suddenly started an exhaustive perusal of police bulletins after three of them questioned Post. They declined comment.

State and Tacoma police at American Lake, near Tacoma, sought for questioning a red-headed woman, described by State Patrol Chief Cole as the prisoner's recent companion.

Cole described the prisoner as 5 feet 10½ inches tall, but appearing several inches shorter because of his posture; swarthy complexioned; with high cheek bones, a broken nose and dark brown hair.

Witnesses to Be Called.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation's description of the Mattson abductor includes: About 30 years old; 5 feet 7 or 8 inches tall; 145-165 pounds; swarthy, did not stand erect; dimple in chin; hairy hands, slightly foreign accent, speaks brokenly; appears to be of Southern European extraction.

A Seattle police official said Virginia Chatfield, 15, and Charles Mattson's brother and sister, William, 16, and Muriel, 14, who saw the kidnaper, would confront the prisoner in a police line-up. The families of the children said, however, they knew of no such plans.

Chief Cole said the prisoner was in Tacoma the day of the kidnaping and had been at Bothell, between Seattle and Everett, several days later. He said the man's record included a 5-year term at San Quentin Prison, California, for grand theft.

Comedian Banned For Quip on Radio Over Mrs. Simpson

London (Thursday), Feb. 11 (U.P.). John Rorke, veteran comedian, today was suspended from all British broadcasting studios until March 17 for ad libbing "Yes, Mrs. Simpson" at the end of a radio ditty about sex appeal.

The punishment was announced by the British Broadcasting Co., which apologized profusely at the conclusion of a Tuesday night comedy program when the "slip of the tongue," as Rorke described it, shocked millions of listeners.

Ship Hits Rocks Crew of 26 Saved

Port Orford, Oreg., Feb. 10 (AP).—The entire crew of 26 came ashore via breeches buoy from the storm-wrecked steamer Cottoneva tonight in raging winds and high waves.

The ship, cut loose from the Port Oxford dock a few hours before in a futile attempt to ride out the storm, struck the sands and Coast Guardsmen said it appeared to be a total loss.

Winds trapped the coastwise vessel in rocks near shore and later sent it headlong to the beach.

Pope to Observe Lent As His Health Permits

Vatican City, Feb. 10 (AP).—Pope Pius XI planned tonight to take such part in the observance of the Lenten season as his health would permit.

Cardinal Salotti, visiting the Holy Father for the first time since he was seriously stricken December 5, said he found the Pope somewhat emaciated as a result of his suffering but in excellent spirits and optimistic of further improvement.

House Passes Retirement Bill; Vote on Second Court Change Delayed by Roosevelt's Edict

Senators Called to White House Conference

At a "general discussion" of the President's judiciary program, Senators Carl A. Hatch, Pat McCarran, Matthew M. Neely, James H. Hughes and George McGill heard the Chief Executive amplify his views on his plan to reorganize the U. S. Courts.

White House Queries Postponed Action, Says Sumners.

Senators Called To White House

Group of Five Discuss Proposed Change in High Bench.

By Robert C. Albright.

Intervention by the White House yesterday brought a swift House adjournment following passage of a bill permitting Supreme Court Justices to retired with full pay at 70. Temporary postponement of a vote on an important feature of the President's judiciary message was forced by the move.

The unexpected change of plans was announced by Chairman Hatton W. Sumners of the House Judiciary Committee, who had expected to call up a bill expediting Justice Department action in lower court cases involving constitutionality of Federal laws. Sumners offered no immediate explanation.

It was the second time yesterday President Roosevelt had taken a personal hand in pending judiciary legislation. Earlier, five Senators, most of them undecided on the White House plan for six new justices for the Supreme Court, had been called into conference by the President.

Wants Full Discussion.

President Roosevelt is understood to have assured the group that he is in no great hurry for action on his proposal, that he considered it a most important matter, and one that should have fullest discussion.

He professed to having an open mind on some of the issues himself and informed the Senators that if anyone knew of a better plan, he would be glad to consider it. But on the question of a constitutional amendment, he was said to have remained adamant in opposing this method as too slow.

One Senator facetiously referred to the "dictatorship" charges that are being hurled against the President, and Mr. Roosevelt laughed heartily, protesting that he had no desire to be a "dictator."

Senators said they were not asked to commit themselves on the President's plan, but one of their number, unasked, gave his unqualified indorsement. They were invited to the White House on a phone call from Marvin McIntyre, White House secretary, and each had thought he was invited alone.

In the group were Senators McCarran, of Nevada; Neely, of West Virginia; Hatch, of New Mexico; McGill, of Kansas, and Hughes, of Delaware.

Opposition to expanding the Supreme Court bench meantime continued to gain ground in the Senate. A secret poll conducted by Democrats listed 43 Senators now opposed to the plan, 46 for it, and 7 undecided. The number of Senators who have publicly committed themselves is much smaller, and about divided.

Roll Call Vote.

House approval of a committee bill giving Supreme Court justices voluntary privilege of retiring at 70 after 10 years' service, came on a 315 to 75 roll call vote after two hours' debate.

Voting for the bill were 282 Democrats, 21 Republicans, 8 Progressives and 4 Farmer-Laborites, while 17 Democrats and 58 Republicans voted "No."

Immediately afterward, leaders had planned to bring forward a second committee bill, providing automatic intervention by the Justice Department in cases involving validity of Federal acts, and allowing the Attorney General to appeal directly to the Supreme Court on an adverse lower court decision.

A similar procedural reform had been proposed in the President's judiciary message, and, coupled with the retirement measure, the special legislation had been viewed in some quarters as an adroitly conceived plan, actually having the effect of "splitting" the President's own bill.

Unscheduled adjournment of the House following passage of the first measure, without action on the second, brought a cluster of reporters around Sumners, who said first that "questions" on the Justice Department bill had been raised by Chairman John J. O'Connor, of the House Rules Committee.

When O'Connor denied making any objection, Sumners smilingly told reporters:

"Well, that messes things up, doesn't it? I guess I will have to tell you the truth. The White

Roosevelt Asks 'New Economy' In Great Plains

By William V. Nessly.

President Roosevelt's vast program of comprehensive planning for control and effective utilization of the Nation's natural resources progressed in various quarters yesterday. Along with the developments came also steps to temper the effects of the elements' periodic fury, current and prospective.

The day's activities included these:

The President, transmitting to Congress the report of his Great Plains Drought Committee, called for a "new economy" and a "permanent change" in the farming methods of a great section of the country between the Mississippi River and the Rocky Mountains.

The committee itself recommended acquisition by the Government of millions of acres, the regrassing of plowed land, resettlement of many families, and creation of a continuing agency to consolidate all efforts to combat drought effects.

Asks Speedy Action.

Senators Barkley, Kentucky, and Bulkley, Ohio, introduced a bill to create seven Federal authorities, similar to the Tennessee Valley Authority, to cover the entire United States and plan use of natural resources.

Creation of a $20,000,000 disaster loan fund under the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to make loans to disaster victims even without security was called for in another bill by the two Senators, following talks with relief officials.

President Roosevelt, in his message, said the problem of drought and dust storms is one that "can be solved, but the solution will take time."

"Therefore," he added, "a policy should be determined, a long-run program formulated, and execution begun without delay."

The committee recommended the new Federal agency to work with State, local and private organizations in directing a "program of construction action," in the general area between the Canadian and Mexican borders and the Mississippi River and the Rocky Mountains.

Among steps proposed in the report were:

Federal and State legislation to assure farming methods adaptable to the area.

Purchase of millions of acres of lands by public bodies to prevent misuse and to start reclamation.

Consolidation of local government units.

Appellate Courts' Congestion Unrelated to Ages of Judges

Survey of U. S. Circuit Tribunals Indicates Dockets Generally in Good Condition; Increase in Personnel Asked But Once.

By Franklyn Waltman.

Copyright, 1937, by The Washington Post.

As in the case of the Federal district courts, a survey into the condition of the dockets of the Federal Circuit Court of Appeals and the ages of the judges indicates there is no relationship between increases in pending cases at the end of fiscal years and the age of the judges.

Under the plan which President Roosevelt has proposed to Congress for reorganization of the judiciary he would be able to name only five additional judges to the ten circuit court benches, and he could make an appointment in only one circuit where the court apparently has been falling back in its work.

The other four appointments under the President's plan would have to be made to three circuits—two in one circuit—in which the dockets are reasonably clear of congestion or in which arrears are being reduced. No appointment could be made to the sixth circuit court, which has the largest number of arrears and which Justice Department officials describe as about 1 year behind in its work.

Indeed, there is no evidence in the last five annual reports of the Attorney General to Congress that any serious congestion exists in the circuit courts of appeals. In each of these reports has appeared a statement by the Judicial Conference certifying that the appellate courts were generally well up with their work.

Although in those years the Judicial Conference annually has recommended more Federal district judges for specified districts where congestion existed—with this recommendation generally being ignored until a year ago—this group did not indicate any need for changing the size of any of the circuit benches until last October. Then the conference reported that Circuit Judge Curtis D. Wilbur had laid before it a proposal for two additional judges for the Ninth Circuit, comprising the States of California, Oregon, Nevada, Montana,

House, Senate Get Bill to Aid Nation's Youth

$500,000,000 Fund Asked to Provide Education, Work for 5,000,000.

Another accent was placed on youth yesterday when a bill calling for an immediate appropriation of $500,000,000 to provide employment, education, vocational training and guidance for needy persons between the ages of 16 and 25 was introduced in both Houses of Congress.

Entitled the American youth act, the bill was drawn up by the National Council of the American Youth Congress with the assistance of a number of representative youths throughout the country. It was introduced by Senator Ernest Lundeen, Farmer-Laborite, of Minnesota, and Representatives H. Jerry Voorhis (Democrat), of California, and Maury Maverick (Democrat), of Texas.

The measure is designed to carry out the fundamental principle of the National Youth Administration—that is, to give modern youth its

Press Freedom Peril Denied in Supreme Court

U. S. Lawyers Asserts News Agency Is in National Business Under Labor Act.

By Sidney Olson.

The Government contended yesterday before the Supreme Court that the Wagner Labor Relations Act "in no sense threatens the freedom of the press."

This argument, coupled with the assertion that the Associated Press "is clearly engaged in interstate commerce, which constitutionally may be regulated by Congress," made up the body of the Government defense of the Wagner act, now on trial before the highest court.

Charles Fahy, general counsel for the National Labor Relations Board, and Charles E. Wyzanski, special assistant to the Attorney General, divided 1 hour and 40 minutes of the Governments' allotted 2 hours time.

Ernst Not Heard.

No move was made to grant Morris Ernst, Newspaper Guild attorney, permission to use the remaining 20 minutes for argument. Ernst asked the court for an extra 20 minutes on Tuesday, and was refused, while Solicitor General Stanley Reed stated that the Government needed the entire 2 hours for its argument.

Fahy argued that the NLBR had ordered Morris Watson, former Associated Press employe, reinstated "because of the established fact that he had been discharged because he was active in the American Newspaper Guild." He said that this did not mean that the board had ordered Watson retained by the Associated Press if he had become "biased in his treatment of the news." Watson's discharge, allegedly for union activities, is the basis for this test of the Wagner act's constitutionality.

On this basis Fahy answered charges made the previous day by John W. Davis, former Solicitor

Mexican Catholics in Crusade Against Seizure of Churches

By the Associated Press.

Orizaba, Veracruz State, Mexico, Feb. 10.—Loyal Catholics, resuming possession of this city's 14 churches closed for ten years, launched tonight a Lenten crusade against seizure of religious property and the government's program of Socialistic education.

"Never permit the churches to be closed again," handbills urged the devout who dispatched to State Gov. Miguel Aleman an appeal for freedom of worship.

Small groups of laymen sat on wooden benches within the close-shuttered churches to keep guard, but police and the military apparently intended to take no action.

Crowds estimated at 15,000 persons broke open the buildings yesterday in indignant demonstration after a 14-year-old girl worshiper was killed by police in a raid on a secret mass in a private home Sunday.

Father Flores, who admitted violation of anti-religious laws by conducting the Sunday service, was released from arrest.

Catholic leaders saw hope the government might now pursue a less strenuous policy anent the anti-church laws, in the announcement from Mexico City that President Lazaro Cardenas had issued an amnesty decree clearing court dockets of "political" cases, to permit closer unification of the nation.

House Foregoes Court Vote as Roosevelt Acts

President Calls Senate Group to White House to Consider Plans.

House has raised some questions about the bill. I don't know yet what they are."

Sumners said he was awaiting a note from the White House explaining the "questions" raised.

"Now don't ask me any more questions, or I'll start telling lies again," Sumners laughed.

Silent on Details.

Although Sumners declined to disclose the details of the President's note, in one quarter it was said "technical" questions had been raised by the Administration, concerning the language of the bill. It was pointed out, for example, that the Attorney General might possibly not view some act of Congress as constitutional, but under the bill as now drawn he would have to support its validity anyway.

First House floor denunciation of the President's plan to increase the number of Supreme Court justices rang through the chamber as the House called up the voluntary retirement bill, viewed by some members as a pointed invitation to older justices to retire.

Lamneck Fights Plan.

Representative Arthur P. Lamneck (Democrat), Ohio, said the President's proposals might be forerunners to "a Hitler, a Mussolini or a Stalin government."

"How long will we permit the executive branch of the Government to do our legislating for us?" asked Lamneck. "I hope the time has arrived when we will meet this challenge to the usurping of our powers and duties."

Representative Eugene Cox (Democrat), Georgia, said the plan "constitutes the most terrible threat to our constitutional form of government that has arisen in the entire history of the country."

Cox, chairman of an informal "steering committee" of representatives opposed to the President's plan, said the proposal was "nationalism with a vengeance, and carried into effect would mean the end of States' rights.

"It would upset our whole system of checks and balances, establish executive control over the judiciary and destroy the majesty of the law," said Cox.

Opposed in Kansas.

Resolutions condemning the President's proposals bobbed up in several State legislatures. The Kansas State legislature adopted a concurrent resolution asking Congress to oppose an increase in Supreme Court justices, and the New Hampshire Senate defeated a resolution commending the President's plan.

In Maryland, a resolution opposing the plan was referred to committee. Similar proposals in the Arkansas House, the Pennsylvania Senate and the Delaware House went to committees for study. A condemnatory resolution was defeated in the Indiana House, and the Tennessee House defeated a move for immediate consideration.

In New York, a "League Opposed to Remaking the Supreme Court," comprised of both lawyers and private citizens, was being organized on a national basis to fight the plan.

Celler on Radio.

The ether was filled with radio comment. In an address broadcast here, Representative Emanuel Celler, of New York, a ranking Democrat on the House Judiciary Committee, accused the President of "lack of candor" in his recent pronouncements.

"I followed the President through thick and through thin," said Celler. "However, I cannot follow his leadership here."

Senator Robert J. Bulkley (Democrat), Ohio, said on the radio that "a plan will be worked out which will properly serve the actions of the Supreme Court, keep them within proper constitutional limits." Senator H. Styles Bridges (Republican), New Hampshire, broadcast that "sentiment in this country is strongly apposed" to the plan.

At a press conference, Attorney General Cummings said "the universal informed opinion is that judges should retire at 70," adding that "we lose some good judges and some we will hate to see go, but generally the farewell is not a source of deep regret."

Amendments Defeated.

As the House rushed its Supreme Court retirement bill to passage, all independent amendments went down to defeat, including a specific prohibition against Presidential removal of justices, and an amendment to move the retirement age to 75. Sumners said both were unnecessary.

Opposition to the court retirement bill was based on doubt as to its actual purpose. Republicans who indorsed it professed to see in it a means of stopping the more drastic White House proposals. The scattering which opposed it complained that it would "becloud" the larger issue, and convey the impression to the country that the House approved of the President's other sweeping proposals.

In explaining the bill, Representative Sumners emphasized the need of giving older justices "lighter work" and said his measure would make this possible by permitting justices not only to retire at full pay ($20,000), but to go back into service in the circuits, if asked by the Chief Justice to do so.

Given Other Judges.

He pointed out that the same privileges were extended to judges of the circuit courts of appeal and district court justices in 1919.

Then he told a story of his farmer "daddy" who used to take his older work horses out of the plow and put them to light garden work.

Representative Donald O'Toole (Democrat), of New York, interjected:

"Would it not have been more practical to shoot the horse?"

Sumners replied that "the gentleman would not have thought so if he had been the horse."

Repeatedly, Republicans sought to develop that the bill was an instrument for inviting the older justices to get off the bench.

Representative Charles A. Halleck (Republican), Indiana, asked if it wasn't "a suggestion to any of the members of the Supreme Court that they should retire."

"You can not force them off," replied Sumners.

"I recognize that," said Halleck, "but is it the attitude of the chairman that passage of this bill should not be taken as a suggestion from us that they should retire?"

Replied Sumners:

"I would not presume to suggest to the justices of the Supreme Court what implication should be drawn."

Sumners said he originally introduced the bill two years ago for no other purpose than to extend to the Supreme bench the same privileges other Federal judges possessed.

He said he did it "because some of these gentlemen were getting older, and the Congress had given to all the other members of the Federal judiciary the right to retire (at full pay) instead of resigning.

"Like to Be Judges."

"They like to hold on," he said. "They like to be judges. These district judges like to be judges yet."

On the other side of the Capitol, there was a brief brush on the judiciary issue, when Senator William H. King (Democrat), of Utah, rose to attack a bill by Senator Kenneth McKellar (Democrat), of Tennessee, to deny lower Federal courts the right to enjoin acts of Congress.

King argued that the Constitution conferred on Federal judges their privileges, and if abandonment of this constitutional right could be forced, others would follow. He said he viewed any attempt to restrict the judicial powers of the Supreme Court as a "violation of the Constitution and of every concept of our duty."

Rep. Jenckes Also Voted.

Through a typographical error, The Post failed to record the name of Representative Virginia E. Jenckes (Democrat), of Indiana, as among those voting for the McCormack amendment to the "red rider"

Bill Passed by House Permits Supreme Court Justices to Retire Instead of Resigning Posts.

By Franklyn Waltman

CONTRARY to the popular impression, Supreme Court justices who have reached the age of 70 years, after serving 10 years on the Federal bench, and wish to retire cannot at this time do so without resigning and throwing themselves on the mercy of Congress in respect to their compensation. They do not enjoy the privileges now open to Federal district and circuit court judges.

WALTMAN.

The bill approved yesterday by the House was designed to fill this void. In effect, that measure amends the act of February 25, 1919, to permit Supreme Court justices, who have reached the age of 70 years, to retire—not resign, as they now are forced to do—on full pay for the remainder of their lives. Thus they remain judges, but on an inactive status, and as such it would be unconstitutional for Congress to reduce or in any way diminish their salaries.

It has been the practice when a Supreme Court justice, who has reached the age of 70 after serving 10 years on the bench, resigned to pay his full salary until death. Continuance of this practice and of the salaries of former Supreme Court justices, however, has been subject to the whim of Congress or future circumstances, and his salary is subject to the Federal income tax, which constitutes a diminution of it.

Such was the status of the late Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes when he resigned from the high tribunal in January, 1932. A little more than a year later Congress, in passing the economy act, cut his salary 15 per cent, along with other Federal salaries, except those of the President and the judges. Had Congress wished, it could have denied him all salary.

This recital of facts regarding the retirement of Supreme Court justices raises an interesting question in event of President Roosevelt's present sugar-coated effort to force six members of that tribunal to retire—or enable him to add six members ot the court. Why did not the President a year or two ago throw his influence behind extending the retirement privilege to Supreme Court justices?

Chairman Hatton Sumners, of the House Judiciary Committee, sponsored such a proposal two years ago. At that time it was gossiped about Capitol Hill that if such a proposal were enacted Justices Willis Van Devanter and George Sutherland would have taken advantage of the privilege and retired. Now in face of the President's evident plan to force them off the bench in order that he might pack the court, these two men may find it embarrassing to retire under such pressure.

Just why the President did not make it possible to let these two justices retire, if they wished, gracefully, is somewhat of a mystery. It would have enabled him to name two men of his preference to the tribunal and this would have in all liklihood eliminated the five-to-four adverse decisions which the New Dealers profess to find so obnoxious. Could it be that for the purposes the President has in mind, two new appointments to the Supreme Could would not be enough to assure him of that tribunal's approval? Let it be remembered all nine members of the court voted the NRA act unconstitutional.

Another question arises from the belated effort to extend to Supreme Court justices the same retirement privileges granted to circuit and district judges in the 1919 legislation. Why was the Supreme Court excepted from the 1919 act? There is not a word explaining this in the reports on the bill of the House and Senate Judiciary Committees. It was not made a point during the debate and there is only an indirect reference as a clew.

This clew is found in the remarks of Representative H. J. Steele, who reported the bill on behalf of the Judiciary Committee and opened the House debate on the measure. In order to understand the significance of what Mr. Steele said on that occasion, it is necessary to know something about the bill.

This measure was divided into three parts. The first part increased the salaries of district and circuit judges. Supreme Court salaries were not mentioned because they had been increased in 1911. The bill was designed to relieve the district and circuit judges of the hardship of low salaries and that may be one reason why the Supreme Court was excepted from the retirement provision.

The second part of the bill provided retirement at full pay for district and circuit judges. The third section provided that the President, "if he finds" any incumbent judge beyond 70 years of age "unable to discharge efficiently all the duties of his office by reason of mental or physical disability of a permanent character, may, when necessary for the efficient dispatch of business, appoint by and with the advice and consent of the Senate an additional circuit judge or district judge in the district in which such disabled judge belongs."

In the House the principal controversy took place over this section of the bill. Two years previously, inspired by recommendations of the Attorney General, an effort had been made to authorize the President to name an additional judge "if in his opinion the public good so requires." The House rejected that proposal as transferring to the President authority to unseat judges. Many members of the House regarded that provision as unconstitutional and a fewer number even thought the 1919 proposal quoted above unconstitutional.

Mr. Steele in his opening remarks undertook to defend the constitutionality of the bill.

"Under the Judiciary article of the Constitution," he said, "the power is expressly conferred upon Congress, from time to time, to ordain and establish 'inferior courts.' This bill refers only to circuit courts of appeal and district courts, and they are 'inferior courts' ordained and established by Congress under the Constitutional power.

"The retirement feature of the bill relates only to judges of inferior courts who have held a commission for 10 years, have attained the age of 70 years, whose services are inefficient and who have failed to avail themselves of the law permitting them either to resign or retire."

The clear inference to be drawn from Mr. Steele's words is that if the proposal to name additional judges for aged and inefficent jurists had included the Supreme Court justices it would have been unconstitutional. That may have been the reason why the Supreme Court was specifically excepted from the 1919 act. No question of the constitutionality of what Mr. Roosevelt proposes to do has been raised, but the 1918-19 House debates show that some members of that body on both sides of the aisle entertained doubts of the validity of the measure then pending before them.

Incidentally, the validity of the President's authority to name additional judges under that section never has been tested. As far as is known no appointments were made under that provision. In his message to Congress, the President asserted that "the discretionary and indefinite nature of this legislation has rendered it ineffective" and he added: "No President should be asked to determine the ability or disability of any particular judge."

One of the Administration's talking points for the President's plan is that it was proposed, for circuit and district judges, by Supreme Court Justice James C. McReynolds, when he was Attorney General in 1913. Their real ace in the hole is that the 1919 act, authorizing appointment of additional judges for oldsters found to be disabled, was indorsed by Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes as "eminently wise." At that time he was not on the Supreme Court. But neither the McReynolds proposal nor the measure indorsed by the Chief Justice dealt with the Supreme Court. Perhaps they doubted the constitutionality of such an application.

Press Freedom Peril Denied in Supreme Court

Davis Rebuttal Short.

Davis, who took but 5 minutes in rebuttal yesterday although he had 1 hour and 40 minutes' time remaining from an allotted 2½ hours, said:

"The Constitution does not say that Congress shall pass a law even partially affecting the freedom of the press.

"The Constitution says that the press shall be free.

"This order says that we must take this man back for the purposes and functions and duties of which he was judged incapable.

"Morris Watson may have a heart as pure as Galahad's and be as wise as Solomon, but if he is forced upon us by the law, then our rights are violated.

"You cannot separate the author from the thing he writes. He may come back as a vindicated martyr or be too proud to return to the place of his disaster, but we would be forced to take him, no matter what our opinion of his capacity, impartiality or continued loyalty."

"Met By Immunity."

"Whenever Congress seeks to intervene and impair the freedom of the press," Davis continued, "it may go just so far when it is met by the constitutional immunity of the press and dare not advance a step further."

There were some indications, according to constitutional lawyers present at the session yesterday, that the court may hold the Wagner act constitutional in its application to industries clearly engaged in interstate commerce, such as railways and bus companies, but restrict this ruling to hold the act in applicable to other industries, as manufacturing, or local, companies.

This inference was drawn from the sharp tactics of the court in cutting off arguments by Lawyer Robert Lynch for the Washington, Maryland and Virginia Bus Co., which is also appearing to contest the act's constitutionality. Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes refused to listen to disputes over the evidence presented to the board and the Fourth Circuit Court of Appeals. He pointed out that the law held that the board's findings of facts shall be conclusive if supported by evidence, and noted that the Circuit Court had approved the evidence.

Calls Company Small.

Lynch tried to show that the bus company, accused of discharging 18 employes for union activities, was a small company engaged chiefly in transporting Government employes to and from work here.

In the late afternoon arguments began in the third Wagner act case, that of the Jones & Laughlin Steel Co., fourth largest in the United States, which allegedly discharged 10 employes of its Aliquippa, Pa., plant for union activities.

Solicitor General Stanley Reed and J. Warren Madden, chairman of the National Labor Relations Board, appeared to argue that the discharge of the 10 employes was done with "shockingly flimsy reasons—such as one man of ten years' service who was dismissed because he failed to close a door, and another for forgetting a key."

Attorneys Questioned.

The justices, who did not question either the Government or opposing counsel throughout the Associated Press case, but listened with close attention, questioned Madden and Reed freely in order to secure clear impressions of the case. Justices McReynolds and Sutherland seemed especially anxious to determine whether the dismissed employes were in the manufacturing or transporting sections of the steel company. Mr. Reed said they were in the plant.

The argument on the Associated Press case was begun yesterday by Mr. Wyzanski with the reminder that the Court has held that persons engaged in business over the long-distance telephone are engaged in interstate commerce. He then asserted that the Associated Press is engaged in interstate commerce through the fact that it uses all forms of communication, with leased wires under contract, with Associated Press employes as "punchers" at teletype machines at the terminals of the wire facilities.

Attacks Davis Case.

None of the three contentions made by Mr. Davis "are tenable," said Mr. Wyzanski, referring to the arguments that the Associated Press is not engaged in business for profit; that it is a public service, and that it communicates only with itself.

He said that the Court has held that it is unnecessary to ascertain whether a pecuniary motive is present in order to decide whether a business is engaged in interstate commerce.

He added that the Associated Press communicates not only with itself but with its members, all of whom are engaged in business for profit, with the money contributed to the Associated Press for the service being recouped by the employers through its use in their newspapers.

Tells of Tasks.

He said that Watson, who received messages over the telephone from New Jersey in the course of his work, was "clearly engaged in interstate commerce." He said that a filing editor such as Watson is analagous to a baggage dispatcher, who determines what and how much is to be carried on the line. Comparing the case to that of the Texas-New Orleans vs. The Brotherhood of Railway Employes, favorably decided for the rail workers, he said that men in Watson's job are "much closer to being in interstate commerce than the stenographers the court ruled for" in the cited case.

Insisting that the Wagner act was not intended to fix wages and hours, but to endeavor to secure for employes the "well-recognized right" of collective bargaining and the choice of their own representatives, Wyzanski said:

"It has long been recognized that the right of employes to organize, when denied by employers, is a major cause of industrial strife. Since the passage of the railway labor act, it is noteworthy that in 1935 there was not a single labor dispute in the railroads of the country, and in 1936 but one dispute, that involving less than 30 employes."

Madden, pleading for the board in the Jones & Laughlin case, said:

"I present no apologies for the Wagner act. It is a good law, intended to bring about industrial peace. * * * In the past the Government has been in the penultimate position of acting after a strike begins. Under this act the Government is able to forestall strife."

Bishop Views Court Reform As Death Blow

Manning Says Democracy Faces Grave Crisis in Proposal.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Feb. 10.—Bishop William T. Manning, speaking at Ash Wednesday services at Trinity Church here, declared today that adoption of President Roosevelt's proposals for Federal judiciary reform "would be a death blow to our constitutional democracy and would destroy the very foundation on which our Government rests."

"There can be no democracy, no constitutional Government, without an independent judiciary," said the Episcopal bishop after explaining that to speak fully on the President's proposals "would not be appropriate in this place."

Referring to the situation arisen from the President's recommendations as "a grave crisis * * * which threatens the very structure of our Government," he said: "In my judgment we face one of the most serious situations in our whole history, a situation which involves our religious liberties as well as our civil liberties, for all experience shows that these two stand or fall together."

Editor, 69, Is Whimsical.

Emporia, Kans., Feb. 10 (AP).—William Allen White used his sixty-ninth birthday today as the basis of an editorial in his Emporia Gazette commenting whimsically on President Roosevelt's proposal to reorganize the Supreme Court.

Mr. White wrote in part:

"The writer of these lines is having his sixty-ninth birthday and in 366 days from now he will have to walk out of the Gazette office or President Roosevelt will have the law on him for being 70 and continuing to function in his old job.

"As a principle 70 years is old enough. But old enough for what? For why? We esket, it is too old for some and not old enough for others.

"The nearer we get to the last lap of three score years and ten the more we think maybe there is something wrong with this youth movement of the New Deal."

Landon to Comment Later.

Chicago, Feb. 10 (AP).—Former Gov. Alf M. Landon, of Kansas, said today he probably would make "some comment" on President Roosevelt's proposal to enlarge the Supreme Court at the National Republican Club's Lincoln Day banquet Friday night in New York City.

"The President has proposed an unusual procedure," he said as he paused here between trains en route to New York from Topewa, Kans.

"I have had requests for comment. Certainly it is an issue upon which there should be the freest and widest discussion."

ABOUT GLASSES . . .

SALVINO d'ARMATO
This man was a native of Florence, Italy, and is credited as being the inventor of spectacles. There has been some dispute concerning the fact as to whether Italy or Germany was the first country to introduce spectacles. Both countries were using magnifying glasses for reading about the same time. However, authentic documents now in existence establish d'Armato as the inventor of spectacles during 1285 A. D. The wording on his tombstone is illustrated above. Men and women today owe this man a vote of thanks. Glasses have become one of the most vital assets in human living.

Appeals Court Delay Unallied To Judges' Ages

Washington, Idaho, Arizona, and Alaska and Hawaii.

"In view of this request," the judicial conference reported, "the conference appointed a committee to consider the necessities of the Ninth Circuit, including the question of the practicability and desirability of a change in the territorial division of States among session of the conference."

The President, in his message to Congress asking for authority to name an additional judge to each bench where an incumbent judge is 70 years old and has served 10 years, however, implied there is congestion in the appellate courts. He said that "delays in the determination of appeals" have the effect making lawsuits a luxury and bring about inadequate or unjust settlements.

No Special Study Made.

The question of congestion in the appellate courts is not as easily ascertainable as it is in the case of district courts. The Justice Department has not made any special study of appeals to determine the length of delays in the various appellate courts, as has been done in the case of the district courts and which was detailed in The Washington Post yesterday.

The only method of measuring the condition of dockets in the appellate courts, with the data available at the Justice Department, is to compare the number of pending cases on the dockets at the end of various fiscal years.

These figures show that on June 30, 1932, there were 1,338 cases pending, of which 426 had been argued; on June 30, 1934, there were 1,495 of which 446 had been argued; on June 30, 1935, there were 1,565 of which 491 had been argued and on June 30, 1936, there were 1,513, of which 410 had been argued.

Thus the number of pending cases in the 10 circuit courts on June 30 last was 52 less than a year previous. There were decreases in seven circuits—increases in three. In only one of these three—the second—was there a judge past 70 years of age. Another was the seventh, where the President has permitted two vacancies to exist, one since November, 1935, and the other since last spring.

Increase of 155 Cases.

The increase in the number of cases pending on June 30 between 1932 and 1936 is 155. In six of the circuits there were fewer cases pending on June 30 last than on June 30, 1932. Of the four districts in which the number of spending cases increased between the years 1932 and 1936, one includes chiefly New York State, where the volume of litigation has greatly increased; another is the sixth, which includes Ohio and Michigan; another is the seventh circuit, where the two vacancies have been permitted to exist, and the fourth is the ninth circuit.

The circuit judges who are more than 70 years are Judges George Hutchins Bingham, of the first or New England circuit, who is 72 years old; Julian W. Mack, of the second circuit, who was 70 years old last July; Joseph Buffington, 81 years old, and J. Whitaker Thompson, who is 75 years old, both of the third circuit, and Robert E. Lewis, of the tenth circuit, who will be 80 years old on April 3.

In addition to these judges there are four who will reach their seventieth birthdays later this year. They are Judges J. Warren Davis and Victor B. Woolley, of the Third Circuit; Archibald K. Gardner, of the Eighth Circuit, and Curtis D. Wilbur, of the Ninth Circuit. Judges Gardner and Wilbur, however, will not have served ten years on the Federal bench until May, 1939, and thus, under the President's plan, he could not name additional judges on their account until that time.

Only 25 Cases Pending.

The docket of the First Circuit, where there is one judge over 70 years old, has been kept comparatively free of overhanging cases. On June 30, 1932, there were 29 cases pending. The number of pending cases last June 30 was 25.

In the second or New York circuit the number of pending cases has climbed from 159 on June 30, 1932, to 216 on June 30 last. One of the six judges on that bench is beyond 70 years. In the third circuit there are two judges over 70, including Judge Buffington, the oldest Federal judge in the country, and two judges approaching 70. On June 30, 1932, there were in this court 200 pending cases. A year later this had dropped to 157. On June 30, 1934, the pending cases totaled 197 and a year later had gone up to 267. On June 30 last they had dropped to 183, or less than they were in 1932. This circuit includes New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Delaware and an additional judge last week was named to this bench under an act of Congress passed last June.

In the circuits in which there are no judges now over 70 years old, a comparative table of pending cases over a 5-year period, as of June 30, is as follows:

Circuit.	1932	1936
Fourth	70	48
Fifth	170	139
Sixth	171	261
Seventh	100	194
Eighth	189	177
Ninth	159	206

The Sixth Circuit, with 261 cases pending on June 30 last, of which only 11 had been argued, is said by Justice Department attaches to be about one year behind in its work. It has the largest number of pending cases of any circuit. This circuit comprises Ohio, Michigan, Kentucky and Tennessee. It has four regular judges, including the only woman Federal appellate judge, Florence D. Allen. Judge Mack has been serving temporarily in the circuit in an effort to relieve the congestion.

Aside from Judge Mack, who is regularly assigned to the Second Circuit, none of the judges are over 70 years old. The eldest is 64 years old, two are 60 years old, and one is 52 years old.

In the Tenth Circuit, where Judge Lewis is almost 80 years old, the number of cases pending on the docket on June 30, 1932, was 111. The pending cases on this court docket, as of June 30, have decreased each year until they totaled but 63 on June 30 last.

Thus of the five additional circuit judges which the President could name under his plan, only one is in a district where additional help appears to be needed—the Second, or New York, Circuit. This conclusion parallels the finding published in The Post yesterday that of the 11 Federal district judges which the President could name under his plan, only 4 would be in districts where the Justice Department regards the dockets as congested—and only two of these could be named in the 10 most congested district courts.

In The Post yesterday it was stated that there were 12 Federal district judges over 70 years of age at this time. This total included Judge John C. Pollack, of Kansas, who died last month. His name appeared as an active and living judge on the Federal judiciary roster of the Justice Department, from which the compilation was made.

There are two judges on the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia, who are over 70 years old—Chief Judge George E. Martin, who is 79 years old, and Judge Josiah Alexander Van Orsdel, who is 76 years old. Thus the President under his plan could name two additional judges for the Court of Appeals here. Judge Charles H. Robb will be 70 years old next November.

The District of Columbia Appellate Court had 156 cases pending on June 30 last of which 37 had been argued. This compared with 109 on June 30, 1935, and 117 on June 30, 1934. The number of cases pending in this court on June 30, 1932, totaled 181, and a year later the total was 162. Thus there were 25 fewer caser pending in the Appellate Court here on June 30 last than on the same day of 1932. Six circuit courts had a larger number of cases pending on June 30 than did the Court of Appeals here.

Justice Department officials pointed out an erroneous impression is given when it is stated that the President could name only four judges to District courts where the dockets are congested and that the other 11 judges which he could appoint under his plan would be in districts regarded as current in their business.

As proposed by Attorney General Homer S. Cummings in his letter of last week to the President, it was pointed out, the plan contemplates making the additional judges who may be appointed a "mobile force, available for service in any part of the country at the assignment and direction of the Chief Justice."

Thus, it was contended, while the President would name a judge to the District Court in Maine, where the incumbent is now over 70 years old, the additional judge would stay in his native State, because that District Court has a current docket. This new judge most likely would be assigned to the Southern District of New York, which is 20 months behind in its docket. Since none of the judges in the latter district are over 70 years, the President could not make an additional appointment there.

Cummings May Drop Charges In Justice Van Devanter Case

'Supreme Court Has Enough Troubles,' Declares Attorney General; Deputy Inclined Not to Press Case.

Charges against the improperly licensed duck hunter, Supreme Court Justice Willis VanDevanter, will probably be dropped so far as Attorney General Cummings is concerned on the grounds that "the Supreme Court has enough trouble already."

Justice VanDevanter last December was caught shooting ducks without a Federal stamp on his license at Occoquan, Va., 35 miles down the Potomac, with the Rev. ZeBarney Phillips, rector of Epiphany Church and chaplain of the Senate.

George King, the warden who apprehended the justice, after the President's Supreme Court message last week lightheartedly suggested that VanDevanter be exempted from paying the $1 tax because he was past 70 years of age.

Seemingly in the same mood as the warden, Cummings yesterday told newsmen at a press conference that he had studied a report on the legal infraction. Asked what he intended to do about it, Cummings smilingly replied: "Don't you think the Supreme Court is in enough trouble as it is?"

The justice has been content to plead ignorance of the law as his defense. He confessed he did not know he was expected to buy a Federal stamp but volunteered to get one.

Sportsmen have been bombarding the Biological Survey of the Department of Agriculture with demands that VanDeventer be forced to pay the same penalty as other law violators. Warden King had filed an affidavit asking that charges be pressed. A report was filed by the Department of Agriculture with the Justice Department. Cummings indicated disposition of the matter yesterday with his jesting remark.

Court Reform Proposal 'Evil,' Lowell Asserts

Harvard President-Emeritus Compares Roosevelt, King George III.

Boston, Feb. 10 (AP).—Scoring President Roosevelt's Federal court reform proposal as "an evil practice," President Emeritus A. Lawrence Lowell, of Harvard, tonight recalled the Declaration of Independence indictment of King George III as a ruler who "made judges dependent on his will alone."

"Are we now to return to the claim of the Stuart King that judges should be lions, but lions under the throne?" asked the 80-year-old educator.

An international authority on government and law, he broke a four-year radio silence to charge in a Nation-wide broadcast that the President's Supreme Court message and bill were unsound.

Dissects Roosevelt Points.

In an address that lasted less than 10 minutes, he asserted that the "two principal grounds" upon which the President's message were based would not "hold water if impartially examined."

Describing the language of the message as "general," Dr. Lowell declared:

"Despite that, it conceals from none the fact that it enables the present Administration to appoint six new judges of the Supreme Court who will be expected to produce a majority on constitutional questions favorable to the President."

President Roosevelt's bill to permit appointment of six new Supreme Court justices should those over 70 decline to retire, Dr. Lowell said, "has a double aspect."

One, he declared, was "its relation to present political conditions," and the other, "its permanent effect upon the institutions of the country. For it is not a purely emergency measure to meet a temporary difficulty, but is an enduring statute altering permanently our judicial institutions. As such it must be judged."

"Neither Will Hold Water."

"The two principal grounds on which the bill is based will, neither of them, hold water if impartially examined. One is that the United States courts are at present overburdened; that their work is in arrears and that to perform it properly more judges are required.

"Now, as a matter of fact, save in a few places where additional judges may very well be provided, the Federal courts are not in arrears. They keep well up with their work and do not need an increase in membership.

"As for the Supreme Court, that has long had the habit of clearing its whole docket every year."

2 Legislatures Vote Protest to Court Change

By the Associated Press.

President Roosevelt's proposed reorganization of the Supreme Court encountered both support and opposition yesterday in various State Legislatures.

Twenty-six Minnesota State Representatives introduced a resolution before the House urging the President and Congress to amend the projected judicial reform, contending the new plan "tends toward fascism and dictatorship." Minnesota legislators are elected on a nonparty basis.

Meantime Ohio and Indiana Assemblymen defeated moves to align them with opponents of the proposal, and New York Assemblyman James J. Wadsworth said he was drafting a resolution calling upon Congress to defeat the plan.

Kansas and New Hampshire Legislatures disapproved the reorganization. Resolutions against the proposal were drafted by lawmakers in Massachusetts and Missouri and similar expressions were referred to committees in Pennsylvania and Arkansas.

Sentiment in State legislative halls was first recorded Tuesday, When Maine's Senate and House, Connecticut's House and the Texas Senate opposed the proposal to enlarge the court. On the same day the Colorado House voiced its support of the project and the South Carolina House sent a resolve favoring the reforms to a committee.

The Republican-dominated Kansas House adopted a resolution yesterday asking Congress to reject legislation designed to increase the number of justices. With only one dissenting vote, the New Hampshire Senate defeated a resolution commending the plan.

Indiana's House defeated a resolution condemning the President's plan. Ohio's Senate tabled an expression of opposition, introduced by Republican Senator Verner Metcalf.

Delaware's Democratic-controlled House of Representatives adopted a resolution urging Delaware Congressmen to support the President's recommendation. Earlier the House referred to the committee on rules a resolution of Representative Frank R. Zebley, Republican, calling for opposition to reorganization.

A resolution expressing opposition, presented by Senator G. M. Owlett, who is also Republican national committeeman, was sent to a committee by Pennsylvania's Democrat-controlled Senate.

Resolutions opposing the reorganization were drafted by Democratic Delegate P. H. Dorsey, of the Maryland Legislature, and Republican Speaker H. P. Cahill, of the Massachusetts House. Republican President S. H. Wragg, of the Massachusetts Senate, said he would lend "full support."

The Arkansas House voted, 49 to 20, to send to a committee a resolution "endorsing" the court enlargement.

The Tennessee House postponed until today consideration of a resolution asking the State's Congressional delegation to vote against the proposal.

Amendment Favored.

St. Paul, Feb. 10 (AP).—Twenty-six State Representatives joined as authors of a resolution introduced in the Minnesota House today to memorialize Congress and President Roosevelt to amend the latter's proposal for judicial reform.

Asserting opposition to any proposal to increase the number of Supreme Court justices sufficiently to "change the complexion of the court," the resolution stated the new plan "tends toward fascism and dictatorship."

Neighbor Pact Signed By Soviet and Finland

Moscow, Feb. 10 (AP).—The Soviet Union and the Finnish government signed a "good neighbor" agreement today, concluding conversations between Foreign Minister Rudolph Holsti, of Finland, and Maxim Litvinov, Soviet commissar for foreign affairs.

Justices Are Amused By Secret Message

A brief typewritten message was passed right to left along the bench, from Justice Cardozo to Stone to Sutherland to McReynolds to Chief Justice Hughes to Van Devanter to Brandeis to Butler to Roberts.

Each in turn put on spectacles, read the message, smiled, passed the note on and engaged momentarily in chat with the adjacent Justices.

Newsmen surmised that the note was news of the passage by the House of Representatives of the measure granting full retirement pay to Supreme Court members who retire.

Apartment Employes Extend Strike in N. Y.

New York, Feb. 10 (AP).—Building service employes in 20 Manhattan and 3 Bronx apartment houses went on strike today, depriving tenants of elevator service and, in some cases, heat.

The action was an extension of sporadic strikes which dotted the city last week in the drive of the Building Service Workers International Union for "union wages" and union recognition for elevator operators, janitors and engineers. Buildings affected today included many in Harlem and several in the fashionable upper West Side apartment district. Substitute workers were placed in several.

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. Most people pass about 3 pints a day or about 3 pounds of waste.

Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning shows there may be something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

An excess of acids or poisons in your blood, when due to functional kidney disorders, may be the cause of nagging backache, rheumatic pains, lumbago, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Roosevelt Asks 'New Economy' For Agriculture

Senate Gets Bill for Seven U. S. Project to Plan Use of Natural Resources.

that should be re-grassed, grass land that may be tilled, and grass land that should remain untouched.

Extension of co-operative grazing associations.

Resettlement Suggested.

The report said 24,000,000 acres of land could be acquired by the Federal Government and suggested many farmers now in the plains States might do well by resettling elsewhere.

"The plains can be transformed from a risky adventure and a recurrent liability into a stable basis of economic and social profit to their inhabitants and the whole country," the report said.

The President pointed out that the original settlers in the dry belt brought with them farming practices followed in more humid regions. He said the climate of the area had changed over the years from one of above average rainfall to light rains and long dry spells.

"The whole subject of drought on the great plains," he said, "dovetails into the studies made by the national resources committee in the larger aspect of public works planning."

This committee's report proposing a six-year $5,000,000,000 program of construction, mostly in drainage areas, was sent to Congress a week ago.

Power Development Incidental.

Senators Barkley and Bulkley said powers of the new authorities their bill called for would be similar to those of the TVA, but power development would be incidental to flood control.

The territorial jurisdiction for the various authorities would be:

Great Lakes-Ohio Valley Authority—The area containing the rivers flowing into the Great Lakes, and the Ohio River and its tributaries, except the Tennessee River system.

Missouri Valley Authority—The Missouri River and its tributaries.

Arkansas Valley Authority—The Arkansas River system and all other rivers south of the Missouri River flowing into the Mississippi River and the Gulf of Mexico.

Mississippi Valley Authority—The Mississippi River and its tributaries, except those within the jurisdiction of other authorities.

Colorado Valley Authority—The Colorado River system and all other rivers flowing into the Pacific Ocean south of the Columbia River.

Columbia Valley Authority—The Columbia River system.

"Revised" Flood Plans.

Meanwhile the House flood control committee adopted a resolution calling on the Army engineers for "revised, comprehensive" plans for protection against Ohio and Mississippi Valley floods, in the light of this year's disaster.

Harry L. Hopkins, WPA administrator, said everything possible was being done to aid flood sufferers to rebuild their homes and business establishments. Representative Fred Vinson said the bill for the $20,000,000 loan corporation would be rushed through the House this week and the money will be available immediately. He said the plan was to use a portion of the $80,000,000 appropriated last year for the flood areas of New England and Pennsylvania. Actually only $8,000,000 of that money has been used, he said.

Vinson said the Red Cross already has used $6,000,000 in this year's flood region and is prepared to spend from $12,000,000 to $15,000,000 more.

Hopkins at the same time called all State WPA administrators to meet in Chicago tomorrow, when all phases of WPA work, including a drought program, will be discussed.

Text of the Drought Message

To the Congress of the United States:

I transmit herewith for the information of the Congress, the report of the Great Plains Committee under the title, "The Future of the Great Plains."

The report indicates clearly that the problem of the Great Plains is not merely one of relief of a courageous and energetic people who have been stricken by several years of drought during a period of economic depression. It is much more fundamental than that. Depression and drought have only accentuated a situation which has been long developing. The problem is one of arresting the decline of an agricultural economy not adapted to the climatic conditions because of lack of information and understanding at the time of settlement, and of readjusting that economy in the light of later experience and of scientific information now available.

The settlers of the Plains brought with them agricultural practices developed in the more humid regions from which they came. By historic circumstances the period of settlement was generally one of rainfall above the average, and, although water was known to be scarce, these practices then appeared to be suitable. The long-run experience, however, has disclosed that the rainfall of the area hovers around, and, for considerable periods, falls below the critical point at which it is possible to grow crops by the agricultural methods common to humid regions. A new economy must be developed which is based on the conservation and effective utilization of all water available, especially that which falls as rain and snow; an economy which represents generally a more rational adjustment of the organization of agriculture and cropping plans and methods to natural conditions.

The whole subject of drought on the Great Plains dovetails into the studies made by the National Resources Committee in the larger aspect of public works planning. Previous and current studies of land and water problems have been undertaken on a Nation-wide basis. In this report they have been reworked and applied by the Great Plains Committee in co-operation with other Federal agencies and with State and regional planning agencies as a component part of our desire to develop a program of constructive action for the drought area.

Whatever program is adopted must be co-operative and will require complementary lines of action by the Federal Government, State governments and all the citizens of the region individually. Each has material interests at stake and can no longer afford to defer constructive actipn; each has normal responsibility for unwitting contributions to the causes of the present situation; and especially each has responsibility for undertaking lines of action essential to effectiveness of actuon by the others.

The problem is one that can be solved, but the solution will take time. Therefore a policy should be determined, a long-run program formulated, and execution begun without undue delay.

New Japanese Cabinet Acts To Cut Budget by $75,000,000

Soaring Commodity Prices and Increasing Cost of Living; Slash Accepted by Army After Opposition.

By the Associated Press.

Tokyo (Thursday) Feb. 11.—Alarmed by soaring commodity prices and the high cost of living, Premier Senjuro Hayashi's cabinet today decided on a budget reduction of approximately 8½ per cent.

The cut brought the total estimates down from slightly more than 3,000,000,000 yen ($855,000,000) to approximately 2,770,000,000 yen ($789,450,000).

Finance Minister Toyotaro Yuki effected the reduction by a combination of outright cuts in certain national expenditures and postponement of others.

Even the army and navy, it was understood, were persuaded by the finance minister to accept a moderate reduction after Lieut. Gen. Sugiyama, new war minister, raised strong opposition last night to the move to cut the army's huge budget.

Japan's new finance minister argued that the fighting services might never succeed in carrying out their huge national defense program if commodity prices continued to soar.

2 Draw 15 to 20 Years In $125,000 Gem Theft

Worcester, Mass., Feb. 10 (AP).—Samuel Linden, of Boston, and Joseph Bellina, of Newark, N. J., were convicted of robbery of jewelry from the home of William J. Kennedy and were sentenced to 15 to 20 years in State prison in superior court here today.

Jewels valued at $125,000 were stolen from the Southboro home of Kennedy, Boston clothing store owner, by four armed and masked men last November 20. The robbers bound Mrs. Kennedy and a maid after they had forced them to turn over the gems. Nearly all the loot has been recovered. Both Linden and Bellina are paroled convicts.

Man Held in $100,000 Money Machine Fraud

New York, Feb. 10 (AP).—A police magistrate ordered Max Renner, 45-year-old Brooklyn man, held without bail on a fugitive charge today while police searched for several other men sought in connection with a $100,000 "money machine" swindle of a Chicago laundry owner.

Renner was arrested by an alert detective who spotted him from a street car. Chicago officials said Benjamin Fishbain, wealthy laundry operator, had identified the prisoner from a photograph as one of the men to whom he surrendered $100,000 for a machine which they promised would turn $1 bills into $1,000 bills.

rightful chance in a changing world—by a new method. The bill calls for the construction of hospitals, playgrounds, recreation centers, schools and parks and the establishment of flood control, soil conservation and slum clearance projects providing jobs for all persons between 16 and 25 who are unable to find employment in private industry. It would also provide vocational training and Federal scholarships for all high school students who would be unable to continue their studies without such aid. The measure would, furthermore, continue and expand for needy college students, the academic work projects now being conducted by the National Youth Administration.

Young Age Security.

Discussing the American youth act shortly after he had introduced the bill in the upper house of Congress, Senator Lundeen said "something must be done in behalf of the 5,000,000 young people who are out of work and out of school today. The bill proposes to provide "young age security"; to give modern youth some of the opportunities to work and to gain an education that young people in other times have enjoyed.

Senator Lundeen said further that he considered the bill a sort of "homestead act of 1937," opening up new frontiers in the form of Federal scholarships, public work projects and vocational guidance and training. "We who are introducing the American youth act do so at the request of the young people themselves," he continued. "We have pledged ourselves to leave no stone unturned to obtain for them the opportunities their national heritage owes them. The act must be passed so that every American youth will have a chance to be educated and a chance for employment."

Representative Voorhis pointed out that one of the main tasks facing the American people today "is to keep American youth in school. The youth act aims primarily to accomplish this task," he said. With 10 years' experience as head of a school for underprivileged and orphaned boys, Mr. Voorhis is convinced that under present conditions "modern youth does not have the educational opportunities that it deserves. I know of a number of boys who could not be attending school today but for the help now being given them by the National Youth Administration," he said. The proposed bill would do much to help toward the continuing of our time-honored tradition of equal educational opportunity for all."

To Help Idle Youth.

Explaining why he had a part in introducing the American youth act, Representative Maverick said: "If we are to do way with the problem of permanent unemployment, we must set up such a system of public work projects and Federal scholarships as the American youth act provides. I believe that this measure provides a reasonable way for the Federal Government to face the issue of 5,000,000 young people unemployed and out of school."

The proposed youth administration would consist of a national board of directors of nine members appointed by the President. Three members would represent labor, three would represent education and three, social service groups. The President, with the consent of the board, would appoint one of the nine to be national youth administrator. Regional boards and administrators would be designated on a similar basis for the various sections of the country. Under the bill, all apprentice work would be arranged according to the rules prescribed by local trade unions for such work.

The bill would provide that in order to be eligible for assistance under the act, an applicant would have to devote four hours each week to school work, even if he had already been out of school for some time, and that all applicants for jobs on public work projects would be required to register with the United States Employment Service, in order to keep them constantly in touch with possible openings in private industry.

Terming the American youth act "the best solution for the problems of modern youth," Abbott Simon, national legislative director and head of the Washington office of the American Youth Congress, emphasized that the bill would provide an expansion of the program carried out by the NYA "in order to meet more adequately the needs of 5,000,000 young men and women between 16 and 25 who are out of work and out of school."

Max Fischer, former treasurer of Woodward & Lothrop, left an estate valued at more than $400,000, it was shown yesterday when his will was filed for probate in District Court.

About $400,000 of the estate was made up of personal property consisting of stocks, bonds, securities and cash, and the remainder was made up of real estate located at 1744 Lanier place northwest. The assessed valuation of the real estate was $13,441.

Two sons, Stanley H. and Norman Fischer, were excluded from the will with the observation that each had been given $120,000. Two other sons, Melville B. and Aubrey D. Fischer, and a daughter, Helen F. Silverstein, were given the estate in one-third shares. The sons' share is to be held in trust for them, while the portion assigned to the daughter is an outright grant.

Policeman, Student Die In Venezuela Rioting

Caracas, Venezuela, Feb. 10 (AP).—Police arrested between 200 and 300 students today to break up rioting between two factions at Caracas University in which a policeman and a student were killed.

Mounted police and troops were stationed around police headquarters. Several persons were wounded by bullets and knives in the fighting between rightest and leftist students within the grounds of the university.

Fruit Growers Score Proposed Rail Rate Boost

W. Va. Horticulturists Lash Increase; Martinsburg Meeting Ends Today.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Feb. 10.—Proposals by railroads to increase rates on fruit in classifications affecting this section drew sharp resistance from the West Virginia Horticulture Society at its session this afternoon, which directed that the matter be referred to its rate committee for prompt action and that each grower write the railroad on which he loads, protesting any such increase.

The society will close its forty-fourth annual two-day meeting tomorrow afternoon. The only business to be considered, aside from informal discussion of production and marketing problems of common interest, is the matter of resolutions to be submitted at the close of the day.

500 Attend.

Nearly 500 growers from the four-State producing belt of Virginia, West Virginia, Maryland and Pennsylvania attended the sessions today, one of the largest attendances the society ever has had.

Virginia and West Virginia pathologists were heard in the morning, and in the afternoon Frank H. Wissler, Mount Jackson, Va., president-elect of the Virginia Horticulture Society, told the growers he was convinced by experience that irrigation increases apple production in count, weight and measure. Dr. L. P. Batjer, of the United States Department of Agriculture, reported approval of the use of nitrogen as a means of holding orchard moisture in the soil if not carried so as to leave an alkaline residue.

Representative Randolph Speaker.

Dr. F. R. Cullinan, senior pomologist of the U. S. D. A., said a survey showed peach growers are trying to find a type to take the place of the Elberta, one of the more popular varieties, but which is handicapped by its tender nature. The quest, he said, so far has not been fully successful, although some types are promising. He reported a sharp reduction in the acreage planted to peaches between 1930 and 1935.

The fruit men dropped their business cares last night for a banquet at which Congressman Jennings Randolph, of this Second West Virginia District, was one of the principal speakers.

Distinguished Briton Dies.

Batista's Regime Meets Opposition

Havana, Cuba, Feb. 10 (U.P.).—Formation of a "democratic parliamentary front" to combat the military dictatorship of Col. Fulgencio Batista, army chief of staff, was announced last night.

The front was organized by 45 members of the chamber of representatives who supported former President Miguel Mariano Gomez in the impeachment proceedings which ousted him from office last December 24, and represents the first open official opposition to Batista's rule.

Blizzard Victim's Body Found Mile From Farm

Carson City, Nev., Feb. 10 (AP).—The body of Earl La Near, 22, who disappeared in a blizzard January 30 in search of aid for his wife and boy, stranded in a snow-stalled automobile, was recovered near here today—only 1 mile from the county poor farm where he could have secured help. Chester Muller, a plumber, found the body in Shallow Clear Creek.

THE BICARBONATE OF SODA HABIT
If You Have Stomach Trouble Due to Excess Acid Soda May Make It Worse
Bicarbonate of Soda is a wolf in sheep's clothing. You think it's helping you—and it does for the moment. But all the while it is making matters worse.
Bicarbonate neutralizes the excess acid that causes heartburn, gassy stomach, belching, sourness, bloating, acid indigestion. THEN it starts neutralizing the NORMAL acid content of the stomach. This normal acid content is essential for good digestion. If it's knocked out of balance—made alkaline—your stomach is knocked out, too.
So lay off Bicarbonate. There's a better, safer way to stomach relief—Cal-Trate Tablets. They neutralize ONLY the EXCESS acid that causes the trouble. Then they harmlessly pass out of the system. Be sure you ask for and get Cal-Trate Tablets—they contain no Bicarbonate of Soda and are not a laxative. Used and recommended by Peoples, and all good druggists. (Adv.)

Citizens Clash Over Proposal On Zoning Act

Estate Executor Opposes Repealing Clause in 16th Street Area.

Echoes from the days when Mrs. John B. Henderson, wealthy dowager of "Henderson Castle" on Meridian Hill, was in command of large property tracts in Washington were heard before the District Zoning Commission yesterday at public hearings on proposals to alter existing zoning regulations.

The former society matron's interest in preserving the city's real estate beauty prompted a stormy exchange of words between George E. Edelin, executor of the Henderson estate, and Maj. George Oakley Totten, prominent local architect.

An exception to present zoning regulations permits construction of 90-foot buildings in certain sections zoned for 60-foot structures. Edelin sought to preserve this ruling for future plans to develop property of the Henderson estate along upper Sixteenth street northwest.

Mr. Totten, on the other hand, vigorously urged the commission to eliminate any provision in present zoning regulations which would permit 90-foot structures—specifically apartment houses — in the upper Sixteenth street area.

Was Restriction Leader.

Mrs. Henderson, who for many years was a leader in efforts to restrict apartment buildings in the vicinity of Meridian Hill and "Henderson Castle," owned property along Sixteenth street from Florida avenue to Lamont street.

Much of yesterday's battle centered around a 90-foot apartment building now being constructed at Sixteenth and Fuller streets northwest.

Insisting that apartments in the section should be limited to 60 feet in height, Maj. Totten said his contentions were supported not only by private home owners, but by foreign embassy officials.

Embassies interested in removal of the 90-foot exception rule from present regulations were the Polish, Cuban, Mexican and Spanish—all along upper Sixteenth street—Maj. Totten said. Mrs. Marshall Field, who owns a residence in the area, also supports the 60-foot limitation, he added.

Other indorsements for Maj. Totten's contentions came from Jesse R. Smith, speaking for the Latter Day Saints, who have erected a monumental church at Sixteenth street and Columbia road, and William Amoroso, attorney representing the Italian Embassy.

Debate Spirited.

Spirited debate was started when Edelin pointed out that Mrs. Henderson had placed no limitation in her will as to the use of her properties after her death. Site of the famous Henderson Castle, he told the commission, is now zoned for a 90-foot building. To reduce the permitted height, he added would damage future use of the property.

Earlier, Totten had indicated he hopes to sell the land for apartment house purposes.

During a heated exchange of words, Edelin declared he had talked with Maj. Totten and that the latter had admitted seeking aid to prevent 90-foot apartments in the area.

"Maj. Totten admitted he was motivated by selfish interests," Edelin asserted.

At this, Maj. Totten jumped to his feet and said:

"I wish to refute that statement. I have no financial interests in this case. Edelin told me the estate had to be liquidated and that he hoped to get as much money out of the property as he could."

Edelin answered:

"That is correct. We must get as much out of these properties as possible."

The present exception to local zoning regulations permits 90-foot buildings in 60-foot zones where streets are 110 feet wide, but reduces allowable lot occupancy 4 per cent for every 5 feet of the building's height above 60 feet.

"Date-on-Bet Girl" Free

In Hopewell, Va., 18-year-old Kathleen Phelps Abernathy, left, released shortly after her second murder trial began yesterday, is kissed by the sister whose husband she killed several months ago. She told the court that she shot her brother-in-law when he invaded her bedroom.

Virginia Frees 'Date on a Bet' Girl in Slaying

By the Associated Press.

Hopewell, Va., Feb. 10.—Mrs. Kathleen Phelps Abernathy, 18, whose past six months have been enlivened by trial for murder, marriage and then imprisonment of her husband, was cleared today of all charges that she shot and killed her brother-in-law, Howard Watkins, after a date with him one night last August.

The comely young defendant, who testified at her first trial that she had a date with Watkins to win a bet from her sister and then shot him when he invaded her bedroom, sat weeping today as Commonwealth's Attorney John Goodman moved to dismiss the charge.

"I think the motion is proper and the case is nol prossed," said Judge M. R. Peterson, who set aside the first trial jury verdict of voluntary manslaughter on the grounds that jurymen ignored his instructions.

Sister in Attendance.

The court ordered City Sergeant A. S. J. Wheeler to free the young woman, who came to the courtroom for the scheduled start of her second trial with her sister, Mrs. Watkins. One hundred spectators watched the brief proceedings, but Defense Attorney Archer Jones was ill and unable to be present.

Since Judge Marshall R. Peterson set aside the first conviction and sentence of five years, the girl acquired a husband, C. P. Abernathy, who was sentenced to two years in prison Monday for forgery.

Love Behind Bars.

Iron bars were no obstacle for Cupid while the two occupied adjoining cells and the two prisoners fell in love. While both were free they wedded, honeymooned on a forged check and now Mrs. Abernathy thinks it's "all a mess."

She has been free on bond pending opening of her case today.

Abernathy, serving a jail term on a worthless check charge, met the girl in the Hopewell Jail, and they were married January 12 in Williamston, N. C.

Last week, Nottoway County officers went to North Carolina to arrest Abernathy on a forgery charge placed by a Blackstone, Va., merchant. He pleaded guilty Monday and was sentenced to two years in prison.

The youthful wife told newsmen she would, if the case against her was dropped today, probably seek a divorce.

Venue Change Plan Dropped In Trader Case

Leibowitz Formally Joins Defense Counsel of Snow Hill Widow.

By the Associated Press.

Snow Hill, Md., Feb. 10.—Samuel Leibowitz, noted criminal lawyer of New York, formally joined today the defense of Mrs. Jeannette B. Trader, held in jail here on charges of slaying her husband.

John L. Sanford, jr., of Berlin, and Godfrey Child, former State's attorney of Pocomoke City, filed formal notice in circuit court of the naming of Leibowitz to the defense counsel. Sanford and Child have been representing Mrs. Trader.

Sanford and child also announced that plans for seeking the removal of Mrs. Trader's trial on a first degree murder indictment to another county have been abandoned.

Sanford gave his approval to a reported move to have Mrs. Trader moved from the Worcester County jail to a hospital until her trial schedule for next month. Leibowitz had been reported as saying in New York that the woman should be placed in a hospital.

Mrs. Trader has complained of illness several times since she was imprisoned last week. Dr. John L. Riley, county physician, said her condition is normal for anyone in such circumstances and does not warrant removal to a hospital.

The defense counsel late today dropped its effort to have the body of Clarence J. Trader exhumed after receiving a promise of a copy of the report on the autopsy.

Trader died of a bullet wound January 14 at the home of his wife, from whom he was separated. Mrs. Trader has told investigators that she heard a shot and found her husband's body in another room. She was indicted last week for the alleged slaying.

Expert Urges Prison Reform For Maryland

Progress Club at College Park Hears Official Tell of Idle Convicts.

Oliver Metzerott, a member of the Maryland commission on prison labor, told the Progress Club at College Park yesterday that 2,000 inmates of the State's three prisons are "absolutely idle" as the result of the Federal law prohibiting sale of prison-made goods in inter-state commerce.

Speaking on the subject, "Idle Hands," Metzerott, a former State Senator, urged support of legislation for prison reform recommended by the commission.

At present, he said, three bills are pending in the Legislature at Annapolis. One provides for a bond issue to finance completion of the Roxbury Prison at Hagerstown, one seeks an appropriation for the purchase of raw material and machinery for the prison manufacture of articles to be used by the State, and the third provides for the classification of prisoners in various occupations.

Metzerott said efforts would be made to secure an additional appropriation for construction of a women's prison adjacent to the Maryland House of Correction at Jessups, Md.

Following his address, the club endorsed the commission's legislative program and directed that a letter be sent to the Prince Georges County delegation requesting their support of the reforms.

The club also backed the report of a committee, headed by Mrs. W. H. Hottel, president, complaining about the operation of a concrete-block factory in the vicinity of the residential area of Colliege Park. The complaint was registered Tuesday with the county commissioners, who referred it to the park and planning commission.

A $430,000 bond issue to finance a school building program in Prince Georges County was asked by a bill introduced yesterday in the State Legislature at Annapolis.

The bill would grant authority to the county commissioners to issue bonds up to $430,000. The major portion of the revenue from the bond issue will be used for increased school facilities in the following places: Central avenue, near Capitol Heights, Md.; Hyattsville, University Park, Landover, Baldensburg, College Park, Berwyn and Marlboro.

M. A. Botts, 67, of Glen Dale, Md., retired Pennsylvania Railroad conductor, was in critical condition at Casualty Hospital last night, his skull fractured by a fall down a flight of stairs at his home earlier in the day.

A cast of 500 students will participate in the University of Maryland's "All-University Night" pageant at College Park, Md., Saturday.

The triple-featured show will include a basketball game between Maryland and V. M. I., demonstration of the various student activities and a boxing match between Maryland and Rutgers University.

The exhibition will be given in the Ritchie Coliseum beginning at 7:30 p. m.

Dr. Levin B. Broughton, chemistry department head and chairman of the athletic committee, is chairman of the committee in charge of arrangements.

Other committee members include Lieut. Col. J. D. Patch, head of the Department of Military Science; Leroy Mackert, Harlan Randall and Geary Eppley, of the faculty, and Jean Barnsley, Tom Birmingham and Mike Lombardo, students.

D. C. Heads Name Leisenring Again

L. M. Leisenring was reappointed by the Commissioners yesterday to a five-year term as president of the board of examiners and registrars of architects. His term expired January 17 and he was recommended for reappointment by Nathan C. Wyeth, municipal architect.

Another reappointment included C. Vaughn Darby to a three-year term as a member of the board of accountancy. His present term expires February 23.

The Commissioners also ratified the recent decision of a condemnation jury for widening and extending Minnesota avenue from Pennsylvania avenue to Randle circle southeast and from D street southeast to Benning road northeast.

Police Recover Rep. Martin's Car After Long Chase

After a chase which led them for 10 blocks to the Pennsylvania Railroad tracks at Twelfth and O streets southeast, Policeman Al G. Scripture and R. A. Harris recovered the automobile of Representative John A. Martin, of Colorado, yesterday. The automobile had been stolen earlier in the day.

The officers spied the car, reported missing, at Third street and Virginia avenue southeast. In it, they said, were two youths, who sped away when they noticed the policemen.

When the thieves reached the tracks, they drove the car over the ties, then abandoned it and fled. Both policemen fired at the robbers as they ran.

Fairfax County Tax Valuation Registers Gain

Total Assessment Passes 17 Million; Doubles in 16 Years.

The assessed valuation of real estate in Fairfax County has nearly doubled in the last 16 years, County Commissioner of Revenue James U. Kincheloe told the February meeting of the County Chamber of Commerce.

The valuation last year was $12,502,227, as compared to $6,608,224 in 1920. The valuation in the county is in excess of $17,000,000, which Commissioner Kincheloe said is not one-third of the actual value of the property.

Kincheloe was one of the three county officials who addressed the chamber Tuesday night in the Fairfax courthouse on the proposed county budget and methods of local taxation. He pointed to the rapid growth in the county, especially in the past year when he made 1,500 real estate transfers. The usual number is between 800 and 900.

Mrs. Elizabeth Chilcott, deputy county treasurer, told of many problems facing the board of supervisors in preparing the budget. She declared that most taxpayers look on taxes as an annual tribute levied against them for owning property, but in the long run, she said, the taxpayers get the benefits.

It was indicated by the deputy treasurer that, if the proposed budget is adopted as it stands, a slight reduction in the county rate may follow.

Citing the rapidly growing school population in the county, County Division Supt. W. T. Woodson said 12 new teachers will be needed next year, entailing an increase in the school budget of $12,132.36. For all school operation purposes a proposed increase of $17,922.36 is in the school budget for the coming year.

The first of the free clinics for indigent residents of Fairfax County will be opened in Falls Church about March 1, according to plans formulated by Dr. Edward Holmes, director of the county health department, as outlined to a representative group of men and women meeting in Madison School. This clinic will serve all outlying communities around Falls Church, from McLean on one side, to Merrifield, Annandale, Bailyes Cross Roads and Seminary.

The clinic will be open one afternoon a week for white persons and one night a week for colored. It will be in charge of local doctors, assisted by one county nurse and two volunteers from the community. Mrs. Lester Powell was appointed to form a committee of volunteers, drawn from outlying communities, as well as Falls Church.

Harry Leigh, of Andrew Chapel, former member of the Fairfax County board of supervisors from Providence District, fell downstairs Wednesday morning and broke his left arm. He is in Providence Hospital.

The Corban Club of Herndon Congregational Church will meet with Mrs. R. S. Crippen today at 2 p. m.

Court Reform Plan Opposed In Arlington

D. A. R. Adopts Resolution Against Roosevelt Proposal.

A resolution unanimously opposing the proposed legislation by President Roosevelt calling for the reorganization of the United States Supreme Court was adopted by Thomas Nelson Page Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, yesterday at its meeting at Clarendon.

Copies of the resolution will be sent to Senators Carter Glass and Harry Flood Byrd and to Representative Howard W. Smith.

Petitions, addressed to Senator Carter Glass urging his unqualified opposition to the bill now before the Senate having for its object certain changes in the organization and personnel of the Federal judiciary, were being circulated among officials at the Arlington County Courthouse yesterday.

The petition was drafted by C. P. Ryland, member of the county bar association.

Meeting demands for increased service, the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. of Virginia has started installation of new cables extending from the Clarendon exchange to Lee highway along Glebe road.

Work of laying the conduits from North Quincy street along North Washington boulevard to Glebe road and thence along Glebe road to the Lee highway is now being done by DeLashmutt Bros.

Attention has been called to all persons or firms carrying on a dry cleaning business in Virginia that, according to recent acts of the Virginia General Assembly, a license must be obtained from the Commission of Revenue. In addition all wagons making collections of garments to be cleaned must carry the required license tag and the drivers identification cards.

The law, it was pointed out, applies not only to resident firms but also to those outside who come into the State to solicit business.

Arlington Council, No. 32, Daughters of America, will sponsor a valentine dance Monday night in the Odd Fellows Hall at Clarendon.

The Amanda Livingstone Circle of the Mount Olivet Methodist Church, at Ballston, will present the Wigs and Ques Dramatic Club of Washington in "Eyes of Love" at the church tomorrow night at 8 o'clock.

Boy Scout Troop No. 103 will hold its fourth annual banquet tomorrow night at 6:30 o'clock in the Community Methodist Church, Aurora Heights.

Is Your Name Here?

BELOW is a list of surnames of some of the most distinguished American families. Our research staff, over a period of years, has completed preparation of manuscripts dealing with the history of each of these families. If your name is listed, you should have a copy of your manuscript. You will find it not only of keen interest, but a source of pride and satisfaction to yourself and your kin.

YOUR FAMILY HISTORY — $2.00

Each manuscript is a GENEALOGICAL and HISTORICAL sketch of the family from earliest times, showing its origin and growth, its place among the gentry in Great Britain or on the Continent, its part in the founding and development of America, and its achievements in this country. The derivation of the name itself is traced; family traits and characteristics are brought out; and genealogical data are set forth. Each history is a separate and distinct work painstakingly compiled from the most authentic sources. Bound as it is in an attractive cover, the manuscript may be filed among your family records or other important documents. It should serve as background material for your immediate family history and as a basis for the genealogy of future generations. Free, with each order, will also be sent a copy of "The Romance of Coats of Arms"—an illustrated booklet of special value to those interested in this fascinating subject.

The following is our latest revised list. The coupon, with $2.00 (no other charge), will bring you your manuscript by return mail. Satisfaction is assured by our unconditional money-back guaranty. Any two manuscripts may be had for $3.75; any three for $5.00. Send for yours today. MEDIA RESEARCH BUREAU, Dept. 481, 1110 F St., Washington, D.C.

A Coat of Arms for any family listed here can be accurately hand-painted in vivid colors by our heraldic experts for only $9.50. The size is 11 x 14 inches, and six days should be allowed for completion.

MEDIA RESEARCH BUREAU, Dept. P.W.

Fidelity Report By Bank Board Nearly Ready

Decision on Reopening or Liquidation Expected Within 2 Weeks.

Report of the examiners of the Fidelity Building & Loan Association will be finished this week, the Federal Home Loan Bank board announced yesterday.

This means a decision on whether the association is to reopen its doors or be liquidated may be forthcoming within a fortnight. The examiners' reports first must be approved by the board, then submitted to the Comptroller of the Treasury.

If the comptroller, J. F. T. O'Connor, approves the recommendations of the bank board, the next step would be a poll of shareholders as to their wishes. Subsequent to that time, if all parties concerned vote for reopening, the association may resume business as a Federal Savings & Loan Association branch, with all deposits up to $5,000 insured.

John W. Ballard, chief examiner, declined to release data on the status of the association. How much could be paid on each dollar in the event of liquidation or the value of deposits in case of reorganization remains uncertain.

The bank board examination is the second since the association closed its doors last July 18. First examination was made by the comptroller's office, a Treasury subdivision in charge of local banks.

Auto Club Board Urges Stronger Law in Titles

Strengthening of the auto title law was urged last night by a special committee of the A. A. A. District of Columbia Motor Club's special advisory board.

"Under the present set-up," the committee report asserted, "a car title is not a guarantee of clear ownership. Valid liens against a car can be recorded and not shown on the title."

To correct this the board urged passage of a bill which would require recording liens in the traffic director's office.

Montgomery Republican Club To Hear Hamilton Tuesday

Chairman Will Be Guest of 13th District Body at Election Session; John F. Boyer Funeral Set for Today.

John D. Hamilton, chairman of the Republican National Committee, will address the Republican Club of the Thirteenth Election District Tuesday at 7:45 p. m. in Woodside Elementary School, Silver Spring.

Hamilton will talk on plans for revitalizing and rebuilding the Republican Party "so that we may restore constitutional Government to our Nation," according to John W. Coffman, president of the club.

Election of officers will be held at the meeting. Elmer Goebel, chairman; Herold Haynes and L. V. Lampson, members of the nominating committee, have prepared the following slate: President, Wilson L. Townsend, of Kensington; vice presidents, Robert L. McKeever, of Silver Spring; E. E. Boyner, of Indian Spring Terrace; Kenneth Simpson, of Kensington, and M. C. Taft, of Takoma Park; corresponding secretary, Olive D. Kinsman, of Silver Spring; recording secretary, Fred B. Linton, jr., of Takoma Park; treasurer, William Miles, of Forest Glen; parliamentarian, Robert M. Lyon, of Takoma Park.

The Montgomery County Council of American Legion Posts will meet tonight at 8 in the firehouse at Takoma Park, Md.

The "Pageant of the Brides," displaying old and new wedding costumes, will be presented at Damascus High School tonight at 8. The glee club of the school, directed by Louis Hilbert, will present a program of musical selections, and a motion picture, "The Lindbergh Trail," sponsored by Pan-American Airway, will complete the program. The affair is sponsored by the Epworth League and Junior High League of Damascus M. E. Church.

Funeral services for John Fletcher Boyer, 79, retired farmer and lifelong resident of Montgomery County, will be held today at 2 p. m. at Montgomery Chapel M. P. Church, Claggettsville, Md. Burial will be in the church cemetery. Mr. Boyer died Tuesday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Grover Stanley, Damascus, Md. The body will remain at the home of another daughter, Mrs. Lansdale Souder, Damascus, until the funeral.

Mr. Boyer was a member of an old Montgomery County family and had been an active worker for the Montgomery Chapel M. P. Church. He was the son of the late Milton and Elizabeth Boyer, of Damascus.

He is survived by four daughters, Mrs. Mildred Hyatt, Mrs. Souder and Mrs. Stanley, of Damascus, and Miss Doris Boyer, of Washington; two sons, John Boyer, of Damascus, and Day Boyer, of Washington; four sisters, Mrs. Mima Bowman, Mrs. Cassie Woodfield and Mrs. Alonzo Watkins, of Damascus, and Mrs. Granville Kinsey, of Gaithersburg, and three brothers, Dr. George M. Boyer and Jesse Boyer, of Damascus, and Everett Boyer, of Washington.

Miss Helen Norris Cummings will be the guest speaker at the meeting at 8 o'clock tonight of the Alexandria American Legion Auxiliary Unit, presided over by Mrs. Herbert A. Cady, the president. Mrs. Margaret F. Bailey, national defense chairman, is in charge of the program. Vocal numbers will be by Mrs. Frank Perry.

The funeral of Forrest Louis Crook, who died in a Washington hospital Monday, will be held at 2 p. m. today from the Chambers Funeral Home, 517 Eleventh street southeast, Washington, and burial will be in Bethel Cemetery, Alexandria.

Mr. Crook was a native of Alexandria, and is survived by one sister, Mrs. Olive Crook Henderson, now living in Washington.

Teacher, in Ill Health, Found Shot to Death

Buffalo, N. Y., Feb. 10 (AP).—Dr. John R. McCrory, professor of education at State Teachers College, was found dead in the cellar of his Kenmore home late today with the top of his head blown off.

Dr. Rocco N. de Dominicis issued a certificate of suicide and said that Dr. McCrory killed himself with a shotgun. He said the educator had been in ill health for several weeks.

J. G. Downing Killed by Auto At Alexandria

Railroad Policeman, 56, Hit While Crossing Intersection.

Joseph G. Downing, 56, of this city, a special officer at Potomac Yards, was killed yesterday morning while on his way to work when struck by a truck driven by Louis Rosen, who operates a store at 300 North Patrick street. Downing was carried to Alexandria hospital, where he was pronounced dead by Dr. William B. Wilkins. He suffered a compound fracture of the skull, broken legs and internal injuries.

The truck was bound north when the accident occurred, and Downing was crossing the intersection of City road and Hume avenue.

Rosen was arraigned in police court on a charge of colliding, and the charge was dismissed by Judge James Reese Duncan. Rosen claimed he did not see Downing, and did not know he had struck him until told by persons who had gathered around. Investigating police testified brakes of the truck were in good condition. An inquest will be held at 11 a. m. today by Dr. William B. Wilkins, acting coroner.

Downing was a native of Fauquier County, and is survived by his wife, Mrs. Annie B. Downing. He was a member of Alexandria Lodge, No. 758, B. P. O. E., and of the Fraternal Order of Eagles.

Airline Safety Rules Changed By U. S. Orders

Federal Expert Speeding West to Investigate Accident Which Killed 11.

The Bureau of Air Commerce yesterday announced eleven immediate changes for air safety as it dispatched Maj. Rudolph W. Schroeder by plane to California to investigate the crash of a 12-ton United air liner in San Francisco Bay Tuesday night which took 11 lives.

1. Installation on commercial airliners of radio compasses or radio directional finders, to supplement present directional beam flying and providing an added check for accurate navigation.

2. Installation of directional and homing devices on all airliners. These devices enable an airman to find his position by tuning in on any type of Federal radio station and to fly to his destination either by triangulation or direct to the transmitter to which he is tuned.

3. More exacting navigational training of air line pilots, particularly in using directional and homing devices.

4. Near-future installation of an air log on all air liners. This device records practically all movements of the aircraft and enables supervisory personnel to have a positive check on the plane while en route and also provides valuable information in case of an accident.

5. Installation of anti-static shielded loop antenna on all air liners. This new antenna eliminates about 85 per cent of rain, snow and sleet static.

6. Promulgation of approved type certificate airliner radio equipment regulations. These are requirements or standards for radio similar to present safety requirements for engines, propellers and other important accessories of a licensed plane.

7. Installation of only "simultaneous radio ranges" on Federal airways. The stations will broadcast both voice and radio beacon signals at the same time.

8. More detailed and accurate radio maps issued by the Government.

9. Pilot training on "Link trainer" by all airlines. The "Link trainer" is a device installed on the ground which enables an airman to fly blind and follow radio beacon with every move recorded on a chart to check his proficiency. It simulates actual conditions of blind flight.

10. Expediting airport approach light installation by the bureau. Penetrating approach lights at terminals enable airmen to locate the range and land under conditions of poor visibility with complete safety. At present approach lights are being established at 18 airports.

11. Creation of an expanded Safety Research and Development Section Bureau.

It was pointed out that none of the above program apparently would have prevented Tuesday night's crash. Officials refused to comment on what regulations could have prevented the accident before an official report is made.

McMurray Is Honored.

Herbert H. McMurray will be installed as chancellor of the Joseph H. Choate Chapter of Sigma Nu Phi legal fraternity at the annual installation of officers to be held today in the Fraternity House, 1755 Q street northwest. He succeeds Malcolm A. Edwards.

U. S. Chamber Opposes Rise In Pension Tax

Committee Recommends That 1940 Increase Be Held Up Until 1947.

By the Associated Press.

A United States Chamber of Commerce committee urged yesterday that projected increases in taxes under the social security act be postponed until 1947.

Old-age pension taxes, which now are 1 per cent on both workers' wages and employers' pay rolls, are scheduled to climb to 1.5 per cent in 1940 and 3 per cent in 1949.

Collections under the 1 per cent rate, the committee said, will yield more than enough revenue to meet for years all expenditures under the act."

Urging postponement of the increases, it said the intervening time could be used "to work out the problems now presented" by the law.

Approves Act's Purposes.

The group expressed approval of the act's purposes, but suggested that unemployment insurance taxes, now borne solely by employers, be extended to employes.

Criticism was directed at the idea of building huge Government pension reserves. The committee said the program should be put on a "pay-as-you-go" basis.

This suggestion also has been advanced in some Administration quarters.

The chamber group, headed by Fred H. Clausen, of Harlcon, Wis., said consideration should be given to gradual extension of the old-age benefit system to workers not now covered * * * as successful methods of administration are developed."

It asserted that formulation of private pension systems to supplement the Government system should be encouraged.

Opposes Taxation.

"In particular," the report said, "the committee recommends that such plans should be free from taxation, in order that all money intended for the benefit of workers may be devoted exclusively to that purpose.

"The committee points out that Government-operated pension measures have for their purpose * * * assuring workers that upon reaching retirement they will not be dependent upon public relief.

"This purpose * * * should be maintained, and there should be reliance upon private plans for any supplementary income for retired workers."

Another recommendation was that the tax on employers be limited to wages paid persons earning $3,000 a year or less. The committee described as an "impropriety" the present provision taxing gross pay rolls, including compensation to top-salaried officers.

Thirteen-year-old Eleanor Hands, seventh-grade pupil in Baltimore, disappeared for 36 hours and returned home with the smiling news she had married Joseph L. Falice, 23. Mrs. Lillian Hands, the child's mother, said she was "satisfied and surprised" when she took her daughter to a police station. Falice is being held on a perjury charge because he gave his bride's age as 18.

Doctor Poisoned the Reeves, Korean Servant's Lawyers Say

By the Associated Press.

White Plains, N. Y., Feb. 10.—Defense counsel charged today that a medicine containing poison was hypodermically administered to Mr. and Mrs. George Reeves last summer—not by Chang Foo Lee, a Korean houseboy—but by their own physician, Dr. Albert W. Page.

In his opening address to the jury, at the trial of Chang Foo Lee for attempted murder, Defense Attorney Charles D. Lewis said he would prove that Dr. Page injected a prescription containing 12 ampules of a powerful medicine after the Reeves couple had become ill but before their ailment had been diagnosed as poisoning of another type—not a medicine.

Lee is charged with trying to kill the Reeves, relatives of his wealthy 83-year-old widow employer, to secure a legacy he feared was jeopardized by their presence as her guests.

New York, Feb. 10 (AP).—Major Green's own story of how he allegedly murdered Mrs. Mary Harriet Case was retold in Queens County Court today by a New York colored patrolman who said he coaxed the tale from the accused colored houseman in a cell in the Queens City prison a week ago.

The patrolman was John E. Roberts, who, disguised as a vagrant, was placed in an adjoining cell. The garrulous, boastful Green, he testified, told a full tale of the brutal murder of the 25-year-old Jackson Heights housewife.

"Green said he went to the Case woman's apartment and they had an argument over whether or not vinegar was to be used in the water for washing the windows," Roberts testified.

"Green said he had a large hammer under his coat. 'I hit her after the argument,' Green said. 'And she said, 'please don't hit me again.' There was a little struggle, then she fell on her hands with her head touching the floor and rolled over on her side. Then she fell flat on her back with her arms upstretched.' upstretched.'

"Then Green told me," Roberts continued, "'I drug her by her shoulders from where she fell to the bathroom and I struck here several times with the hammer. I thought she was dead. I went out into the apartment to look around and I came back to the bathroom. She was standing up and I struck her over the head and threw her into the bathtub. I started out and looked back. She was sitting up and I struck her again and again.'"

Roberts then told of Green describing how he threw a coverlet over the body and let the water run in order to "get rid of the fingerprints."

Wendel Tried "To Help Dad."

New York, Feb. 10 (AP).—Paul D. Wendel, in his early twenties, today told how he corroborated his father's false confession to kidnaping the Lindbergh baby "just to help my dad."

Young Wendel, testifying in the trial of three men charged with kidnaping his father, a former lawyer, and torturing him into confessing to the Lindbergh kidnaping, said he made a statement corroborating the confession to Ellis Parker, sr., chief of Burlington County, N. J., detectives.

Parker and his son, Ellis, jr., are under indictment, but Gov. Harold G. Hoffman refused to extradite them for trial with Murray Bleefeld, Harry Weiss and Martin Schlossman, defendants.

'Violence' Death Cause.

Somerset, Pa., Feb. 10 (AP).—A Uniontown physician testified tonight that "external violence" caused the death of 64-year-old Frank C. Monaghan, the Uniontown hotelman whom the Commonwealth contends was "brutally and barbarously beaten to death."

Dr. Herbert L. Lund, youthful pathologist at Uniontown Hospital, listed seven conditions which in his opinion resulted in the death for which 25-year-old State Trooper Stacy Gunderman and six other Uniontown peace officers face murder charges.

Attorney General Charles J. Margiotti won a legal tilt to obtain permission to show the jury pictures of Monaghan's body to support the physician's testimony.

Lund had testified Monaghan died of:

"Hemorrhage of the brain, multiple fracture of ribs, free blood in the chest cavity, fractured jaw and nose, inhaling of blood into the respiratory system, shock."

Race Track Bill 'Revolt' Ended By Rep. Norton

Measure's Recall Vetoed After Debate; Minority Charges 'Railroading.'

Representative Mary T. Norton, of New Jersey, yesterday convinced the House District Committee that she is still chairman as she squelched a threatened revolt of two freshmen minority members over her bill to legalize horse racing in the Capital.

The bill had been reported by the committee last Wednesday by a vote of 10 to 8.

Representative Bates (Republican), Massachusetts, who in his spare time is Mayor of Salem, yesterday tried to have the bill recalled on the ground that it was improperly reported because two proxy votes had been cast among the affirmative ten.

After considerable debate, during which charges of "railroading" were made, Mrs. Norton put an abrupt end to the argument.

Ample Time Promised.

She made it clear, however, that members would have ample time to file minority reports before the bill is called up in the House.

Bates was joined in his protest against the manner of reporting the racing bill by Representative Shafer (Republican), of Michigan, and Representative Hull (Progressive), of Wisconsin.

"The bill has been reported and that's finished," Mrs. Norton said. "There are few people in the District who don't like to see a horse race."

After Mrs. Norton had explained that Walter O'Hara, millionaire sportsman and owner of the Narragansett track in Rhode Island, proposed to set up a race track at Benning if the racing bill becomes a law, Bates shouted:

"The part I am interested in is O'Hara. Our experience with him in New England was not altogether good."

Challenge Answered.

Mrs. Norton answered the challenge regarding the use of two proxy votes by pointing out that the bill had been reported by a vote of 8 to 7 before the proxies were recorded. The eighth vote in opposition, she said, was not accepted until after the bill had been disposed of and then only as a courtesy to Representative Brewster (Republican), of Maine, who arrived at the meeting late.

If all 21 members of the committee are brought to a committee meeting, the chairman said, the racing bill will be recalled and voted on again.

After the bill was reported, Representative Hull learned that it would prevent Milwaukee breweries from shipping beer into Washington for bottling, as they now do to minimize the tax. He said he will fight the measure on the House floor.

Gambling Bill Re-passed.

For the third time, the Senate yesterday passed a bill to strengthen the gambling laws of the District and enable Washington police to arrest anyone caught with numbers slips.

The gambling bill was passed through error on Monday and recalled. It was adopted by the Senate during the Seventy-fourth Congress also but died in the House District Committee.

A report by the Senate District Committee on the measure stated that numbers operators in Washington "realize about $3,000 per day on their operations."

The bill fixes a penalty of not more than $1,000 fine or up to three years' imprisonment for anyone having anything to do with the "policy lottery" or numbers game.

The penalty for possession is up to $500 fine or six months' imprisonment or both.

Another section provides that the U. S. Commissioner may issue search warrants in gambling cases.

The bill also provides that gambling apparatus may be ordered destroyed by the court whether or not any arrests are made at the time of the raid.

Second Attack Laid to Slayer Of Buffalo Girl

By the Associated Press.

Buffalo, N. Y., Feb. 10.—Police said an East Buffalo woman repulsed a criminal attack in her home this afternoon by a man described as closely resembling a person wanted for questioning in the Mary Ellen Babcock slaying.

The detective division reported that Patrolman Howard H. Leninger fired two shots "at a suspect" and said a man had been arrested but had not been definitely identified.

Mrs. Joseph Zwincknagel, 20, who lives in East Buffalo, told police a dark-haired man about 22 years old weighing about 125 pounds and wearing dark trousers and a lumberjacket, forced his way into her home.

She told police he said he was a soap salesman and then attempted to attack her. Her body was bruised and her dress torn, she said.

Dutch Seamen's Tour Of D. C. Is Prepared

The full schedule of events for the officers and crew of the O-16, submarine in the Royal Netherlands Navy, which will visit Washington, February 15 through 23, was announced yesterday by the Navy Department.

The schedule includes official calls on the Secretary of the Navy, chief of the naval operations, commandant of the Washington Navy Yard, Commissioner Hazen and Gen. Roberts, United States Army, commanding Washington Provisional Brigade. During the week both officers and crew will make official visits to Annapolis. On Wednesday, February 17, the Navy Department will hold an official luncheon at the Mayflower Hotel.

Tuesday, February 16, Prof. Vening Meinesz, Dutch scientist who is a passenger on the O-16, will lecture at the National Museum.

Miss Chubb Is Sponsor For U. S. S. Warrington

Miss Katherine T. Chubb, of New York City, yesterday was designated by Secretary of the Navy Swanson as sponsor for the destroyer U. S. S. Warrington, named for her great-great-grandfather, Commodore Lewis Warrington, U. S. Navy. The destroyer, now under construction at the Federal Shipbuilding & Dry Dock Co., Kearny, N. J., is scheduled for launching May 1.

Original sponsor of the Warrington, the second vessel of that name, was Mrs. Hugh North, of Lancaster, Pa., a great-granddaughter of Commodore Warrington, who died November 8.

Opposition From The States.

The opposition of several State legislatures to President Roosevelt's plan of packing the Supreme Court must be placed among the most significant reactions thus far recorded. Apparently Mr. Roosevelt did not anticipate this sort of an attack upon his proposal. But the thin veneer of judicial reform by which his measure was disguised appears to have made even less impression upon the State legislatures than it did upon Congress.

It is especially significant that much of the resentment generated in State capitals is centered in Democratic circles. The Texas Legislature has condemned the scheme just about as emphatically as that State approved the re-election of President Roosevelt three months ago. In Maryland a representative of the party which the President heads has taken leadership of a similar move. Democrats who still believe in States' rights have changed their attitude in many instances to follow the New Deal, but when the independence of the judiciary is at stake their convictions stand out above party lines.

The States have good reason to be perturbed by the President's plan. As Senator Borah pointed out in his recent address, the issue on which Administration acts have been most frequently held unconstitutional is the division of powers between the Federal and State governments. Various addresses and official acts of the President give rise to the assumption that his purpose in seeking a change in the membership of the Supreme Court is to make possible the extension of national power without an amendment to the Constitution. That is a matter of direct concern to the State legislatures that may well engage their attention.

Members of Congress, too, will doubtless welcome an expression of local opinion on this vital question. It is a rather serious reflection upon Congress that legislators in the States should feel the necessity of saving the Supreme Court from so crude a blow to its prestige. Ordinarily the representatives of the people in Washington could be expected to safeguard our system of government from any fundamental changes by mere legislative action. But in this emergency a considerable number of State legislatures are unwilling to trust the decision entirely to the judgment of Congressmen who have shown unusual susceptibility to executive influence.

If the President's proposal is defeated by an outpouring of adverse public opinion, the effect upon his entire administration is likely to be pronounced. For that outcome would undoubtedly prejudice any constitutional amendment which the Administration might then choose to sponsor. The tendency would thus be to stymie the ambitious program which the President appears to have in mind for his second administration. In a democracy opportunism often proves to be the most difficult policy that can be pursued.

Free Speech—For Themselves.

On two notable occasions during the last campaign, Earl Browder was prevented from making a public address. In Tampa a band of citizens and law enforcement officers broke up a meeting which the Communist Presidential candidate was addressing. In Terre Haute, he was thrown into jail on a charge of vagrancy as he stepped off a train to attend a party rally.

On both occasions Browder and his fellow Communists protested vigorously against this infringement of the civil rights of an American citizen. In that protest most thoughtful persons concurred. And, for the most part, Browder was unmolested in his campaign.

It is of the very essence of the democratic system that it permits a hearing to any one preaching views contrary to those upheld by the majority. As Senator Borah pointed out in his recent radio address, "a babbling fool, preaching destruction of the Constitution and the court as the tools of capitalism, found liberty under the terms and by the authority of the very things he would destroy."

But the Communists, while clamorous in their demands that their freedom of speech, press and assemblage be unimpaired, are only too ready to deny it to their opponents whenever they have a chance.

From Mexico it is reported, for instance, that Stalinist organizations are threatening to gag Leon Trotzky if he attempts to speak in public. And there is a strong suspicion that elements very much interested in upholding the official side of the Stalin-Trotzky controversy were responsible for the cutting of the telephone wires that were to carry the voice of the one-time Soviet war commissar to a meeting of sympathizers in New York. So far as that goes Trotzky, too, when in power did not scruple to bludgeon opponents into silence.

Lincoln And Roosevelt.

Tomorrow is the birthday of Abraham Lincoln. The honor which is due will be extended even in that part of the Nation where the very name of the Civil War President was once anathema. For with the passage of years the majestic stature of the man becomes more clear. He is seen as one who stood firm upon the rock of principle; who deserved respect from his opponents even more than admiration from his supporters.

Some anniversaries have significance at the outset of their observance but gradually become purely customary and are allowed to lapse. Others are at first commemorated with some popular hesitation, but grow more convincing as the years roll by. The latter is the case with February 12. Once clearly subordinate to February 22, it has gained in meaning until the two dates now seem complementary. The President who established and the President who preserved the Federal Union are seen as men between whose service to their country it would be invidious to make distinctions.

It is significant that Lincoln continues to grow as he recedes into the past. For critical analysis of the man reveals, and always will reveal, much to make hero-worship seem ridiculous. Obscure in origin, uncouth in appearance, often blinded and hampered by provincial bias, there was basis enough for the derision so abundantly poured upon Lincoln by his contemporaries, in the North, the South and overseas. He was not great because he had no human failings. His greatness lay in the candor, the sincerity and the uprightness which made his defects negligible in proportion.

This integrity of character; this refusal to regard the means as secondary to the end; this straightforward dealing which is apparent in and was even responsible for many of his blunders, is what has most endeared Abraham Lincoln to his fellow-countrymen and to the world. And his simple theory of American government, couched in his own direct and unevasive language, still stands in the hearts of his people as that toward which the Nation should continually aspire:

> As I would not be a slave, so I would not be a master. This expresses my idea of democracy. Whatever differs from this, to the extent of the difference, is no democracy.

On this 128th anniversary of Lincoln's birth a man of a very different type is in the White House. Suave and cultured; polished and subtle, President Roosevelt differs from President Lincoln in many ways, without considering the relative magnitude of the issues the two Administrations have been called upon to face.

The difference is expressed partly in the very different language used, and the actions taken, by the two men in those crucial moments which test the essential stature of a leader. It was indicated, by contrast with Lincoln's words above, in Mr. Roosevelt's statement, on the eve of re-election, that "I should like to have it said of my second Administration that in it these forces met their master." But the differences go deeper than that.

In the case of Abraham Lincoln, moral and spiritual growth responded to huge responsibilities. Appreciation of the essential values of the American system of government increased even as it became necessary for the President to assume virtually dictatorial powers. As his great English biographer, Lord Charnwood, said: "His own intense experience of the weakness of democracy did not sour him, nor would any similar experience of later times have been likely to do so."

With Franklin Delano Roosevelt it is the other way. Responsibility has not brought humility; power freely accorded has seemingly weakened the solemn sense of trusteeship which was the essence of Lincoln's attitude toward our highest elective office. Authority has encouraged in Mr. Roosevelt a lust for continuation and intensification of that mastery which Lincoln so expressly repudiated. Unlike the latter, the former would be a master. His motives in that aspiration may be the highest. But the aspiration, in word and deed, is there.

These are strong words. In spite of the Madison Square Garden speech not many would have been willing to believe them prior to last week. Many will hate to confront the implications of Mr. Roosevelt's lust for power now. But the proposal to pack the Supreme Court, and the proof that specious and surreptitious legislation is deemed justifiable to attain that end, has stripped the issue naked. And the rising tide of indignation against such methods indicates clearly that the Nation recognizes this challenge at face value, and will accept it.

Lincoln had his troubles with the Supreme Court. No setback received by Mr. Roosevelt is comparable for its crushing effect with that accorded the Republicans in the 6-2 opinion handed down by Chief Justice Taney, at the age of 83, in the Dred Scott case. There is good reason, also, to hold that certain of the military arrests, whatever the provocation, during the darkest period of the Civil War would not have had constitutional sanction if that issue had been squarely faced prior to the famous case of Milligan.

But Lincoln did not seek to enlarge his powers by devious methods, preserving the shadow while yielding the substance of democracy. His mistakes were open mistakes; his bold assumptions of power were taken without any attempt to hide or minimize their significance. If the President uses extraordinary powers justly, he said himself with reference to the arrest of Vallandigham, "the people will probably justify him."

The people have done so. But they have never yet justified an executive seizure of absolute power disguised in purpose and undefended by open and honest reasoning. Fortunately there is good reason to hope that no such sabotage of the tested machinery of American institutions will be permitted now.

Spying On Labor.

The stories told by Pinkerton detectives to the Senate committee investigating labor espionage go far toward explaining the breakdown of the machinery for collective bargaining in the automobile industry. When employes learn that hired spies have been planted in their midst to pose as fellow unionists, gain their confidence and then betray it, they naturally refuse to believe in employer protestations that they are free to join organizations of their own choosing.

The knowledge that large automobile companies have relied upon espionage to keep themselves informed as to the activities of their employes helps to explain, even though it does not justify, the high-handed tactics and illegal expedients to which union organizers have recently resorted. By using paid spies to sound out sentiment among employes, the General Motors Co. has clearly shown that it does not trust its employes and does not intend to leave them free to organize in accordance with their own uncoerced judgment. Instead, by systematically sowing the seeds of fear and distrust company managements with spy systems prevent their workers from forming the kind of spontaneous organizations of their own choosing that constitute the only solid basis for real collective bargaining.

Under such conditions a deep-rooted and well-founded suspicion of the motives of management is fostered. Workers feel that the cards are stacked against those who stray from the company reservation or show any independence of spirit. And the timidity engendered by such convictions, whether right or wrong, gives ambitious labor leaders like John L. Lewis priceless opportunities to make themselves spokesmen for intimidated and inarticulate groups.

No doubt some defenders of the espionage system will argue that its value has been shown by the lawless conduct of the striking automobile workers. If the troublemakers could have been "tagged" and suppressed, they conclude, the industry and the country might have been spared a prolonged and costly labor struggle. This kind of reasoning, however, loses sight of an indispensable condition to the maintenance of peaceful relations between managements and labor—that is, mutual confidence and mutual belief that the other side intends to play fair.

There can be no such feeling of confidence if labor knows that employers are trying to destroy labor's solidarity by sending spies among the workers. As a matter of fact, the espionage allegedly designed to afford protection against violent labor demonstrations creates a state of mind among workers that is very likely to produce most violent explosions. If or when company managements learn that elementary lesson in mass psychology, they will have laid the foundation for genuine collective bargaining and for negotiated settlements of disputed issues now left to the arbitrament of industrial strife.

Fact-Finding At Its Worst.

Somebody is always taking the joy out of life with statistics. When poets declare that "one swallow does not make spring" they are taking a big chance on being contradicted by some phlegmatic fact finder.

There was some hope that a statistical finding made recently by the Appalachian Forest Experiment Station would end all statistical findings. For in counting the needles of two pine trees it discovered, as a matter of record, that the first had 325,000 needles, and that, as a matter of anticlimax, the second had only 30,000. That should have effectively undermined the mania for statistics, but it didn't.

In fact, this painstaking project fades into insignificance beside the one just cited by Dr. Adolph J. Roth, a Washington State College bacteriologist, who has been counting sneezes in his classroom. Monday, according to this professor, is the big day for sternutative wheezing. And, adding insult to injury, he asserts further that it is all due to the excessive amount of "osculatory activity" that goes on over the week-end. Kiss on Sunday; sneeze on Monday.

"What's in a kiss" once asked a bard. "Cold germs" answers Dr. Roth. Seemingly the only possible solution is a reversion to war-time schedules—dateless Saturdays, kissless Sundays, sneezeless Mondays. Then, indeed, there will be some foundation for the now meaningless phrase—blue Monday.

A lot of chiropractors have had to go to work for a living since car manufacturers discontinued turning out models with rumble seats.

Reactions On Packing The Supreme Court

All communications must carry the writer's name and address, though pen names are permitted at the Editor's discretion. In fairness to other correspondents, brevity is requested. Letters are subject to condensation.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The amazing attempt of Mr. Roosevelt to destroy one of the three coordinate departments of government should produce a flood of indignation sufficient to overwhelm that part of Congress ready to carry out his design.

The Executive desires the enactment of legislation which he believes to be unconstitutional, but he does not wish the amendment of the Constitution in the manner prescribed by the document itself. His plan is to use the legislative branch of the government to subordinate the Judiciary to the Executive, thereby leaving actually but one department of government. This is attempted usurpation in an extreme form.

"I am the state," said the Bourbon rulers. But their office was hereditary. They were not the elected executives of a republic, chosen for a definite period with powers and duties carefully defined by a constitution emanating from the people.

Mr. Roosevelt certainly doesn't believe in the Constitution, and since he does not, his only logical and honorable course is to resign the office he holds under the Constitution.

Listen to George Washington's views on the course Mr. Roosevelt is pursuing:

"It is important that the habit of thinking in a free country should inspire caution in those intrusted with its administration, to confine themselves within their respective constitutional spheres; avoiding in the exercise of the powers of one department to encroach upon another. The spirit of encroachment tends to consolidate the powers of all the departments in one, and thus to create, whatever the form of government, a real despotism.

"If in the opinion of the people the distribution or modification of the constitutional power be in any particular wrong let it be corrected by an amendment in the way which the Constitution designates. But let there be no change by usurpation; for though this, in one instance, may be the instrument of good, it is the customary weapon by which free governments are destroyed. The precedent must always greatly overbalance in permanent evil any partial or territorial benefit which the use can at any time yield."

Those wise words of the first President should be sufficient to prevent the usurpation of power which the President is now demanding from Congress through the destruction of the Judiciary.

ALICE DAVIS.
Harmon-on-Hudson, New York, Feb. 10.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Those Congressmen and Senators who defend President Roosevelt's proposal to "pack" the Supreme Court are obviously behaving contrary to the welfare of the people, because the Constitution is the law of the people to hold in check the ambitious and selfish politicians.

If the Supreme Court is made submissive to the whims of the President—as many of the Congressmen have been—the Constitution will no longer be effective so far as enforcement is concerned. Such junking of the Constitution would obviously be a national calamity to the honest and hard-working American citizens, and perhaps to the strategic politicians after the people realize that they have been diplomatically misled.

The legislators who support this radical proposal of the President, in my opinion—and the opinion of all the Democrats whom I have talked to—are guilty of either or a combination of the following: They are weak and submissive to anything the President says because of a passionate hero-worship they have for him; they are "weak-kneed," submissive followers of the President because of the President's temporary popularity, which is accomplished through "political strategy;" they are prejudiced against the Supreme Court which protected the Constitution against their unconstitutional laws; they are narrow-minded in their sincerity; or they are unable to comprehend the significance of such an unwise move.

Even intelligent people, in public office, can be unfit for leadership because of misdirected or lack of coordinated emotions. Hence the danger of allowing the Constitution to be destroyed as regards its enforcement, through the intimidation of the Supreme Court, which is a symbol of justice to the American people. J. B.
Washington, Feb. 9.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: What we need now, and this is of more importance than anything so far suggested, is two more Presidents in the White House. The two-thirds majority rule would be in order and the present Legislative, Judicial and Executive branches of the Government could be dispensed with at a great saving to the country. Too many cooks spoil the broth. FRISBEY GILBERT.
Washington, Feb. 9.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Replying to the query, "How old is old?" Bernard Shaw is reported to have said: "Why bother about one's age? At 22 a man is too old for sprint racing and, in England, too young to be Chancellor of the Exchequer. At 70 a woman is too old to have a baby, but young enough to run a village postoffice. Man is a complex of parts, no two of which reach their prime on the same date. All simple questions about age are, therefore, unanswerable."

Recently our omnipotent President furnished the answer, as far as our Chief Justices are concerned, having set 70 as the "dead-line."

If 70 is to be the age limit for those who pass on the laws, why not for those who frame them? Hasn't the Chief Executive overlooked a rather important point in his ambitious desire to control our Supreme Court? E. K. G.
Washington, Feb. 9.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I am in sympathy with the writer of the letter in your paper of February 9 and am constrained to write to you too. The letter to which I refer is signed "Democrat From Missouri." I think Mr. Roosevelt wants to do the right thing and the Supreme Court should be willing to be "packed" if that is for the interest of the people. I have no doubt that it is willing and will back Mr. Roosevelt in his proposition. However, that is to be decided in the future. I think the outcome will be favorable to Mr. Roosevelt.

MRS. JONES.
Harpers Ferry, Feb. 8.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In political parlance, to pack a body is to manipulate its members so as to secure partisan advantage. Packing, in political procedure, is so universally resorted to that the term is robbed of its sinister or unethical connotation. The party in power, according to political ethics, is justified in constituting courts, committees and commissions in such way as to give itself the majority, so as to facilitate the smooth working of government.

Even nonpartisan bodies are so constituted as to give the dominant party the upper hand. Throughout our political history, the administration has never been upbraided for keeping the majority of the Supreme Court in harmony with its own political tenets. Whenever the unsuccessful party accuses its successful rival of packing the Supreme Court, it is merely indulging in the ethics of perfection because it has not the opportunity to indulge in the practice which it condemns in its adversary.

President Hoover was first and foremost to accuse President Roosevelt of the intention of packing the Supreme Court, and yet President Hoover nominated to that august body Judge J. J. Parker, of North Carolina, who was calculated to perpetuate a conservative majority. When the Republican Party rejected this nominee, thereupon he sent in the name of Judge Roberts who, though the youngest, has proved to be one of the most conservative of its members. It, therefore, illy lies in President Hoover's mouth to condemn President Roosevelt for seeking to follow his example.

Had Gov. Landon been elected last November instead of President Roosevelt, is there a single candid American who does not believe that as occasion arose he would have constituted the bench, in the majority of instances, with men of his own political party and economic persuasion? Twice in our history, the Supreme Court has been diminished or augmented in order to secure partisan advantages.

When President Wilson appointed Judge Brandeis to the Supreme Bench, his confirmation was violently opposed by the same line-up of reactionary influences which now so bitterly assail President Roosevelt in his attempt to liberalize the judiciary in fulfillment of his promise to play the role of leader of the American people along the path which they have chosen to travel. KELLY MILLER.
Washington, Feb. 8.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Roosevelt's preposterous proposal to emasculate the Supreme Court can come only from a mind so obsessed with colossal conceit that it believes its judgment superior to that of the Supreme Court, the bulwark of American liberty. On what actual accomplishments is this complex of super-intelligence based? Surely the Roosevelt record reveals that his policies have retarded recovery instead of helping it.

Certainly his greatest achievement, the elimination of prohibition, was no great stimulant to re-recovery. The NRA and AAA impeded recovery by reducing production and raising living costs until they were declared unconstitutional by the Supreme Court. Dollar devaluation confounded confidence. Relief and other wasteful spending created fear of inflation. Reciprocal trade treaties took the domestic farm market from 15,000,000 acres of American farmers. Pandering to labor and radicals caused alarm that the socialization of America was planned.

Where then does Mr. Roosevelt get the notion he has been responsible for recovery? It must be merely a figment of his imagination. Unfortunately this dazzling illusion deceived some 26,000,000 voters into mistaking fiction for fact.

But now, what a sad awakening for millions of Americans who must realize they may have sacrificed their liberty for so-called security! Surely a raid on the Supreme Court cannot be dignified as "democracy." If President Roosevelt's drive for dictatorial power is not stopped, Spain's experience may be duplicated in the United States.

Mr. Roosevelt apparently wishes to go down in history, not as the Great Emancipator, but as the Great Emasculator of the Supreme Court.

STANLEY F. MORSE.
Stateburg, S. C., Feb. 6.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The President knew the House had lost its independence and will do his bidding, but he couldn't feel certain of the Senate. This uncertainty as to the Senate was undoubtedly his reason for cleverly combining his proposal to pack the Supreme Court, which is not behind with its docket, with his proposal to relieve some congestion which does exist in the dockets of several of the inferior Federal courts.

His proposal was very cleverly drawn, but it remains to be seen whether the Senate will surrender the country to the President. I, for one, do not believe that it will.

CANUTE.
Washington, Feb. 7.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In regard to your editorial "Time For A Showdown," if I were capable of writing an article on that subject I would not make any changes. I have always been a firm believer in the Supreme Court of the United States as the controlling agency. A. A. PAULEY.

Lincoln And Maximilian

A LIBRARY of volumes has been written on that romantic adventure of the 1860s—the erection and fall of Maximilian's empire in Mexico. But at this particular time, it might be fitting to know what effect the assassination of President Lincoln had upon the ultimate destinies of the young Hapsburg who was himself reserved for a fate as tragic as the American President's.

Up to the time of his death, Lincoln had left most of the details of the Mexican affair to his Secretary of State, William Seward. In 1861, Seward had considered declaring war on England, Spain and France, the debtor nations which had decided to collect principal and interest by force. Seward thought that a foreign war would divert attention from the Southern rupture and might bring the recalcitrant slave States into line by giving them something to fight for.

* * *

The scheme failed, for a variety of reasons, among them being Lincoln's preoccupation with preserving the Union, even to the extent of allowing a foreign empire to grow up on the southern flank of the United States. By 1863, Seward's one aim, in the face of continued rebel success, was to keep Napoleon III, the power behind the Mexican adventure, from recognizing the Confederacy in exchange for several million dollars' worth of cotton.

Seward was in a delicate position. If he shouted too loudly against the French invasion, Napoleon could retaliate by recognizing the Southern States, a contingency the Union was anxious to avoid. If Seward accepted the fact of a new and foreign government in Mexico, he endangered the popularity of the Lincoln Administration and took the risk that, after the war was settled, a new one might develop from the republican-monarchical embroglio almost sure to follow the cessation of the American struggle.

* * *

The Secretary of State made mild protests against Napoleon's activities in Mexico; but he avoided all reference to the Monroe Doctrine and instructed his representatives in Paris and Vienna to be particularly cautious in their remarks concerning the Mexican situation. As Grant and Sherman and Sheridan began to roll up victories, Seward was able to make more obvious the dislike of the United States for what was going on in the neighboring republic. By the time the war ended, he was boldly suggesting that the French had better withdraw; the Union troops would be spoiling for a fight with the French and even Lincoln, peace lover though he was, might not be able to hold the Army, plus public opinion, in check.

How did Maximilian feel toward Lincoln? The diary kept by a German engineer, Wimmer, who was constructing a railroad for the empire in 1865, gives an eye-witness account of the Emperor's reception of the sad news of April 14. He wrote:

Saturday, April 29th, 1865.—Emperor Maximilian arrived at Maltrata at 12 o'clock noon. I was introduced to him, along with the other engineers, and we had quite a chat . . . We all had an excellent lunch on the veranda of the chief contractor's house, while a native brass band played in the patio . . . A messenger from Orizaba arrived. He had a telegram for the Emperor, announcing that President Lincoln had been assassinated by John Wilkes Booth on April 14 in Ford's Theater, Washington . . . The news stopped further festivities, and we all escorted the Emperor to Orizaba, where he was anxious to use the telegraph.

Lincoln's death brought Andrew Johnson to the Presidency. Maximilian sent Mariano Degollado to Washington, carrying a letter of condolence; his real mission was to see Johnson and sound him out on his attitude toward the empire. But Johnson refused to see Degollado and Seward continued his efforts to drive Napoleon III from Mexico by diplomacy instead of force.

Grant and his victorious blue legions were calling for an invasion of Mexico; Seward sent Gen. Schofield, one of the fire-brands, to Paris, with the instructions to "get his legs under Napoleon's mahogany and tell him he must get out of Mexico." Schofield went, but didn't talk that way! Seward got the American representatives in Paris and Vienna to stop re-enforcements for Maximilian. The schemes of Bismarck frightened Napoleon and gave him an excuse to desert the fairhaired Austrian. When Maximilian went to his death on June 19, 1867, he might well have asked: "Would I be here if Lincoln had lived?"

Wild Apes Of Gibraltar.

Great Britain will hold Gibraltar only until the last of the wild apes of the rock dies, according to a local legend. To impress superstitious Spaniards, the British government feeds, breeds, guards the apes and makes it illegal to harm them. When the troop dwindled to two aged, withered females a few years ago, government officials imported new ape blood. The ape population of the rock is now 12.

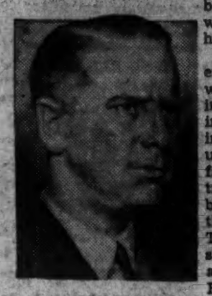
Fair Enough

By Westbrook Pegler.

Cockeyed Government.

Chicago, Feb. 10.—Mr. Ed Kelly, the Mayor of Chicago at $14,000 a year, is away in Florida on another of his vacations, but the city rocks along about as usual, because the job is strictly political and the boys do not steal any less when a Chicago mayor is at home than when he is away.



It does not make any difference who is mayor or whether he is in his office in the city hall or scratching the sand off his belly in the shade of a striped umbrella or discussing affairs of state with some contractor or chain store gambling house magnate under the grandstand at Miami. Things go along about the same in Chicago under one administration or another, Republican or Democratic.

The late Tony Cermak was off on a vacation when he got in the middle as Giuseppe Zangara, the demented Italian bricklayer, started shooting at Franklin D. Roosevelt. If Tony had been at his desk, putting in some hours for his salary, he might be alive today, but, on the other hand, he had spent a couple of months before that on a trip to Czechoslovakia on the city's time and nothing happened. So the fact that he was stalling on the job does not prove anything. It was just one of those things, as the boys say of anything that defies intelligent explanation.

They rarely get a good mayor in Chicago, but even if they had a LaGuardia who would work for his pay he could not stop the larceny, because the people are adjusted to it. They get barroom bums and churchgoing family men in the mayor's office, but the spirit of the city remains always the same—accepting graft, corruption and the fix as the normal thing.

• • • •

THEY WOULD be suspicious of an efficient, conscientious man with a knowledge of administration and finance as well as politics.

The only thing that governs larceny in Chicago is the amount of money available for stealing or grafting. When times are bad naturally the pickings are not so good, but rarely is there any restraint on account of an aroused state of the public mind, and these are mere brainstorms.

It is a marvel that Chicago stands up under the burden of this kind of government and its costs and losses. People in the income tax brackets reckon on having to pay the Federal income tax on such income as they are unable to conceal from the collectors. But nobody in Chicago or Illinois at large, with the possible exception of some few nuts on the subject of civic duty, ever thinks of paying the personal property tax in full, and there is no State income tax.

Even if there were a State income tax it would only cause more corruption, because the habit of the community, the tradition and civic morality are such that people would naturally expect to go around and put in the fix with the ward captain, who would straighten things out for 25 per cent, or something like that. The State would get only a small percentage of its due.

• • • •

YOU MIGHT say that the State income tax bureau would be able to draw on the Federal returns for comparisons, but now you are talking about New York, not Chicago or Illinois. They are more docile in the East, though not necessarily more conscientious. Instead of an income tax they have a sales tax, which bears on the people who are really dirt-poor and hungry-poor the same as on the millionaire.

But the sales tax is not entirely collectible, and there you have larceny, too. They also have a personal property tax, but that is a joke, for it permits a man to make his own appraisal, and he is taxed on only 37 per cent of that figure. They use the telephone book for a tax list, and the local assessor has just dropped 600,000 people from the roll on the ground that it would be too much bother and too great an expense to pursue the matter.

He is pretty close to the truth at that, but, nevertheless, there is the tax law and here is the assessor saying to hell with it, and everybody consenting to that without the slightest thought of reforming the system.

This is the cockeyedest, the most abandoned, what-the-hell government of a major community in all the civilized world, but it has always been that way, and life goes on, and there you are. They must do it with mirrors.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

Football and the Courts.

President Roosevelt, who has often compared his role to that of a quarterback in a football game, would take out the varsity members of the Supreme Court and rush in the scrub team in the pinches.

• • • •

Under the President's proposal the present members of the high court would be in there trying hard, but realizing that the minute the head coach saw a flaw in their work they would be yanked out for some youthful broken field runner.

• • • •

The new rules would make it possible to take a judge out of the game for heavy breathing, slow footwork or being too deliberate.

• • • •

You can imagine Graham McNamee in the Supreme Court press stand giving the public the play by play account of the Supreme Court's deliberations in the case of the Federated Gas Works versus the New Deal:

"There goes Sutherland out! . . . I don't know why he's being removed . . . He looks okay and has been going along nicely, but he's being taken out . . . I can't make out who the judge is who is replacing him, but he's very boyish looking, a mere child, in fact!

• • • •

"Hold on! . . . Wait a minute, folks . . . The kid is talking to Sutherland . . . It seems he is telling him that he can stay on the field if he wants to and that the young fellow is technically going in as his helper . . . Sutherland shakes his head and trots off . . . He doesn't like the idea of being chaperoned in a scrimmage.

• • • •

"Now they're deliberating again . . . The briefs are in play . . . Wait! There goes the whistle . . . Another judge is being benched . . . It's McReynolds . . . The White House caught him in the act of some deep thinking . . . It was quite barefaced of him, if you ask me . . . He's out of the game and a lad in rompers is going in for him.

• • • •

"And, what now! . . . Van Devanter is being yanked out, too! . . . I suspected he would be removed . . . He's been consulting the law right along . . . In this court game as it is played under the revised system a judge who makes sure of his facts before going ahead is not tolerated . . . Out he goes!

• • • •

"Who's that going in for him? . . . It's a mere stripling . . . He turns six handsprings before going in and he runs across the field like a deer! . . . Look at that knee action! . . . The umpire is asking him who he is . . . He tells the ump it's none of his business and that all it's necessary to know is that he is okayed by the Democratic committee . . . Boy, what a jurist that boy will make!"

• • • •

Fair Warning to Any Jurist.

Intrigue In Nanking

Chinese Capital Reported A Crucible In Which Three Political Elements Are Boiling To Set Nation's Fate.

By Mark J. Ginsbourg.

Special Correspondence of The Post.

Shanghai.

IN NANKING the colleagues and subordinates of Chiang Kai-shek are engaged in one of the bitterest internecine struggles in the ten-year history of the National Government. There are few external evidences of the crisis. Outwardly, all is bliss and jubilation. Gen. Chiang is recuperating from the trying experiences of the 13-day enforced stay in Sian. The Central Government is happy because its "face" has been saved by the trial of Marshal Chang Hsueh-liang, the leader of the Sian coup. The "Young Marshal" is satisfied because his "face" was also saved by his "pardon," motivated by "extenuating circumstances" and his "obvious sincerity."

Superficially the coup has thus ended satisfactorily for all concerned. The authority of the Central Government and Gen. Chiang have been enhanced. The rebels reportedly received a fabulous ransom for their quarry. And the great powers, including Great Britain and Japan, have been afforded an opportunity to give a touching demonstration of their affection toward the Central administration.

The only disturbing note was supplied by the reports of unprecedented intrigues in Nanking. A striking confirmation of these rumors has been supplied by a Briton, who played a leading role in the Sian drama. Writing anonymously in a local British semi-official daily, he has asserted that if Gen. Chiang "draws the right lesson from Sian and realizes that his danger there, after the first two or three days, at any rate, came directly from Nanking, he will grasp the truth and set about cleansing the Augean stables."

"If he does not," the Briton continued, "he is likely to be faced by a serious crisis which will be personally disastrous to himself and destructive of the stability of the Central Government.

"Gen. Chiang Kai-shek has to choose between two courses of action: to play the role expected of him, and as an avowed dictator to rest on the precarious support of men who, at the convenient moment, will cast him aside; alternatively to maintain his declared policy whereby his leadership of the nation is presently secured, and cautiously to assess the reality of the service he is receiving from those who ostensibly pay him allegiance.

As I have suggested in a previous dispatch, the military faction in the Nanking Government acted with un-Chinese haste in launching a punitive expedition against the rebels. While this unusual hurry was justified by the laudable desire to demonstrate the government's authority by stamping out the mutiny, there was a sinister atmosphere about the entire procedure.

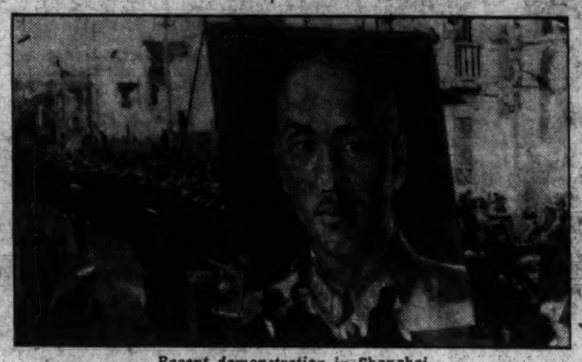
It was perfectly clear at that time that the first attempt to bombard Sian from the air would have immediately led to the assassination of Gen. Chiang by his captors. Chinese and foreign newspapermen here freely hinted that the advocates of strong action against the rebels had not only realized that they were endangering the generalissimo's life, but actually sought his death.

The "Soong dynasty," to which Gen. Chiang belongs through marriage to one of the three famous Soong sisters, had to use all its enormous influence to force the military faction to agree to two three-day truces, which enabled it to negotiate with the rebels. When Mr. T. V. Soong, former Minister of Finance, and Mme. Chiang flew to Sian to seek the generalissimo's release they were acting in their private capacity and not as representatives of the government. The latter made no effort to secure the release of its founder and main pillar.

The Briton quoted above asserted that the generalissimo's life was saved by a terrific snowstorm which prevented Nanking's air armada from showering death upon Sian.

"The weather which prevented the punitive force from bombing Sian was to them a bitter enemy," charged the Briton. "They were further outwitted by the truces successively arranged, but they so nearly had their way that, when the Generalissimo arrived safely at Loyang, his arrival preceded by a bare hour the time at which the punitive force was ordered, or the termination of the latest truce, to proceed at once to the bombing of Sian—an operation which unquestionably would have destroyed the Generalissimo and all with him."

WHILE newspapermen were wary of mentioning names, the Briton's charges were obviously levelled at either Gen. Ho Ying-ching, War Minister and commander of the anti-rebel forces, or Gen. Feng Yu-hsiang, who was appointed to act in Gen. Chiang's stead at the head of the omnipotent Military Affairs Commission. Both were known to have been responsible for the opening of hostilities against Sian—action which could have spelled death for their superior.



Recent demonstration in Shanghai.

Gen. Ho has always been regarded as one of the leading Japanophiles in the government. In 1935 he affixed his signature to the famous Ho-Umetsu agreement, which strengthened the Nipponese grip on North China.

Gen. Feng is better known abroad as the "Christian General," who, on his own conversion, baptized his troops by army order.

In 1935, when the Japanese started an anxious search for "big names" to head the new puppet regime in North China, Nanking hastily removed Gen Feng from Japanese temptations by offering him a well-paid titular post in the capital. Because he once took money and arms from Soviet Russia and visited Moscow, Gen. Feng is still regarded as the leading Russophile in the government.

He is a crafty politician, ambitious and patient. By unburdening himself of violent and anti-Japanese outbursts, he is gradually regaining some of the popularity he once possessed. If Japan might be ready to give moral comfort to Gen. Ho, she will bitterly oppose Gen. Feng's ascendancy.

China's destines will be decided on February 15, when the Central Executive and the Central Supervisory Committees of the Kuomintang, the ruling party, meet in session in Nanking.

The political muddle has been further complicated by the return from Europe of Mr. Wang Ching-wei, former Premier, who left the country early last year to recuperate from wounds inflicted by would-be assassins. Mr. Wang may become the central figure of the anti-Chiang front.

Mr. Wang shares with the Generalissimo the political legacy left by the late Dr. Sun Yat-sen, "Father of the Chinese Revolution." Both men had served under Dr. Sun, both took leading parts in the Nationalist movement, and each dislikes the other with the utmost vigor.

In the coming struggle for power Mr. Wang may, in varying degrees, count upon the support of the so-called "Political Science faction," comprising professional politicians and militarists. These include Gen. Ho Ying-ching, Gen. Chang Chun, the Japanese-educated Foreign Minister, and a large number of military leaders, all of whom desire no war with Japan.

On the other side of the balance will be Gen. Feng Yu-hsiang and the Sian rebels, who despite their "suppression" have lost none of their vigor or influence. This group, either because of ulterior motives or because of closer contact with the anti-Nipponese groups, will favor resistance to Japan.

In the middle, holding the balance of power, will be the "Soong dynasty. To this group belong Gen. Chiang; Dr. H. H. Kung, Finance Minister, and Mr. Soong, who is almost certain of securing a very high post in the new government, which will emerge after the Nanking pourparlers.

In Spain

By Barnet Nover

The Fall Of Malaga.

FOR MORE THAN four months and until this week the fighting on all five fronts of the Spanish civil war was in a state of deadlock.

Neither side appeared to be able to break through the defenses of the opposing faction in the Madrid, Bilbao, Saragossa, Guadarramas and Malaga sectors. But this deadlock has now been broken, at least in the south, with the capture of Malaga by the rebels.

The achievement, however, is not one for which the rebels can take credit. Had Gen. Queipo de Llano had to rely solely on his Rightist fellow countrymen the likelihood is that the only victories he would at present be able to boast of would be of the same fictitious variety he has broadcast over the Seville radio day after day.

Fortunately for him he found powerful allies to do his fighting for him.

• • • •

MONTHS AGO the German and Italian wirepullers became disgusted with the incompetence of their Spanish rebel puppets. Military victory is not in the tradition of the Spanish generals. Thus it was that long ago the direction of the civil war on the rebel side was taken over by the German and Italian "advisers" with Franco.

A German general staff, taking orders from Gen. Faupel, the German envoy at Burgos, has been directing the fighting in the Madrid zone. Almost exclusively, the bombardment of Madrid, which has made a shambles of the once beautiful capital, has been in the hands of foreign Fascists. But despite tremendous efforts Madrid has held out.

It was this circumstance which gave a rather hopeful appearance to the Anglo-Italian accord on the Mediterranean last December. With the fighting in Spain in a state of stalemate and with Italy definitely commiting itself to the maintenance of the territorial integrity of Spain, it began to look as if the fires raging in the Iberian Peninsula would soon burn themselves out.

Morally, it seemed, Italy was now committed to a real hands-off policy regarding Spain. And with Mussolini washing his hands, as it was believed he would, of the Spanish civil war, Hitler, it was argued, was bound to do likewise.

It is now clear that it was taking a very naive view of the weight given by dictators to moral commitments to suppose that Mussolini would be bound by the clear implications of the Anglo-Italian Mediterranean accord. He had certainly not hesitated in the past to flout very definite legal commitments such as are embodied in the League Covenant or the 1928 nonaggression treaty with Ethiopia. For dictators, treaties are instruments of policy, to be lived up to or torn up, depending on which course paid larger dividends in power and prestige.

• • • •

AT ANY RATE the Anglo-Italian accord did not mean the cessation of the flow of Italian "volunteers" to Spain. The ink was hardly dry on that agreement when it was reliably reported that a large number of Italian troops had landed at Cadiz.

Thus reinforced, the high command directing rebel strategy decided to make a new effort to break the deadlock before British and French patience with the farcical nonintervention agreement of last August was completely used up.

The plan, it is now clear, called for simultaneous activities on the Madrid and the southern fronts. In the capital zone the attempt was renewed to cut the links uniting Madrid with the east coast. In the south Malaga was made the objective.

In the Madrid fighting the loyalists, supported by the International Socialist legion, not only held their lines but succeeded, from time to time, in taking the offensive. In the south, too, at the beginning of the new rebel drive, it appeared to be impossible to break the deadlock. While Gen. Queipo de Llano proceeded at no more than a snail's pace toward his objective the loyalists again began to press on Cordoba.

• • • •

THE NEW IMPASSE coincided with intensified efforts by Great Britain and France to put teeth into the nonintervention agreement. Notes were again sent by the London government to Berlin and Rome pleading with those nations to join in common action to isolate the Spanish civil war.

The replies sent by the Fascist dictatorships were not unfriendly. The British began to feel that only matters of detail stood in the way of the establishment of a cordon sanitaire around Spain. But again, as so often since the civil war broke out, the British beliefs have been the product of wishful thinking.

It is now clear that the clamor raised by Germany and Italian representatives on the London nonintervention committee against proposed Russian participation in a naval blockade of all Spanish ports was only a diversion designed to create further delay.

The real policy being pursued by the Fascist powers was seen in the reported dispatch by Italy of 15,000 soldiers to the rebel area in southern Spain. There are very authoritative indications that this number is not at all exaggerated. Altogether there are now between 80,000 and 90,000 German and Italian troops in Spain.

• • • •

IT WAS THE arrival of this last contingent of Italian troops that made it possible for the rebel army, nominally under the leadership of Queipo de Llano, plus the effective assistance that Italian and German warships may have rendered in the struggle for the port, that brought about the capture of Malaga.

In part, no doubt, the defenders of Malaga were caught off their guard by the suddenness with which the rebels moved, after an impasse that promised to be prolonged. But the principal reason for their defeat was the superiority of the force hurled against them. The spearpoint was Italian.

Under the circumstances it is sheer mockery to regard the fall of Malaga as a rebel victory or the struggle in Spain as a civil war. The fall of Malaga was an Italian victory in the war which the Fascist powers are and have been waging for many months in the Iberian Peninsula without benefit of declaration. It is because they will it that the war goes on. And with each passing day the ghastly tragedy that is Spain deepens.

A Mother's Prayer

By William Lyon Phelps

Now I Lay Me.

Mr. Edwin M. C. French, of North Dana, Mass., author of that admirable little book that gives the history of Senator Vest, of Missouri, and of how he came to make the most famous speech on dogs ever heard in a courtroom, informs me that the 105th anniversary of Eugene H. Pullen will come this next month, the month of March, 1937. Now the name Eugene H. Pullen meant nothing to me, nothing at all. But Mr. French tells me he was the author of one of the most well-known poems in the English language.

• • • •

He suggests that a day be set apart in this coming month in Mr. Pullen's memory, to be called "Mother's Prayer Day," or something like that. I am sorry, but I feel that we have already too many special days and too many special weeks, and just as one individual expression of opinion, I don't want any more and should be glad to lose many we have. but I am grateful to Mr. French for reminding me of the name of the author of this poem, for whom and for which I have deep reverence. Mothers and little children have repeated it millions of times.

I once heard a revised version of it that went something like this, and while the new version would not be so good for children as the regular one, it has distinct merits.

Now I lay me down to sleep;
I pray the Lord my soul to keep.
And wake I soon or wake I never,
I give my soul to God forever.

That austere scholar, John Quincy Adams, every night of his life, in his work as Ambassador in Europe, in the White House while President, and in his long service in Congress, said the original prayer his mother taught him; "Now I lay me down to sleep."

Connecticut Assembly Receives Model Plan of Government

Governor's Commission Finishes 18-Month Analysis.

By the United Press.

Hartford, Conn., Feb. 10.—The Connecticut Legislature today had under advisement one of the most vital governmental reforms since adoption of the Fundamental Orders 300 years ago—establishment of a virtual Utopian form of operation.

Completing an 18-month survey of the State's 112 departments, commissions, boards, officers and scattered agencies, the Governor's commission to study departmental reorganization suggested sweeping changes, which included:

1. Election of the Governor for a four-year term, in even-numbered years intervening between Presidential elections, to eliminate national sentiment from swaying State elections.

2. Appointment, rather than the election, of the comptroller, secretary of State, treasurer and attorney general.

3. Establishment of a legislative council to engage continuously in study, research and planning.

4. Creation of an executive budget, under direct supervision of the Governor, combining divisions of accounting, personnel, purchasing and treasury.

Merit System Advocated.

5. Adoption of a merit system of personnel, to eliminate patronage and political evils.

6. Establishment of a Governor's cabinet, consisting of administrative heads of all departments, to advise and consult with the Governor "in co-ordinating and integrating the work of the executive department."

7. Compelling independent audits of all State accounts at least once a year.

8. Empowering the Governor to remove executing officers from office after a hearing on written charges has disclosed just causes for dismissal.

These measures, the commission stated, "are essential if the General Assembly and the Governor are to be given the necessary means to provide for the efficient and economical conduct of the State's affairs without endangering the rights and liberties of the citizens."

After an exhaustive study of the 112 governmental departments, many of which were found to be overlapping and duplicating functions, the commission suggested a consolidation of duties under the following 18 departments:

Drastic Consolidation Urged.

1. Executive Offices — Governor, Governor's cabinet, Lieutenant Governor, secretary of State, attorney general, board of pardons and Governor's staff.

2. Finance and Control—Budgeting, personnel, purchasing, accounting and treasury.

3. Taxation — Municipal taxation and finance, corporation, inheritance, excise taxes, including gasoline and foreign insurance company taxes.

4. Public Safety—State police, motor vehicles, aeronautics, boxing and wrestling, traffic regulation, liquor control and occupational licensing.

5. Military—Management of military forces, armories, equipment and other military property.

6. Education—Activities of board of education, including normal schools, teachers' college and State trade schools, State college, agricultural experiment stations, local libraries, education of deaf and teachers' retirement.

7. Public welfare — Non-institutional welfare activities, including unemployment relief and aid to blind, and certain activities with respect to mental hospitals, tuberculosis sanitoria, other hospitals, penal and correctional institutions.

8. Health—Activities of department of health, pure foods and drugs, regulation of professions and vocations, mosquito elimination.

9. Industrial Relations—Activities of department of labor and factory inspection, workmen's compensation, mediation and arbitration.

10. Highways—Activities of highway department, and special highway and bridge commissions.

Public Works Grouped.

11. Public works—Activities of State water commission and other water agencies, building construction, maintenance of general State real property.

12. Agriculture—Activities of departments of agriculture and domestic animals, agricultural activities of dairy and food departments.

13. Parks and forests—State parks, forests and historical sites.

14. Fisheries and game—Activities of board of fisheries and game and shell fish commissioners.

15. Banking—All banking jurisdiction.

16. Insurance—All insurance activities, except taxation.

17. Public utilities—Activities of public utilities commission, except technical regulation of motor vehicles.

18. Professional and vocational licensing—Examining and licensing activities of 21 examining and licensing boards.

Efficiency Put First.

"This program," the commission advised, "has the single aim of providing an administrative organization for the State government which will be manageable and which will be capable of providing the State service economically and efficiently.

"The program contemplates making the Governor the chief executive of the State in fact as well as in name, and is designated to establish clear and definite clines of authority running from the Governor to the subordinate employes of the proposed departments and to define definitely the jurisdiction of all executive agencies."

Under the present form of government, the commission found, "the principles of administrative decentralization have obviously been carried to an extreme. These methods are characteristically American and have long been applied to protect citizens against abuse of governmental power. Carried to the extreme that they have been, they can only result in unwarranted inefficiency and extravagance."

Shorthand Reporting Board Sought in Bill

Bills seeking to establish a board of shorthand reporting, with three members named by the President and confirmed by the Senate, and to authorize all executive departments of the Government to employ as many shorthand reporters as necessary were introduced yesterday by Senator Connally (Democrat), of Texas.

The shorthand reporters so employed by the Government departments would not be subject to the civil service laws under the Connally bill.

Bank Trading In Low-Grade Bonds Assailed

By the United Press.

Leo T. Crowley, chairman of the Federal Deposit Insurance Co., last night assailed what he termed the "bad practice of some of our banks" in purchasing low-grade bonds for speculation rather than for yield.

"We have noticed," he said at a press conference, "that when some bank's earnings are low there is a tendency to get in and out of the market in low-grade bonds. This is a bad practice and we're trying to discourage it."

He said the FDIC has no regulations governing banks in this respect.

Does Not Want Power.

"Nor do we want the power to do so," Crowley added. "If we have authority to specify how a bank must manage its business the officers of the bank could point blame at us if some investment they made in accordance with our regulations didn't happen to work out right."

He said the nearest to control the FDIC has over its member banks engaged in dealing with low-grade bonds is to point out, if such operations become too extensive, that it is unsound banking practice under the FDIC's interpretation of the law.

Crowley also made public a report on the FDIC's activities in which he points out that as the banking business becomes more profitable and more attractive to investors, there will be increasing pressure for creation of new banks.

Sees Weakened System.

"Unless effective and proper control of chartering is maintained," he said, "our banking system will inevitably be weakened."

Discussing this phase of the report, Crowley said that in several instances where the FDIC has refused a projected admission to the corporation's insurance coverage, State commissioners have granted charters.

"This," Crowley said, "is due in many cases to local pressure exerted on State officials."

Crowley's report also showed, among other things:

The total income of the corporation for the six months ended December 31, 1936, was $22,3"4,205.28 of which $18,104,565.08 was assessments on insured banks, and $4,-269,640.20 interest on securities owned.

Total expenses and losses during this period amounted to $3,031,-898.67.

242 Banks Eliminated.

During the 1936 calendar year, there was a net reduction of 151 in the number of insured banks. Ninety-one banks were admitted to insurance and 242 were eliminated, of which 241 were by reason of closing, merger, consolidation or voluntary liquidation. There were 14,030 operating insured banks on December 31.

In the last six months of 1936 there were suspensions of 15 insured banks with deposits of $7,-353,000, making a total of 75 insolvent insured banks in which the corporation has made payments to depositors since January 1, 1934. All but five in every thousand of their 88,912 depositors have been fully protected.

Line Selection Board To Convene March 8

Convening of a line selection board, to recommend officers of line of the Navy for promotion to the grades of lieutenant commander and lieutenant, was announced yesterday by Secretary Swanson. The board will convene in the Navy Department March 8.

Rear Admiral Henry E. Lackey, director of the shore establishments division, will preside over the board, whose personnel includes eight other members. Lieut. Comdr. Paul W. Steinhagen, of the Bureau of Navigation, is recorder for the board.

Agency Evaded U. S. Law, Says Sen. La Follette

Charges Detectives Failed to Register in Wisconsin, Reads Old Order.

By the Associated Press.

A long inquiry into industrial espionage drove to another climax yesterday when Senator La Follette (Progressive), Wisconsin, angrily accused the Pinkerton Detective Agency of "evading" State and Federal law.

La Follette, chairman of the Senate Civil Liberties Committee, said the Pinkerton agency had circumvented a Wisconsin statute requiring registration of operatives engaged in labor under-cover investigations. He drew his conclusions from testimony introduced at the committee's inquiry into alleged interference with collective bargaining.

Later he read from a Pinkerton general order a passage which he interpreted as a "clear intent to evade" a Federal law prohibiting use by the Federal Government of private detectives.

Two Bills Described.

The order described how the Federal statute, enacted in 1893 after the Homestead riots, had been "overcome" by Government officials "rendering" two bills, one on plain paper bearing no reference to the agency.

Robert Pinkerton, president of the agency, agreed with La Follette this order was a "clear intent to evade the law." He and other Pinkerton officials added, however, that the order had been written many years ago and they knew of no instance of Government officials employing the agency since enactment of the law.

La Follette directed Pinkerton to provide the committee with all records from 1893 to the present, covering any service his organization might have performed for Federal employes.

Charges Evasion.

The Wisconsin registration requirement, La Follette said, was avoided by labeling informants in industrial plants "watchmen."

La Follette also accused the Pinkerton agency of violating an agreement to provide the committee with all written reports submitted by operatives in industrial plants after the agency was subpenaed.

Asher Rossetter, Pinkerton general manager, said an order had gone out from New York headquarters to all division mnagers to discontinue written reports on labor matters as soon as the subpena was served, but La Follette introduced affidavits which he said showed reports had been written since that time but not turned over to the committee.

Both Pinkerton and Rossetter denied knowledge of these reports.

"Is this a fair sample of the cooperation Pinkerton has given the committee?" La Follette asked.

"I hope not," Rossetter said. "We have endeavored to co-operate."

Questioned on Reports.

"Why haven't these reports been turned over to the committee under your agreement with us?" La Follette demanded of Rossetter.

"I knew nothing about it," Rossetter replied. "The responsibility rests with Davis. If an officer of the agency violated instructions I cannot accept responsibility for him."

The committee heard testimony that General Motors Corporation hired the Pinkerton agency early in 1934 to "keep it informed" on strikes, union activities, and "labor racketeers."

Ralph Dudley, vice president of the agency, said he set up a special office in Detroit to handle the General Motors business.

Sought Information.

A "Mr. Hale," public relations officer for General Motors, Dudley testified, arranged for the agency to collect information from all parts of the country on "public opinion" and the "attitude of employes to various types of industrial relationships."

The data assembled included information on "local situations promising danger to the company's interest," he said, citing the recent Auto-Lite strike in Toledo.

That strike was led by "notorious and avowed Communists," he asserted.

Senate records showed that General Motors paid $167,000 for Pinkerton services in 1935.

Two Tried Hits Lead Bookings For New Week

Well-Known Stage Plays Are Coming to Town to Rival Season's Films.

At the National Theater next week, the attraction will be the Norman Bel Geddes production of "Dead End," a play of New York's contrasting social strata, with its amazing East River cul-de-sac setting. The play was written by Sidney Kingsley, the young author of "Men in White," and presents a vivid study of underprivileged youth in a great city. In addition to the juveniles in the cast—whose presence necessitates an 8 o'clock curtain nights—principal roles are played by the veteran May Buckley, Mady Correll, Eve Bailey, Warren Ashe and a large ensemble in lesser assignments. There will be the usual Wednesday and Saturday matinees.

"Tobacco Road," that astonishingly sturdy drama of the Georgia backwoods, which is steadily creeping up on the long-run record held by "Abie's Irish Rose" in New York, will pay its third visit to Washington next week at the Belasco Theater, with Taylor Holmes in the role of Jeeter Lester. The supporting cast includes Florence Gerald, Sally Sanderson, Harry Townes and Pitt Herbert. So well known is the story of this squalid life on the backroads of the deep South that it is not necessary now to outline it again. Matinees are given at the Belasco on Thursday and Saturday.

Freddie Bartholomew, foremost of the cinema's juvenile actors; Madeleine Carroll, Tyrone Power, Sir Guy Standing, C. Aubrey Smith and Virginia Field are the principal players in the Twentieth Century-Fox production of "Lloyds of London," to be seen for the first time locally on the screen at Loew's Palace Theater for the week beginning Friday. This is a thrilling film drama, executed in the grand manner, that combines both a sketchy outline of the growth of the great insurance house and a romantic narrative which in itself would be sufficient to carry any play to success. The usual short subjects will complete the bill.

Pat O'Brien, supported by little Sybil Jason and Humpry Bogart, will be the pictured star at the Warner Brothers' Earle Theater for the week beginning tomorrow, in "The Great O'Malley." In this subject, O'Brien again plays an officer of the law, just as he has done in several of his earlier pictures. The story is one of intense human appeal and affords its star an ample outlet for his ebullient Celtic energies and talents. The stage portion of next week's entertainment will be supplied by that unique personality, Cilly Feindt, who recently created something of a furore in New York as the first and only "horse conductor."

A mystery story that is said to be unique in design and enactment will occupy the screen at Loew's Capitol Theater for the week beginning tomorrow, when Edmund Lowe and Florence Rice, daughter of the famous sports commentator and creator of the Grantland Rice "Sportlights" for the screen, will be seen in a new release, bearing the title of "Under Cover of Night." The technique of this picture is such as to permit the audience to follow the detective step by step and share in all of the varied emotions he experiences. On the stage, Stepin Fetchit, that laziest of all Senegambians, will headline the bill, together with Clyde McCoy and His Sugar Blues Orchestra.

Miriam Hopkins will be the pictured star at RKO-Keith's Theater for the week beginning tomorrow in the first British-made film in which she has appeared, Alexander Korda's production of "Men Are Not Gods," for release in America through United Artists. In this subject, Miss Hopkins is supported by Gertrude Lawrence, seen earlier this season on the stage of the National Theater with Noel Coward in his cycle of nine one-act plays; Sebastian Shaw, and A. E. Matthews, distinguished English character actor. The story is said to open in light vein and then mount to one of the most dramatic climaxes recently revealed upon the screen.

Three stars will be seen on the screen of the Warner Brothers' Metropolitan Theater for the week beginning tomorrow, when "The Devil's Playground" will be the major screen feature of the bill. These three are Richard Dix, Dolores Del Rio and Chester Morris. The story is an exciting one, as goes without saying with these vibrant stars in roles admirably adjusted to their individual capabilities. The bill will be rounded out by abbreviated camera subjects and a full 15-minute reel of news events.

The Columbia Theater, beginning tomorrow, will renew the downtown run of "Champagne Waltz," the Zukor Silver Jubilee release, in which the costellar roles are taken by Gladys Swarthout and Fred MacMurray. This is a gay musical piece that is marked by spirited action and delightful songs. The supporting cast is wholly adequate and the production a handsome one. Short reels and news events will complete the program.

"Imitation of Life," the film version of the Fannie Hurst novel, will be revived at the Rialto Theater for the week beginning next Sunday. The principal roles are played by Claudette Colbert, Warren William, Rochelle Hudson, Ned Sparks, Alan Hale and Louise Beavers. "Bride of Samoa," a short subject, will be the foremost supplementary attraction.

The screen version of Sidney Kingsley's Pulitzer Prize play of "Men in White" will be revived at the Little Theater for the week beginning next Sunday. The principal roles are played by Clark Gable, Myrna Loy, Jean Hersholt and Elizabeth Allan.

Beginning with the usual matinee performance on Sunday, Col. James J. Lake will bring to his Gayety Theater the Independent Burlesque Association's new "Show of All Nations." The comedy stars of this aggregation are Italy's gift to comedy, Pinto and Della, assisted by Britain's pride, Billy Ainsley. The feminine roster is led by the Spanish beauty, Margo Lopez, and the Irish colleen, Gladys McCormack.

Anne Nichols and Bartlett Cormack Appear to Have Something in Their Ribald Comedy of Hollywood

Play Possesses Merits That Justify Its Continuation as a Valuable Addition to the Season's Gay Frivolities: Joe E. Brown Writes a Letter of Explanation; Guy Wonders' Narrow Escape; Notes and Chatter of the Current Theater.

HAVING paid a belated visit to the Belasco Theater on Tuesday night to view Anne Nichols' production of Bartlett Cormack's comedy of "Hey Diddle Diddle"—having been precluded from according myself that pleasure earlier in the week—I came away convinced that here is a valuable theatrical property. Perhaps it may not turn out to be so valuable a box-office item as "Abie's Irish Rose," with which Miss Nichols' name, of course, is inseparably linked, but it has many qualities of excellence to commend it to audiences in search of frivolous and ribald amusement.

BELL.

Although there are certain elements in the fabrication of this piece that are vaguely reminiscent of "Once in a Lifetime," "Boy Meets Girl" and the long list of other plays that have lampooned Hollywood in a satirical but largely good-natured way, the adventures of the three "extra" girls trying to get along in the film capital still possesses a freshness, swiftness of pace and high sense of humor that combine to afford a sprightly evening in the theater.

The whole thing needs to be lashed a little more snugly together, revisions naturally are in order—and are being made—and all of the ministrations usually bestowed upon plays a-borning need to be showered upon this one, but, in the large view, we should say that Miss Nichols and Mr. Cormack "have something," as the current saying goes.

Others to the contrary, notwithstanding, I still think that the comedy is especially well cast. Conway Tearle, in the throes of a fortnight's illness—through which he has played on the traditional theory that "the show must go on"—does a splendid piece of work as the temperamental director, who might be identified as any one of several of like ilk on the West Coast. Adele Rowland, in private life Mrs. Conway Tearle, likewise acquits herself with complete success in one of the lesser roles of the play. But it is the work of the youngsters in the cast that pulls the play out of the class of mediocrity and gives a flash, a verve and a tingle that few others have been able to boast.

Alice White, as a jittery little Southern girl—from No'th Dakota—Martha Sleeper, as the emotional, romantic interest of the plot, and Lucille Ball, as the wise-cracking, hard-berled aspirant for fame on the screen, all demonstrate abilities that should carry them far.

Altogether, in viewing the three acts of this new harpooning of the cinema I had an amusing and entirely pleasant evening at the Belasco. If, as it is reported by grapevine, Miss Nichols has posted two weeks' notice of closing on this production, I have not the slightest notion of what may have prompted her to do so; I hope she has not, and that these nebulous rumors are wholly false.

There is one young man in the cast of "Hey Diddle Diddle" whose merit has not been given its just due since the play opened on Monday night. That would be Russell Hardie, the Hollywood actor who appears in the romantic lead opposite Miss Sleeper. Mr. Hardie has the gift of perfect diction, a naturalness and poise and a personable stage presence that strike me as being a little unusual among present-day juvenile leading men. His work in this play is admirable in every respect. It deserves far greater acclaim than it has received.

A great many were disappointed upon the recent occasion of the President's Birthday Ball celebrations by the failure of Joe E. Brown, one of the screen's most popular comedians, to put in an appearance. The reasons for his failure to appear were set forth in this space at the time.

On the Joe E. Brown letterhead, under date of February 8, this note reached us by air mail yesterday:

Dear Friend: Many thanks for that squib in your column of February 1 about my failure to arrive in Washington in time for the President's Ball.

Gosh, believe me, I tried like the dickens to get there and didn't turn back until they told me it was utterly impossible to arrive in time.

Incidentally, I was fogged-in twice on my return journey and finally had to drive in my auto from Palmdale, which is 45 miles from Los Angeles. You might get a detailed account of my trip from Hardie Meakin, as I have just written him.

Thanks again and with all good wishes, sincerely,

(Signed) JOE E.

Guy Wonders, one learns from authoritative sources, recently had a narrow squeak. Driving into Washington over icy roads from one of his territorial junkets as divisional supervisor of stage bookings for the Warner Brother theaters, functioning under the zone managership of John J. Payette, his car skidded and turned over on its side. The cherubic Mr. Wonders had to be hauled out through the top door, fortunately having had presence of mind enough to shut off his ignition. Wise Guy. By the time he reached home, he was adorned with more bruises and black-and-blue spots than a leopard has stripes or a tiger has spots. Or am I wrong?

It is Mr. Melvin D. Hildreth, Washington attorney and oracle of the tent show, who informs me that when the Ringling Brothers-Barnum and Bailey Circus plays the National Capital this spring it will stay for three days instead of the habitual two.

The dates of the showing here have not as yet been definitely set, but they will be approximately at the same time of year the biggest of the shows presented under canvas always plays here.

Mr. Hildreth, whom I met in the lobby of the Belasco on Tuesday night, also reminded me that Bartlett Cormack's play of "The Racket" opened in the Belasco Theater several years ago. Mr. Cormack seems to like the Belasco almost as well as Mr. Hildreth does the circus.

None-of-My-Business Note.

What are you giving up for Lent?

They Brought Romance to Lloyd's

In Hollywood

With JIMMY FIDDLER

Hollywood, Feb. 10.—Settin' Around (RKO)—Browsing through this studio today, I was struck anew by the infinite patience required to create a motion picture. From the day production commences until the final preview, scores of cogs fit meticulously into the task of grinding out scene after scene. Director, star, property men, hair dresser — every cog fits into the wheel. When there is a slipped cog, the entire machinery is thrown into temporary mistiming.

MIRIAM HOPKINS.

Miriam Hopkins and Colin Clive were enacting an intensely dramatic scene from "L'Escadrille." They rehearsed fully 20 times, then played the scene for 11 takes. Once, a fly on the camera lens spoiled a sequence. Then a mouse squeaked in the recording booth (most unusual, this was). Another scene was ruined when the recording machine required reloading. For each new take, the entire machinery was set into motion. At times like these, I wonder at the patience of directors and players and technicians.

From Anatol Litvak, director of "L'Escadrille" and very much in love with Miriam Hopkins), I got this interesting story: He came here from Europe to direct this picture, and brought with him a great quantity of uniforms, medals, and other props. In this same luggage, Litvak brought over some champagne. When he went into customs, he learned that none of his luggage could be released because of the champagne. Consequently, his film cutter had to take out a California liquor license to get the champagne in, so the movie props could be released. Thus Litvak's assistant is now a licensed liquor dealer, and a few bottles of champagne cost the director $500.

Dropped in on "China Passage" just in time to catch the final. Vinton Haworth was having difficulty dancing. He was in an automobile accident New Year's Eve, and a badly injured leg is taking its time to heal. The man was actually on crutches, which a stand-in held while Vinton went through dance sequences that must have been excruciatingly painful. After each scene, he literally fell off the dance floor. "Doctors told me to exercise this leg to keep it from stiffening," he told me between pain-tightening lips, "and, boy, if they could see me now, they'd see I'm obeying orders!"

Cameras were not shooting on the "Stepping Toes" set for the reason that Ginger Rogers, in slamming a door had slammed it so hard that a knob, one hinge and a panel flew off. "Result of practice," whispered a set worker.

After I had idled a moment with Ginger and Fred Astair, a young actor named Phil Huston called me aside. He had this nice story about Miss Rogers: Several years ago, he and Ginger danced in contests together and won many cups. Their ways parted, and she became famous. He went to the New York stage (and eventually found himself on his way West with an RKO contract). Almost every other thought that came to him during his trip was, "Will Ginger remember me?" When Phil stepped off the plane in Hollywood, Miss Rogers, who had heard he was coming out, was on hand to greet him.

New York, Feb. 10.

HARRY COHEN, president of Columbia Films, and Frank Capra, producer of "Lost Horizons," were anxious to preview that picture the other day. Such previews are customary in Hollywood to determine from unbiased comment what cuts should be made. Secretly, therefore, they sped to Riverside and prevailed upon the theater operator to exhibit the movie. "I'll cover the orchestra," Cohen told Capra, "while you go up to the balcony and listen for comments there" . . . Upstairs went Capra and listened carefully while the movie was unreeled. Except for some grunts not a single word of comment could be heard. After 3 hours the audience filed out—with Capra still trying to overhear some conversation regarding his brain child . . . Not until he reached the street did he realize why the silence. The entire balcony had been reserved by the 300 members of the nearby Indian reservation!

Thursday night the Cotton Club doorman was summoned to West 154th Street Court charged with violating Section 516 of the penal code. Complaint was made by a Harlemite who had arrived 20 minutes late for the phone reservation he made. Magistrate Sylvester dismissed the case, explaining: "I myself have come 10 minutes late there and couldn't get my reservation."

WILLIAM HAADE, who was a steel worker here last year and who now is in Hollywood for the picture, "Kid Galahad," was called upon to do a fight scene for that movie. His screen opponent was Hank Hankenson, who fought Maxie Rosenbloom recently. Neither one had ever engaged in a stage fight before. When Hankenson drew blood from Haade's mouth the steel worker uncorked a genuine right and broke three of the pugilist's ribs . . . Gummo Marx, who is arranging for the sale of a play, was told by the playwright that the producer-prospect is hard of hearing. "Don't worry," Gummo assured him. "I'll write my letters in heavy ink!"

MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

"Tell Me What to Do," Pleads Girl Who Is Bewildered By Despicable Actions of Man She Loves.

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Five months ago I met a young man and fell very much in love with him. He declared his love for me and we are always together when he is not working. It seems he went with another girl before he came to Washington; a girl he had known for three years; but that they broke off just before he came here. However, she has been coming down here to see him the past month, and they have made up. She is in love with him, too, although he has said some ugly things about her to me. Furthermore, he told certain persons that we are engaged to be married, although we had no understanding of that kind.

• • • •

Then a short time ago he told me he and the other girl had recently got married, which, of course, I didn't believe. He said I could investigate the record if I wished and learn the truth. So I wrote a letter to the town where he said they were married, and learned he was lying. I didn't mean to tell him what I had learned, but my girl friend let it slip. Then he told me that he and she were going to be married, sooner or later.

• • • •

Now, on top of all this, he has asked me to marry him, but I have refused. I have always been popular with young men and have two boy friends I could marry any time. He knows this, but also knows that I have never fallen in love before. Do you think I did right in letting him know I love him? Do you think he is just handing me a line in saying he loves me? Do you think he is trying to make me jealous by saying he is going to marry the other girl? He still says he loves me. Do you think I should forget him, and tell him I was mistaken in thinking I loved him (although I really do)? Please, Miss Haworth, tell me what to do. Sincerely yours, EVELYN.

Give Him Up.

DEAR EVELYN: It would be a waste of time to try to make head or tail out of your boy friend's contradictory statements and actions. He seems to be a completely irresponsible person, and a cad to boot. Only a man utterly lost to decency could say "ugly things" one day about a girl whose favor he had enjoyed and on another day declare his intention of marrying her sooner or later.

• • • •

No doubt he is trying to make you squirm by leading you to believe he is thinking of marrying the other girl. In asking you to marry him he is probably only trying to learn just how securely he has the sucker on the hook. As I have said here before it is time enough for a girl to give verbal expression of her love for a man after he has asked her to marry him. But don't worry about having admitted your infatuation for him. It doesn't make a great deal of difference one way or another, as I am positive nothing you might have said or left unsaid, and nothing you might have done or left undone could have brought sanity, decency and beauty into your association with such a low-bred, unpredictable person.

• • • •

By all means forget him. He can only bring you humiliation, heartache and anxiety. M. H.

A Mother's Problem.

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I have a child 4 years old. I also have a very conscientious colored woman who looks after her as well as any child can be cared for by a person other than her own parents. However, every afternoon when I come home she tells me how lonely my little girl is and how she longs for playmates. There are very few small children near us and those who are don't seem to be on hand very often.

• • • •

I know there must be numerous mothers who have a good deal the same problem, who are forced to work and provide some care for their children during the day. I have been wondering if there isn't some mother with a little girl around 4 years of age whom she would be glad to leave with mine during the day, to be cared for by my maid.

• • • •

I think an arrangement could be worked out whereby the child could be brought to our house and called for in the evening, and given a nourishing lunch and a nap as is done at nursery schools. I would not expect to be paid for the arrangement, although it seems only fair that the maid should receive some recompense for her extra effort. I have talked it over with my maid and she is willing to cooperate.

• • • •

I thought through your column I might hear of some mother who would be interested in this arrangement purely on an experimental basis, with no obligation on either side to continue the arrangement if it should prove unsatisfactory. I shall appreciate your interest exceedingly. I live at 2436 Tunlaw road northwest, and my telephone number is Emerson 3618. Anyone interested may telephone and ask for MRS. KIDWELL.

• • • •

DEAR MRS. KIDWELL: It is just possible such an arrangement might work out to the satisfaction of all concerned, providing you contact a sensible, fair-minded mother with a well-trained and well-behaved child, and providing your own child has none of those objectionable personality traits which often characterize the tenderly nurtured only child. At any rate, it is an experiment worth trying, I suppose; and in a way, you are to be complimented on the originality and daring of the idea. I have decided it is best to publish your address and telephone number, so that any interested may know in advance whether or not the location is sufficiently convenient, and in order to reduce secretarial effort to a minimum. M. H.

Daffodil Decorations.

Daffodils are useful in decorating the home because of their neutral colors. Various tones of yellow, cream and orange with foliage of pale green and stems of grayish brown prevail—all colors which blend well. They make gorgeous mass arrangements in a large bowl, combine with other flowers to give light and contrast to darker colors, and a single stem appears handsome in a bud vase.

Pattern 5787.

IF YOU'RE LOOKING for something in a scrap quilt and one that's easy to piece, choose Garden of Friendship. Gay patches make the flowers; more subdued or darker ones, the flower pots. You can see at a glance how easily the 8-inch block would go together. In olden times, friends contributed scraps to such a quilt as this, giving it its name, Garden of Friendship. In pattern 5787 you will find the Block Chart, an illustration of the finished block in actual size, showing contrasting fabrics; accurately drawn pattern pieces; an illustration of the entire quilt; three color schemes; step-by-step directions for making the quilt, and exact yardage requirements.

To obtain this pattern send 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) to The Washington Post, Household Arts Department, 259 West Fourteenth street, New York, N. Y. Be sure to write plainly your name, address and pattern number.

Bold Surrealist Touch to Spring Wardrobe Will Give Wearer Chic for Months to Come

If you don't dare anything else surrealistic, try a handbag. It will definitely stamp you as one who knows what's going on. The surrealist petit point bag above lends a colorful touch to a chic black afternoon ensemble. Variations in blues, grays, beige and black make a stunning blend of color.

French Art Movement Inspires Weird and Striking Color Effects.

By Ethel Ehlen.
The Post Fashion Editor.

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—If you would be up to the minute in style—and hope to remain that way—rush out immediately and get yourself something with the surrealist touch—dress, hat, gloves, handbag or ornament.

While many influences, including the Coronation, the Duke of Windsor, the Spanish War, and even the novel "Gone With the Wind," are entering into the current style picture, surrealism bids fair to have the strongest effect. Miss Ruth Hutton, of the Cooper Union Art faculty, predicts it will exert the greatest influence on fashions in 1937, and will manifest itself particularly in new color combinations and in accessories of fantastic design.

Surrealism is defined as "a French art and literary movement which deals with the fantastic and expresses the subconscious activities of the mind by presenting images without order or sequence." Schiaperelli was the first designer to apply the movement to dress. The current exhibitions here of surrealist art have had much influence on the American fashion showings.

Surrealism probably will express itself most in color combinations drawn from paintings by Tanguly, Man Ray, Pierre Roy, Ernst, Dali and others. Some of these combinations include black with citron and cherry; yellowish green with vivid and dark blue green; turquoise with gold and coral; light blue with brown and flame; topaz with navy and parlor pink with black.

In prints, surrealism is reflected both in color and in fantastic design. Among the novelties are white Greek statues on black background and vari-colored autographs of motion picture stars on pale pink.

Trimmings and accessories reflect the surrealist influence in weird manner. On one suit shown here Schiaparelli has used a bureau drawer effect, with rows of pockets like drawers down the front. On a pair of dark gloves she has used bright red tips to denote fingernails.

Surrealistic hats show strange designs. One navy blue sailor in the Schiaparelli collection is trimmed with three flags, French, American and British, flying from tiny flagpoles on the front of the crown. Another hat has a stiff crown which opens revealing a powder box and mirror.

Bags for spring and summer have gone surrealist in a big way and exhibit all sorts of wild color combinations and designs.

TODAY'S HEALTH TALK

By Dr. Irving S. Cutter.

Tonsils—Out or In?

(A Fireside Tale.)

During the Christmas holidays, while grandmother was visiting us, something was said about Agnes' tonsils. Her favorite grandchild had been told by the family physician that her tonsils should come out at the first favorable opportunity.

Grandmother looked at Agnes appraisingly and remarked: "I do not understand why so much fuss is made nowadays about tonsils. When I was a youngster back in New England no one had to submit to such an operation. Old Dr. Twitchell wouldn't permit it. He carried us all through scarlet fever and never once mentioned the fact that the glands in the throat should be cut out."

Fred, who was studying medicine, explained that in recent years physicians had acquired much new information about disease. "Since you were a girl, Grandma, the whole science of bacteriology has been born and now laboratory workers can identify germs, many of which are responsible for disease. If microbes are found lurking in the tiny channels (crypts) of the tonsils, it is well to have the glands removed."

Complaining of Pains.

The youngster's mother then entered the conversation. "We took Agnes to the doctor because she was complaining of aches and pains in her muscles and joints. When she wakens in the morning her knees are stiff and it is only after a half hour or so of walking around that they limber up."

Whereupon Grandmother looked very wise and said: "Why, Frances, the child has growing pains. We all had them—every one in our family. I remember that my oldest daughter, Jeanette, who shot up like a weed when she was about 15, complained of those pains for nearly a year. Dear Jeanette, I wish she were here now. You remember that she was the one who died of heart disease five or six years after she married Mr. Chase, who owned the pottery down by Faulkner's mill."

Here was our medical student's chance and he grabbed it avidly, looking straight at Grandma. "Just as I was saying," he remarked, "we have learned much about infection. Those growing pains you mention had nothing to do with growth. They were mild manifestations of rheumatism, which we now know is due to the absorption of bacterial poisons. The chances are that Aunt Jeannette suffered from diseased glands within the throat, and that poisons from those factories affected the heart. If she had had her tonsils out at the first sign of pain the chances are she would be living today."

Explained by Doctor.

Just then the doorbell rang and who should appear but Dr. Bostwick, who came to pay his respects to Grandmother. After greetings had been exchanged, Fred asked the doctor to tell something about the danger of pus pockets within the body.

Taking pencil and paper, Dr. Bostwick sketched the location of the lymph glands in the throat. He told about the numerous attacks of inflammation sustained by these glands—tonsilitis and sore throat—and showed how abscesses, called quinsy, sometimes formed.

"Every one of these attacks," he said, may leave small areas of active inflammation in which pus may be produced. When I examined Agnes I was able to squeeze several drops from her left tonsil. The reason she is not ill now is because her own blood is so healthy that it is neutralizing many of these toxins. Should some illness come on which would reduce her resistance and sap her strength, bacteria might grow luxuriantly and some morning she might find several of her joints badly swollen and inflamed. In such circumstances the heart is sometimes affected."

Grandmother surrendered gracefully, saying: "Well, I suppose it's for the best. I remember when we had candles and later kerosene lamps, but now there are electric elevators, ice boxes and radios. It's about like those things, I guess."

Wild Rice Cake Menu Unusual Luncheon Dish

This week, national rice week, it is especially fitting for housewives to include rice in their menus. But no matter how interesting you make the rice look and taste, you may have some left over.

One reader of The Post suggests an interesting way to use left-over wild rice. (Other rice may be substituted.) Combine ¾ cup rice, 4 strips bacon, chopped fine, and 2 eggs. Form the mixture into small cakes and fry them in butter. The recipe may be varied to suit the amount of rice you have on hand or the number of people you wish to serve.

This makes an excellent luncheon dish and may be served with or without sirup.

Early Travel Training Good For Children

By Alice Clarissa Richmond.

WHEN SALLY was about 15 she and her mother took a trip together. They went to a neighboring city to pass a couple of days in a hotel. It occurred to the mother to take advantage of the occasion to teach Sally how to get about in the world. Everyone travels sooner or later, and how to travel properly is a matter of experience and training.

Most people have to learn it in the school of hard knocks. And most young people are wretchedly uncomfortable when they first go about alone. How to call a porter, get a taxi, enter and register at a hotel, summon a chambermaid; whom and when and how much to tip—knowledge of these things is essential to a good traveler. They all can be learned from books of etiquette, but are not really known until tried out in real life.

On this trip Sally had her first taste of practical experience in traveling. She it was who called the porter, gave him his directions and later tipped him. She told the taxi driver where to go and paid him, herself calculating the suitable tip from what her mother told her—"a dime for anything less than a dollar, 10 per cent for anything more." At the hotel she attended to the registration, paid the restaurant checks and gave the necessary dimes and quarters for casual service. She even made out for herself a list of "things a traveler should know" to be added to from time to time as a kind of reference book.

Sally went home not yet a thoroughly experienced traveler, but a traveler with some experience. She at least is not ever likely to go through the bad half hours so many youngsters endure while they puzzle out what tip to leave for the maid and whether the bellboy expects anything more.

'Patriotic' Meal Is Timely Plan For February

'Birthday Month' Affords Excellent Opportunity for Unusual Menus.

By Rebekah Blake.

ALTHOUGH FEBRUARY is a short month, is has several famous days crowded into it. The birthdays of Lincoln, Washington, Edison and Lindbergh, are all excellent excuses for celebrating. Valentine's Day is also a good time for a party.

If you are entertaining tomorrow, why not have a Lincoln luncheon? Carry out the simplicity idea in your table decorations, using the national colors with a red and white checked table cloth and blue willow Chinaware. Bone handled knives and forks, if you have them, are also reminders of the early life of this man. A little log cabin will make an attractive center piece for the table.

Have a simple menu. Sandwiches are good to whet the appetites. Garnish these with bright colored vegetables as spiento strips, radish flowers, green pepper borders and slices of firm, red tomatoes. Fancy designs may be made on the sandwiches with thin slices of pickles or olives.

Clear Consomme
Sandwiches
Jellied Aspic Salad
Coffee
Strawberry shortcake

Midnight Frolic Sandwich.

4 slices of rye bread
1 tomato
2 ounces caviar
2 hard boiled eggs
2 ounces genuine roquefort cheese

Serve open. Arrange on the slice of bread half the cheese and half the sliced tomato. On the other slice arrange half the caviar and half the hard boiled egg. Garnish with olive, pickle and chopped onion.

Muffin Sandwich.

2 ounces celery
4 ounces genuine roquefort cheese
1 ounce whipped cream
1½ tomatoes
6 bran muffins
2 ounces butter
3 olives
2 lettuce leaves

Cut muffins in three slices. Mix butter and whipped cream together and spread on one side of each slice of muffin. Mix the roquefort cheese and celery, and spread on muffin on top of butter and cream. Build up sandwich by putting larger piece on bottom and small one on top. Cut the muffins in two and place in wing shape on plate. Cut tomatoes in eight parts. Put ¼ of tomato in between wings of sandwich, and olive on top.

A WOMAN'S NEW YORK

By Alice Hughes.

New York, Feb. 10.

A THOUSAND vigorous press agents, all shouting and pounding like mad, are doing their best to make this town acutely bowling-conscious. For the first time in Gotham's history it is going to play host to the American Bowling Congress, which seems to thunder for weeks. In the meantime, the lads are laboring on the women folks through the angle that the pinsport is a terrific aid to achieving the form divine.

ALICE HUGHES.

At any rate, one of the noble and powerful newspapers here is promoting a bowling school exclusively for women. We've got schools for everything else, and why not bowling, I suppose. Its prexy is a grand old bowler from the town of Pueblo, Colo., Mrs. Floretta McCutcheon, who has been bowling since soon after the permanent retirement of Rip Van Winkle, and is said to be a striker of great horsepower.

No school can hope to succeed without having a few movie cuties as practitioners of its occult art, and Mrs. McCutcheon says the screen queens take to it like they do to a snapped-up option. Ginger Rogers, Jean Harlow, Carole Lombard and Alice Faye are said to be among the film colony's finest pin-destroyers.

Mrs. M. Tried to sign me up, pointing eloquently to the physical advantages and even to the low cost of the sport. But not for me! I once saw Heywood Broun bowling, and a sport that can make anyone look like that will never make a devotee of little Miss Hughes, who can take her splinters or leave them.

GIRL ABOUT TOWN—Don't look at the moment, but that beautiful dowager entering the Colony Restaurant got that beautiful white streak down the front of her hair with a splash of platinum paint. They tell me one splash lasts three days—it does look distinguished, doesn't it! . . .

• • • •

Speaking of the uppity ones, the dowager Mrs. Vanderbilt — you know, the general's wife—turned up at the opera and nearly knocked the diamond horseshoe for a row of vulgar rhinestones. She wasn't wearing her elbow-length white kid gloves!

• • • •

Lotte Lehmann, our soprano who is being pushed into the ring to fight Flagstad for the title of "prima donna assoluta," has turned author, too. Always something of a poet, she has now burst out in full novel size, and her first book, "Oplid, Mein Land," is to hand. The title comes from a line of a favorite Hugo Wolf song . . .

• • • •

With all the returns in, it looks as though our symphony had found the conductor it needed after the retirement of Toscanini. Young John Barbirolli, the British-Italian, made a terrifically fine impression during his first stay, and has signed a three-year contract to continue. And what a tough spot he was in, following the superlative maestro! His farewell concert was very sentimental and pleasant, and Barbirolli will be welcomed home next fall!

• • • •

Mrs. James Coogan, of Brooklyn, brings to my notice a more than usually interesting book, called "Stepmother"—and one which not only tries to understand the problems of those who stand in place of a mother, but really glorifies their willingness to help and serve. All too long has there been a faintly unpleasant connotation about the word—and thank some fairy tales for that! This new book is friendly, and helpful, and most understanding.

Many U. S. Envoys on Foreign Soil Return to Visit Friends, Relatives

Mr. Bingham Seeks to Protect Property in Louisville Flood.

Trips Through Country Are Taken or Planned by Several.

By Jessie Ash Arndt.

An unusually large number of United States envoys in the foreign service returned recently to visit friends and relatives.

The Ambassador to the Court of St. James, Mr. Robert Worth Bingham, who has been at his home in Louisville, doing what he could to save his property from the ravages of the flood, was in Washington yesterday, but returned last night to Louisville.

Mr. Hugh Gibson, Ambassador to Brazil, and Mr. Jefferson Caffery, Ambassador to Cuba, also are among those who have recently returned here.

Mr. S. Pinkney Tuck, who has been here for a visit, left yesterday for a trip south and will sail March 24 to return to his post as First Secretary of the American Embassy in Paris.

Mr. Charles W. Thayer, who has been visiting the Charles Bohlens, is here from Moscow, where he is attached to the American Embassy.

De Vaults Also Here.

At the Mayflower this week are Mr. and Mrs. Charles De Vault. Mr. De Vault is American consul attached to the Embassy in Paris. They will leave the end of the week for Winchester, Ind., to visit her father, Mr. John Maynard, and plan to sail for France on March 19.

Mr. Theodore Marriner, who is a former counselor of the American Embassy in Paris and is now consul general at Beirut, Syria, is in Portland, Me., and will return to the Capital February 15 for a few days. While here recently he was the guest of Mr. James Clement Dunn, of the State Department.

Sailing yesterday, aboard the Washington, were both Mr. and Mrs. Coit MacLean and their daughter, Miss Sally MacLean, and Mr. and Mrs. Douglas P. Miller, who have been in the Capital during part of their stay in this country.

Mr. MacLean is American commercial attache in Paris, where he was head of the American Administraiive Commission of the International Chamber of Commerce before entering the American Foreign Service. He and his family have been in Washington for about two months and also spent a month on a tour of the country. Miss MacLean is an accomplished dancer and is much in demand for charity performances. Mr. MacLean held a post in Rome before going to France in 1933.

Post Is in Berlin.

Mr. Miller, who, with Mrs. Miller, resided in Washington from 1921 to 1924, is American commercial attache in Berlin, where he has been since leaving the Capital. He speaks both German and Hindustan, having been in Bagdad during the World War, and he is considered an authority on affairs in Germany today.

He and Mrs. Miller have many friends in Washington and were guests of honor at frequent informal luncheons and dinners, while they were here.

One of the most interesting of the recent visitors who have returned from foreign service is Miss Elizabeth Humes, American trade commissioner in Rome—one of the three American women to hold such a post. She was here and attended the inter-departmental reception at the White House last week but is now making an extensive business tour of the West and will spend a short vacation in Arizona and New Mexico before returning to Washington.

She was originally appointed to the service in 1920, going to Rome, later to Vienna, Berlin and London and back to Rome in 1925. She lived in Washington for some time before taking her posts abroad and was welcomed by friends on her recent return. She is attractive looking and always smartly dressed. She expects to come back for a short stay after her Western trip before sailing to resume her duties in Rome.

Miss Smith Has Left.

Miss Addie V. Smith, another of the women trade commissioners and also registrar of the China trade act, has served in Shanghai since 1922 and returned there the first of January, after having been here during the holidays. She is a graduate of the Washington College of Law.

Miss Kathleen M esworth, who is trade commissioner in Guatemala, stopped here a month ago on her way from Havana, from which she has just been transferred to her new post.

Mr. Julian B. Foster, trade commissioner at Singapore, with his wife and children, arived in New York recently and went directly to Tuscaloosa, Ala., for a brief visit before coming to Washington. They resided here some years ago, and Mr. Foster attended the Georgetown Foreign Service School. He served in Australia and New Zealand before being transferred to Singapore. He and his family expect to be in the Capital for a month.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas L. Hughes, who also lived in Washington for some time, are in this country from Brussels, where Mr. Hughes is the Commercial Attache at the American Embassy. He was for some time connected with the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce.

Mr. Sam E. Woods is here from Prague, where he has been Commercial Attache since 1929. Mrs. Woods, who is a native Czechoslovakian, remained with her mother in Switzerland during his absence.

Mr. Basil E. Dahl, trade commissioner attached to the office of the American Commercial Attache in Stockholm, now in this country on leave, is now in Washington, where he has many friends. He attended both American University here and the Georgetown School of Foreign Service before going to Sweden in 1927. He is distinguished as a linguist, speaking fluently in Norwegian, Swedish, Finnish and German.

Members of our Foreign Service return to the United States about every three years and more of them are to come within the next few weeks. Their arrival is always of interest because most of them are former residents of the Capital.

Returns From South America

Hessler-Henderson.

SENORA DE ESPIL,
who, with her husband, the Argentine Ambassador, has just returned to the Capital from a trip to South America and Europe. They have been gone since October. This evening they are to be dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Warren.

Society to Attend 'Frantics' of 1937

Chevy Chase School Group Play Set for March 4.

Members of Washington society and prominent political figures will attend the 1937 edition of the Chevy Chase Frantics to be staged on Thursday, March 4, at the Wardman Park Theater under the title, "1492 or What Have You." Mrs. Isabelle S. Farrington, of Washington, has written the book and is also directing the show, and special music has been composed for the skits. The "Frantics" are always in the nature of political satires.

The members of the cast and of the singing and dancing choruses will be from the student body at Chevy Chase School for Young Women, who come from all sections of the United States.

The settings and costumes of the Frantics are always designed and executed by members of the art departments at Chevy Chase School, and the drama department assists in staging it.

Democratic Council Will Gather Tuesday

The Democratic Women's National Council will hold its monthly meeting Tuesday at 8 p. m. at the Washington Hotel. The meeting has been postponed from Monday to Tuesday because of the testimonial dinner to be given on Monday evening for the Postmaster General, Mr. James A. Farley.

Mrs. Arthur D. Condon, president of the council, will preside during the business meeting which will be followed by a program in charge of the chairman of the absentee voting unit of the council, Mrs. S. Jennings Asbury.

Bishop to Open Lenten Lecture

Mayflower Series Will Be Attended by Members of D. C. Society.

The Rev. Albert Joseph McCartney, minister of the Covenant-First Presbyterian Church, has announced he will continue the Lenten lectures given in previous years by the Rev. Joseph R. Sizoo, formerly minister of the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church. The lectures, beginning February 15, will be held each Monday morning at 11 o'clock through Lent at the Mayflower Hotel, and will be attended by many members of Washington society who have discontinued their social activities during the Lenten season.

The following ministers will speak during the series: The Bishop of Washington, the Rev. James E. Freeman; the Rev. Mr. McCartney, the Rev. Frederick Brown Harris, the Rev. Oscar F. Blackwelder, the Rev. Oliver J. Hart. They will speak in the order named and the Rev. Mr. McCartney will conclude the lectures on March 22, the last Monday in Lent.

Mrs. Franklin Delano Roosevelt heads the list of sponsors for the series and others are Mrs. William C. Bankhead, Mrs. Daniel C. Roper, Mrs. J. Hamilton Lewis, Mrs. Oscar F. Blackwelder, Mrs. Daniel C. Borden, Mrs. John C. Boyd, Mrs. Charles H. Bradley, Mrs. Merle Cain, Mrs. Wilson Compton, Mrs. Hutchinson I. Cone, Mrs. Levi Cooke, Mrs. William S. Culbertson, Mrs. M. Webster Dawley, Mrs. Louis A. Dellwig, Mrs. Daniel B. Devore, Mrs. James E. Freeman, Mrs. Frederick Brown Harris.

Mrs. Oliver J. Hart, Mrs. Perry S. Heath, Miss Anna A. Hinkel, Mrs. Oscar Jarecki, Miss Bessie J. Kibbey, Mrs. Wilhelm E. H. Krechting, Mrs. John B. Larner, Mrs. John C. Letts, Mrs. Thomas W. Lockwood, jr., Mrs. Albert Joseph McCartney, Mrs. Edward B. Meigs, Mrs. James Shera Montgomery, Mrs. Leo H. Paulger, Mrs. Lynn R. Rutter, Mrs. Melvin W. Sandmeyer, Mrs. Anson Phelps Stokes, Mrs. Henry Alvah Strong and Mrs. Hugh Campbell Wallace.

D. C. Artist Will Exhibit In N. Y. Show

Miss Clara Saunders' Work Is Accepted for Spring Display.

Sister of Painter Has Returned From Trip in Florida.

Miss Clara Saunders, prominent member of the Arts Club, has learned one of her pictures has been accepted for the spring exhibition of the National Association of Women Painters and Sculptors in New York.

It is not new for Miss Saunders to have her paintings in leading exhibitions but she was surprised when she learned about this one. She had submitted the picture about a month ago. In the meantime her time and thought were occupied with many activities including her painting, and preparations for the Arts Club's Bal Boheme, and she had temporarily forgotten having sent it. Not until a friend called to say she had seen the catalogue with the picture, an oil entitled "Shade," listed among those in the exhibition, did Miss Saunders remember.

Her sister, Miss Marie Saunders, who is an attorney, recently has returned, with Mrs. Harry Dunlop from a three-week motor trip to Florida. Miss Clara Saunders usually waits until summer to leave the Capital and then goes to Provincetown and sometimes abroad to paint. She has spent considerable time in Paris and also in Japan, where she had a studio some years ago.

In addition to oil and water color, she works in other media and frequently does linoleum block printing. She and her sister have a home on O street, in Georgetown, where there are artistic hangings and bedspreads which are examples of her work in this line. She and her sister also laid out their own garden back of their home which their friends enjoy because of its artistic arrangement.

Yugoslav Envoy, Wife Entertain At Dinner Party

Their guests included the Chinese Ambassador and Mme. Sze, the Secretary of the Treasury and Mrs. Henry Morgenthau, the Norwegian Minister and Mme. Munthe de Morgenstierne, Senator and Mrs. Royal S. Copeland, Representative Edith Nourse Rogers, Mr. T. K. Bewley, Mrs. Lucille McMillen, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Watson, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Southgate, Col. and Mrs. M. Robert Guggenheim, Mr. and Mme. Charles Saint and Mr. Hastko Petrovitch.

Mrs. Lewis Honors 18 at Mayflower

Mrs. James Hamilton Lewis entertained 18 guests at luncheon at the Mayflower Tuesday afternoon in honor of a group of friends visiting in the Capital: Mr. Jefferson Caffery, American Ambassador to Cuba; Mme. de Lima e Silva, widow of the former Brazilian Ambassador; Col. and Mrs. Russell Langdon, the latter the president of the Society of Sponsors, and her sister, Mrs. Ethel Semple Swanstrom, of Seattle, and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Winterbotham, of Chicago and Vermonth.

Among others present were the Minister of Greece, Mr. Dimitrios Sicilianos; the First Secretary of the Polish Embassy, Mr. Edward Kulikowski, and his sister, Mme. Kulikowska-Higersberger.

This was the fifth in a series of luncheons at which Mrs. Lewis is entertaining this winter.

THE MERRY WHIRL
by MARYLYN

Mary Win Brown with her mother and aunt is leaving shortly for Jamaica to spend a month doing nothing but loafing. But—we know Win, and it won't be any time at all before she will be into something. They are going ot visit on a ranch and that means horses (or should), and Win adores horseback riding. She will probably completely revolutionize the even tenor of the ways of the islanders, and they—gladly following—will rush about like New Yorkers, rising early, doing much and staying up late.

• • • •

An interesting foursome at luncheon yesterday included the Secretary of the Yugoslavian legation and Mme. Perazic—she with a dashing Cossack hat—Mme. Popovici and Otakar Kabelac, all taking time out from their food to catch up on conversation.

• • • •

"Chick" Glover has two very new oil paintings, one of his father and one of his mother, both of which were painted by Agnes Sholes. These are the first works of this talented young person which we have seen, and she certainly should go in for portraiture.

About the Sholes. After the past few months of quietly dwelling in our midst, they will soon be leaving for Mr. Sholes' new post in Milan, Italy. We hear that this time Scram, Agnes' and Janie Belle's lovable spaniel, will not be the only pet of the family making the long ocean voyage. There are two spirited horses being shipped abroad to provide the girls with their morning canters.

The Minister of Guatemala, Senor Dr. Don Adrian Recinos, is a clever punster. At a recent tea, the hostess had been most original and thoughtful in designing her delicacies. The ones spread with caviar, instead of being the usual round variety so difficult to handle without getting one's fingers in the spread, had little extra handles of toast, and looked for all the world like miniature ping pong paddles. Some one remarked about them to the envoy, whereupon he answered, "Oh, it's a 'racket!'"

• • • •

Jack Gates is a man after our own hearts. Here for centuries we have been going our ways with nothing the least bit interesting in the line of calling cards—no originality—no colors to gladden an artistic soul. Jack is the postmaster of the Senate. His card, just a trifle larger than the usual size for men, is in the form of a miniature letter—his name, title, "Washintgon, D. C.," occupy in their proper place, while in the circular date stamp is the place, hour, day and year of his appointment. The back of the card is marked like the underside of an envelope, flap and all.

Saw the dapper and well-dressed Gene Vidal lunching at the Willard Coffee Shop yesterday. We would be willing to wager that his thoughts were mostly up in the clouds, and his companions appeared to be airmen. One certainly was, for he wore the uniform and wings of a flier.

Party Tonight By Kentuckians

Proceeds of Society's Affair Will Be Given to Flood Victims.

Many box-parties have been arranged for the Kentucky Society ball this evening at the Willard Hotel. Proceeds from the affair, held in place of the January meeting which was postponed because of the Ohio River flood disaster, will be sent to Gov. A. B. Chandler and Mayor Neville Miller, of Louisville, for assistance of Kentucky flood refugees.

Kentucky members of Congress and their wives have been invited to be in the receiving line. Among those who will entertain guests are Mr. and Mrs. Robert N. Miller, Mr. and Mrs. Millard F. West, Col. and Mrs. Hart G. Foster, Dr. and Mrs. William Jennings Price, Mr. and Mrs. John B. Wathen, Mrs. Kincaid Henton, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon H. Edmonds, Mr. and Mrs. Hardie B. Ripy, Miss Eula Thomas, Mr. and Mrs. Harry R. Daniel, Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton Alexander, Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Likens, Mrs. James Breathitt, jr., Mr. and Mrs. John H. Pigg, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde D. Harrison, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis H. Barnes, Miss Lela Mae Stiles, Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Adams and Mrs. Mattie Wyatt Porter.

Assisting Miss Fanny R. Wathen, chairman of the membership and introductions committee, will be Col. D. E. McQueary, Mrs. Tess W. Sommes, Mr. Donald Walker, Mrs. Bera Robinson Purdy, Mr. John Wathen and Mr. F. B. Ladd.

Play With Dynamite.

Coldwater, Mich., Feb. 10 (AP).—Sheriff's deputies took ten sticks of dynamite from school children who were using them as playthings today. The officers continued search for a box of dynamite caps which disappeared with the dynamite.

Goodwill Party Group Is Named

Mrs. Tufts Will Preside at Tea Table at Lincoln Reception Here.

Mrs. Karl Fenning, chairman of the committee for the Lincoln's Birthday reception being given tomorrow afternoon from 4 to 6 by the trustees and council of Goodwill Industries of Washington at its headquarters, has announced the committee members who will assist at the affair.

Mrs. William O. Tufts, wife of the president of the board of trustees of Goodwill, will preside at the tea table, assisted by Mrs. Bancroft Davis, Mrs. William Walter Husband, Mrs. Ernest H. Daniel, Mrs. Stanley C. Sears, Mrs. Elizabeth W. Murray and Mrs. Edward Rosenbaum.

Those receiving will include Mrs. Howard G. Nichols, Mrs. Joseph Travers Maguire, Mrs. Lynn R. Edminster and a group of young girls, Miss Marian Sears, Miss Jean Murray, Miss Jean Dulin, Miss Marjorie Morrman and Mrs. William F. Boericke.

Capital Girl Betrothed to Otis Wingo

Attended School in Paris, Later a Student at Holton Arms.

Dr. and Mrs. John McMullen announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Margaret Eleanor McMullen, to Mr. Otis Theodore Wingo, son of Mrs. Otis Wingo and the late Representative Otis Wingo.

Miss McMullen attended the Alliance Francaise and the Sorbonne in Paris, where she resided for four years. Coming to Washington, she entered the Holton Arms School and made her debut two years ago. Her father, now retired, was formerly assistant surgeon general of the United States Public Health Service. On her paternal side she is a descendant of James McMullen, who came from Scotland and served in the Revolutionary War. Her great-grandfather and grandfather were large plantation owners in Georgia and Florida. Her mother is the daughter of the late Dr. and Mrs. Maxwell Hugh Kenny, of London, England.

Mr. Wingo, who is executive secretary of the National Institute of Public Affairs, was graduated from Princeton University, where he was editorial editor of the Daily Princetonian and a member of the squash squad. He is a member of the University, Racquet and Princeton clubs of Washington, the Princeton Club of New York, and the Elm Club of Princeton University. He is a director of the United States Junior Chamber of Commerce and of the Washington Junior Board of Commerce.

His father, the late Mr. Otis Wingo, was a member of Congress from Arkansas from 1913 until his death in 1930, and was succeeded by Mrs. Wingo, who retired in 1933. He is a descendant of Gen. Matthew Locke, distinguished officer in the Revolutionary War, who was a member of the 1775 Provincial Congress of North Carolina and a member of the Federal Congress after the war.

The wedding will take place this spring.

Engagement Is Announced

Harris & Ewing

Miss Margaret Eleanor McMullen, whose parents, Dr. and Mrs. John McMullen, have announced her engagement to Mr. Otis Theodore Wingo, jr., son of Mrs. Wingo and the late Representative Otis Wingo.

Copeland Returns After Visit to Ill Sister in Florida

Senator Royal S. Copeland has returned to Washington and rejoined Mrs. Copeland in their apartment at the Shoreham after a hurried trip to Florida where his sister, Miss Cornelia Copeland is recuperating from a serious illness.

Senator Copeland will leave this week-end to make an address in Worchester, Mass., on Sunday. Mrs. Copeland expects to go to New York for a short visit within a few days.

Mr. Tredennick Wed To Miss Alexander

Immaculate Conception Is Scene of Marriage.

The National Shrine of the Immaculate Conception was the scene of the marriage Tuesday morning of Miss Alison Alexander, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilford S. Alexander and Mr. Edward Coe Tredennick, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Tredennick, of Meriden, Conn. The ceremony was performed at 10:30 o'clock by the Rev. Speer Strahan, of the Catholic University.

Miss Agnes Alexander was her sister's only attendant. She was costumed in aquamarine faille with which she wore a toque of dubonnet and carried a bouquet of snapdragons of the same deep shade.

Mr. Richard Joyce Smith, of New York, served as best man.

Miss Peele Is Wed To Mr. Northcross

Couple to Live in Capital After Bridal Trip.

Miss Grayce Boyns Peele, daughter of Mrs. Thomas Herbert Peele, of Rich Square, N. C., was married at noon yesterday to Mr. Samuel H. Northcross, son of Mrs. Frances Troy Northcross, of this city. The ceremony took place at the Episcopal Church at Chapel Hill, N. C.

The bride had as her only attendant her sister, Miss Mary Roberts Peele. She was given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Thomas C. Peele, and wore a tailored suit. Mr. Hardwick Troy Lord was best man.

After a short wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Northcross will live in Washington.

"International Day" Will Be Observed Feb. 26 by Business Women of 24 States

Dinners or Mass Meetings to Discuss Events of Government.

Women throughout the world will take as their theme "Women in Government the World Around" on International Day February 26 in the 24 countries where there are branches of the International Federation of Business and Professional Women. Miss Lena Madesin Phillips, international president, is arranging the celebrations not only in this but in other countries at the headquarters of the International Federation at the Hotel Biltmore, New York City.

"From the tip of the Arctic circle to the tropics, in both hemispheres and on six continents, clubs of business and professional women will unite in this observance," Miss Phillips said. "For the most part they will hold dinners or mass meetings honoring the outstanding women in the government service of their respective countries. In the majority of countries, also, there will be radio broadcasts in which not only business and professional women, but women generally will be urged to participate more actively in public affairs."

Miss Phillips said that the majority of the nearly 1,500 business and professional women's clubs of the United States are planning to hold their International Relations dinners on approximately that date and to discuss the same theme. Owing to the fact that both international and national federation headquarters are located in New York City, international, national and State federations will collaborate in arrangements for a dinner at the Hotel Biltmore on the evening of February 26, honoring Miss Frances Perkins, Secretary of Labor, who was the principal speaker at the International Congress of the federation in Paris this past summer.

"The theme 'Women in Government the World Around' was selected for International Day because we believe citizenship presents to business and professional women one of their greatest responsibilities and challenges," Miss Phillips said.

"The current observance of International Day marks the third successive year in which it has been simultaneously celebrated in all federated countries," Miss Phillips said. The participating countries will be Argentina, Australia, Austria, Belgium, Canada, Czechoslovakia, Esthonia, Finland, France, Germany, Great Britain, Holland, Hungary, India, Italy, Korea, New Zealand, Palestine, Poland, Roumania, Sweden, Switzerland and the United States.

The intra-city dinner of the Service Clubs, Zonta, Soroptimist, Business and Professional Women, Altrusa and Quota Clubs will be held Saturday night at the New Willard with the Quota Club as hostess club.

The speaker will be Strickland Gillilan who will take as his subject "Among Ourselves." Mrs. M. K. Hume is chairman.

Senator Guy M. Gillette of Iowa, one of the new Democratic Senators, will discuss current legislation at the meeting of the Business and Professional Group tonight at the Woman's National Democratic Club.

The education committee will meet this morning when Mrs. Emily Newell Blair will discuss the inaugural address of President Roosevelt and his proposed changes in the judiciary.

The club, which has branches all over the country, is made up of natives of Wales and their object is to raise funds for the maintainance of a home for elderly Welsh people at Rocky Ford, Ohio.

Senator Davis was born in Wales, and as all wives of Welshmen are eligible for membership, Mrs. Davis belongs.

British Envoy's Wife to Attend Girl Scout Tea

Affair Is Scheduled for February 25 at the Little House.

Lady Lindsay, wife of the Ambassador of Great Britain, has accepted the invitation of the National Girl Scouts' Little House committee to attend the fourth international tea, to be held Thursday, February 25, at the National Girl Scouts' Little House, 1750 New York avenue.

Other guests expected to attend are the ambassadors and ministers and their wives, representing the countries affiliated with the World Association of Girl Guides and Girl Scouts. These include Austria, Belgium, Brazil, Canada, China, Czechoslovakia, Denmark, Egypt, Estonia, Finland, France, Greece, Hungary, Irish Free State, Japan, Latvia, Lithuania, Netherlands, Norway, Poland, Portugal, Rumania, Sweden, Switzerland, Union of South Africa.

Mrs. Henry H. Flather, chairman of the National Little House Committee; Mrs. Frederick Brooke, Mrs. B. F. Cheatham, national board members; Mrs. Anson Phelps Stokes, commissioner of the District of Columbia Girl Scouts, will receive the guests, assisted by the members of the board of the local council, Mrs. J. Harris Franklin, Mrs. William F. Crosby, Mrs. Proctor Dougherty, Mrs. Martin Jones, Mrs. Donald Richberg, Mrs. Joseph Cox, Mrs. John C. Borton, Mrs. N. R. Ellis, Mrs. O. G. Hankins, Mrs. Harry C. Kramer, Mrs. William I. Myers, Mrs. George Seriven. Also assisting will be Girl Scouts of Troop 55, under the leadership of Mrs. William Leetch, wearing the Girl Scout uniforms of their sisters in foreign lands.

The World Association of Girl Guides and Girl Scouts was founded by Lord Baden-Powell, of Gilwell, in 1928, and headquarters are maintained in London. To symbolize the work a world banner has been designed, showing the trefoil with stars, signifying the "promise" and the "law" of scouting, a compass needle "which will always give the right course or way in guiding," and the "flame of the love of mankind."

Lady Baden-Powell is world chief guide of the association and a world committee has an advisory responsibility for the progress of the work. Dame Katherine Furse is director of the world bureau.

A. F. L. Invades Area Claimed By Lewis Body

Charters Given Textile Groups and Montana Workers in Territory.

By the Associated Press.

The American Federation of Labor moved yesterday into territory staked out by two of John L. Lewis' rebel unions, thus intensifying the civil war between these rival groups.

The federation's executive council chartered two international unions to operate in territory claimed by the United Textile Workers, a Lewis ally.

The council also chartered a new central labor union at Butte, Mont., as a rival of the Silver Bow central body, dominated by the Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers, another Lewis union. The council had revoked the Silver Bow charter.

Second Attack.

The action was the federation's second attack on unions in Lewis' Committee for Industrial Organization—unions which were suspended from the federation for trying to bring all the workers in each big industry into one big organization, regardless of traditional A. F. of L. craft lines.

The first came at the federation's Tampa, Fla., convention in November when the delegates voted to boycott cloth made by the Amalgamated Clothing Workers, another Lewis union.

The two unions chartered yesterday were the Amalgamated Lace Operators and the International Union of Spinners. Each claimed a membership of 3,000 with a potential membership much larger.

Green Explains Stand.

William Green, federation president, told newspapermen that the A. F. of L. for years had felt that these two groups should join the Textile Workers, but that they had refused despite the Textile Workers' efforts to bring them in.

Two local unions of lace workers, chartered directly by the federation at Philadelphia and Wilkes Barre, would be asked to consolidate with the new international union, Green said, but would not be forced to join.

The council also chartered the International Union of Ladies' Pocket Book, Handbag and Novelty Workers, with 7,000 members. This is an off-shoot of the Leatherworkers Union.

Younger Hoeppel's Freedom Denied

Alexandria, Feb. 10 (AP).—Federal Judge Robert N. Pollard denied today the petition of Charles J. Hoeppel, of California, for a writ of habeas corpus.

Hoeppel is serving a term with his father, former Representative John H. Hoeppel, in the District Reformatory at Lorton, Va., for conspiring to sell an appointment to the United States Military Academy.

The court allowed his attorney 15 days in which to file an amended petition in his new effort to obtain freedom.

Col. H. H. Rutherford To Be Retired Feb. 28

Col. Henry H. Rutherford, Medical Corps, United States Army, now stationed at Fort Myer, will retire on February 28, the War Department announced yesterday. Previous to his present assignment, he was stationed at the Army and Navy General Hospital, Hot Springs, Ark.

Col. Rutherford was appointed a first lieutanent, assistant surgeon, Second Missouri Volunteer Infantry, in 1889, and assumed the status of of assistan surgeon, Regular Army, in 1901. In 1927 he received his regular grade of colonel.

Kentucky Posts Reward For Slayers of Miner

Harlan, Ky., Feb. 10 (AP).—A reward of $500 was posted by the sheriff's office today for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the killers of Bennett Musick, 19, son of a United Mine Workers of America organizer, who was shot to death at his home in Evarts last night.

The attack on the Musick home was the second on members of the family in the last few days and the third on union organizers recently.

Serum Rushed to Selznick.

Hollywood, Feb. 10 (U.P.).—Two 1-pound packages of pneumonia serum, rushed across the country today in a chartered transport plane, were taken tonight to Santa Monica Hospital in an effort to save the life of Myron Selznick, theatrical agent. Physicians reported Selznick's condition was still "extremely dangerous."

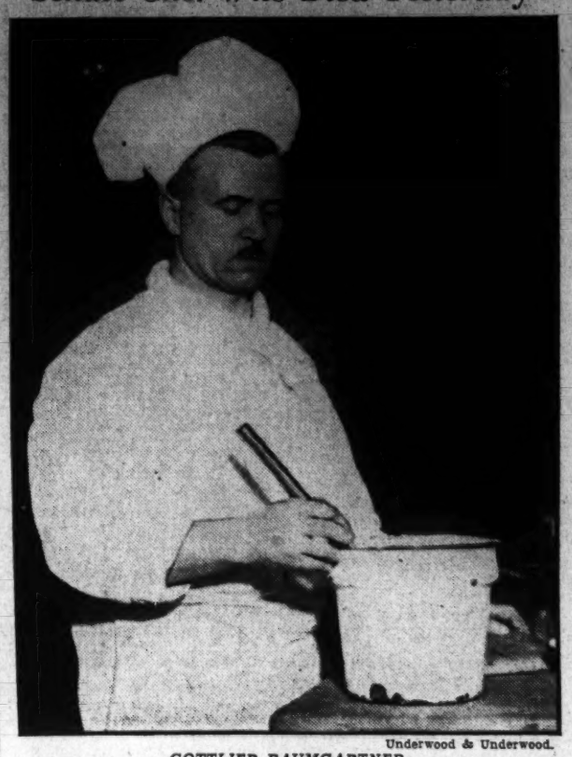
Senate Chef Who Died Yesterday



Underwood & Underwood.

GOTTLIEB BAUMGARTNER.

Gottlieb Baumgartner Is Dead; Was Senate Chef for 18 Years

Death of Culinary Expert, Who Pleased Palates of Nation's Lawmakers, Casts Heavy Shadow Over Capitol Hill.

Gottlieb Baumgartner, the man who pleased the palates of the Nation's lawmakers for 18 years as chef of the Senate Restaurant, died yesterday at his home, 66 Channing street, at the age of 49. He had been ill about two weeks.

To Baumgartner, born in Switzerland of a family noted for generations for its culinary skill, came the task of catering to the varied hankerings of legislators, far from home, for their native dishes. He never failed them, and was somewhat of an epicurean god to those he served.

Up and down the corridors of the Capitol news of his passing depressed like a shadow yesterday, causing great men to ponder and become first shocked, then sad at his passing.

A Fine Character.

"Mr. Baumgartner not only was an excellent chef, but he was one of the finest characters it ever has been my good fortune to know," said Senator Borah, the Senate dean.

"He was widely known by epicures as a fine caterer," asserted Senator Connally, of Texas.

"The wide knowledge of American and European dishes which he brought to his work and his ability to prepare them cannot easily be replaced," declared Minority Leader McNary, of Oregon.

Baumgartner learned to make "pot likker" from the late Senator Huey P. Long's recipe so well that the Louisiana lawmaker publicly announced he couldn't have had a better dish of his favorite "greens and hog jowls" even in New Orleans.

Bean Soup a Delicacy.

Under the magic of Baumgartner's skill, bean soup, always an item on the bill of fare, became a rare delicacy, seldom omitted at luncheons or banquets where the regular menu was discarded for a special one.

A native of Canton Berne, Switzerland, Baumgartner came to the United States in 1914, living in New York and Philadelphia before coming to the Capital.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Anna Baumgartner; a son, Walter; a daughter, Lilly, and two brothers, Alex, chef at the Metropolitan Club, and Otto, a pastry chef.

Funeral services will be held at his residence tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock, followed by burial in Arlington Mausoleum. The Rev. Edward Goetz, pastor of Zion Lutheran Church, will officiate.

Eastman Opposes Rail Clause Repeal

By the Associated Press.

Joseph B. Eastman, member of the Interstate Commerce Commission, said yesterday the proposed repeal of the "long-and-short-haul" clause of the Interstate Commerce act might force water transportation lines out of business.

Appearing before the House Interstate Commerce Committee in opposition to a bill by Representative Pettengill Democrat), Indiana, proposing the repeal, the commissioner said a transportation rate war could be expected should it become law. This, he said, would force weaker boat lines out of business.

Eastman said the railroads were sponsoring the repeal bill in a hope they would be enabled to set rates sufficiently low to get transcontinental freight now being carried by intercoastal ships.

2 City Job Claimants Spurn Action in Court

Muskogee, Okla., Feb. 10 (AP).—Two claimants to the city managership spurned court action tonight, each declaring, in effect, "I'm city manager—let him go to court."

With the manager's keys in his pocket, W. H. Pritchett stuck to the office, defying an 8 to 7 council vote for his removal. He claimed nine ouster votes were required.

Outside in the waiting room sat Phifer B. Bostic, appointed by the council as Pritchett's successor, equally certain he is manager.

Fat Girls Get The Go-By—Slim Girls Win Men

Lose Fat The Easy Way—Without Starvation Diets, or Back-Breaking, Bending and Rolling Exercises.

Here's a way to get rid of ugly fat that works hand in hand with Nature. Millions of people are losing millions of pounds of flabby flesh and getting back slender figures, without the need of starvation diets or back-breaking exercises.

Medical science has discovered that one of the causes of too much fat lies in a little gland. It is the duty of this tiny gland to make about one drop and a half every day of a vital fluid. This helps the body "burn" up food and excess fatty tissues just as a good draft of air helps the furnace to burn up coal without forming "clinkers". If this little gland doesn't make this drop and a half of fluid every 24 hours, many people take on ugly fat.

Doctors correct this condition by feeding this little gland the substance it lacks—and Marmola Prescription Tablets are based on this same method. Millions are using them with success. They are prepared by a world-famous medical laboratory. Their formula is published in every package so you know what you are taking.

So don't waste time and money with starvation diets or back-breaking exercises. Go to your druggist today and get a box of Marmola. Try this simple, easy way to get rid of excess fat.

Trotzky Phone Tampered With Aide Suggests

Speech Offering Surrender to Soviet Read in N. Y. When Wire Fails.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Feb. 10.—Confusion overhanging the failure last night of Leon Trotzky's projected telephone speech from Mexico City to American listeners was substantially as thick as ever tonight.

The exiled Russian Bolshevist was to talk over a telephone hookup to a New York meeting under auspices of the American Committee for the Defense of Leon Trotzky, an organization supporting creation of an "impartial commission" to look into the treason charges laid against Trotzky in Stalinist Moscow.

The speech failed to come through by telephone. Instead, an airmailed copy—in which the exile offered to surrender to the Soviet if a disinterested commission found him guilty of the crimes imputed to him by Moscow—was read to the disappointed meeting.

Today in Mexico City Trotzky's secretary, Bernard Wolfe, said he was "not prepared to charge intentional interference" with the telephone line. He added, however, the "attitude of employes" assigned to repair damage to the apparatus occasioned in transferring it to a telephone company office was "at least indifferent," if "not hostile."

Wolfe said it first had been arranged for Trotzky to speak from Artist Diego Rivera's villa, but that yesterday "we were advised the acoustic properties would make it impossible to speak from there."

The damage to the apparatus, he added, came in the course of its transfer to an uptown telephone office.

Folk Song Recital.

Rita Rozada, contralto, assisted by Dorothy Paul at the piano, will be heard in a recital of lieder and folk songs at the Arts Club of Washington today at 8:30 p. m. Miss Rozada has specialized in the folk music of Latin countries, and has appeared here as soloist with the National Symphony Orchestra.

Red Dinner Jackets for Men? Emphatically No! Say Women

Canary Colored Cummerbunds or Other Gaudy Garments Not Wanted, Is Consensus of Female Opinion.

Women of Washington want to keep their men attired in the sober sacks of business and the traditional black satin adorned "monkey suits" of formality.

No canary cummerbunds or red dinner jackets will win the women's favor. In fact, they seem to believe the males should confine their sartorial binges to an occasional loud necktie.

Take Mary Bell Miller, of Richmond, Va., who gave her best thought on the subject yesterday in the lobby of the Willard. Said she:

"To me, men's clothes are unimportant. It's not what's on the outside, but the man himself that counts. I like men as they are. There's no use trying to guild the lily. Besides, I don't think men themselves will like the role of birds of paradise."

Mrs. Pauline Baker, of 1424 W street northwest, was even more positive. Said she:

"I think they're terrible. I like men's clothes plain. Black, no other color, suits me for men's dress clothes. For sports they might go in for something more gaudy, but never any of this rainbow stuff. I'm interested in the men, not the clothes. They don't have to get tricked up like a may-pole to hold my interest."

Jean Moon, of 1632 Sixteenth street northwest, cast a dissenting vote to the majority. Said she:

"The average man in Washington looks as though he's wearing something at least 5 years old. They're well covered, but that's all you can say for 'em. I don't care much about styles or materials, but I think men should wear more colorful clothes. I'm in favor of open-neck collars. When I see some men's necks stuffed into stiff colors I could scream. They look so uncomfortable they make me uncomfortable."

"I don't think the men will like them; although men are pretty silly. I like striped suits, but red dinner jockets? Never! Polo shirts are all rigth but not for the street or office. Most Washington men are badly dressed, but decking themselves out like grind organ monkeys won't help any."

"All men's clothes look dumb. But red or yellow tuxedos, and wild sports outfits should be reserved for actors or race-track jockeys. A black evening suit is more dignified. It's O. K. for a man to indulge his spiritelness in ties, but I don't think he should be allowed to go any further, because most of them can't even pick a good tie. Besides, it's hard enough to get a man to dress up in black evening clothes without trying to get him into an emerald tinted one."

One woman who declined to permit use of her name, may have hit upon something when she said:

"The women are jealous. They want to continue to be the birds of plumage. If men start outshining them in colorful clothes, they'll loose their comparative appeal. I'm for more and noisier colors for everybody, men and women. My poor husband gets such a kick out of buying a red tie every spring—think how much fun he would have if he could buy a red suit!"

Miss Tiffany, 82, Dies.

Parkside School Head Will Speak

Dr. C. Mabel Smith, principal of the Parkside School, will speak on new methods of education at a meeting of the Woman's Improvement Club of Silver Spring tonight, at Jesup Blair Community House. Following the talk Dr. Smith will conduct a question box.

North Woodside-Montgomery Hill Citizens' Association will hold a card party tomorrow at 8 p. m., at the Woodside School. Mrs. Robert Benner is chairman of the affair, proceeds of which will be used to pay for new street signs.

Montgomery County's first Parent-Teacher institute in recent years was held yesterday in the East Silver Spring School, with National and State officials of the Parent-Teacher Congress as speakers. The afternoon session was presided over by Miss Frances Hays.

"The Voice of Experience"...

the man with the million dollar throat insists on a light smoke

"My voice is my career. It has inspired more than five million people to confide in me their personal problems. During 25 years, first on the lecture platform and then on the air, I have never missed a single engagement because of my throat. I am a steady smoker, and because my throat and voice are vital to my career I insist upon a light smoke. In Luckies I find a light smoke plus the enjoyment of fine tobacco . . . and that's why Lucky Strikes have been my choice for 14 years."

"The Voice of Experience"
FRIEND AND COUNSELOR TO MILLIONS OF RADIO LISTENERS

An independent survey was made recently among professional men and women—lawyers, doctors, lecturers, scientists, etc. Of those who said they smoke cigarettes, more than 87% stated they personally prefer a light smoke.

"The Voice of Experience" verifies the wisdom of this preference, and so do other leading artists of the radio, stage, screen and opera. Their voices are their fortunes. That's why so many of them smoke Luckies. You, too, can have the throat protection of Luckies—a light smoke, free of certain harsh irritants removed by the exclusive process "It's Toasted". Luckies are gentle on the throat.

"Don't Make It Creepy."

We will try not to make it creepy, Miss Demonet, principally because you don't want folks to think that your work is a creepy business. As a matter of fact, Miss Demonet, it hadn't even occurred to us. Rather, we thought your pictures of the Triatoma Sangiusuga, the parrot, that died with the contagious disease, the afflicted white rat and all the collection of damaged hearts and eyes and your sketches of surgical operatoins—we thought these were swell and some day would want to see the others.

It seemed unnecessary to ask the whereabouts of Inez Demonet. Everybody knows where she can be found—right at her big drawing desk in the white-stone National Health Institute at Twenty-fifth and E streets. If she isn't there sketching damaged hearts and eyes and putting finishing touches on her skeiches of surgical operations she is home working on those etchings they've given her prizes for.

She is of medium height. Her eyes, long fixed on art, are intent. She dresses soberly and holds the creepiest artist job in the Government service. But we promised, Miss Demonet, not to make it creepy. All the same, we have to explain what you do, and you would probably want the explanation to be something like this:

When the health service wants a picture, say, of the Triatoma Sangiusuga, it is Miss Demonet who makes the sketch. Let's pause right here to discuss, briefly, the Triatoma Sangiusuga. Firstly, it's a bug with six legs and an inquisitive antenna. Secondly, it's a public enemy because the health people suspect it of harboring certain diseases. Its chief habitat is the tropics, but recently it has been discovered in Pennsylvania. Health agents ran one down, corralled some Triatoma eggs also, and brought the whole thing down to Miss Demonet. This is the cue for getting back to Miss Demonet.

"It was the greatest thrill I ever had in this work," she said yesterday. "I had the Triatoma under the disectingscope and was drawing away when one of the eggs hatched right under my eye. It burst out like a flower, a bright coral colored thing, alive there under the lens." Mrs. Triatoma paid her offspring little heed all the while; just held her rigid pose for the eye of Miss Demonet, whose rapid fingers were flashing out a sketch for science.

She began it all back in the World War times when a group of officers at a dinner party said she could help her country by doing some drawings of plastic surgery in a Governmental hospital here. A trifle faint from it all at first, she followed the steps of surgeons prying into war wounds; later she went with the Government, and her sketches of damaged hearts and eyes, of parrots with contagious diseases, of things like the Triatoma, are a log of her activities.

It's given an intentness to Miss Demonet's eyes, naturally, because she has strained over insects' eggs no larger than pin points, has concentrated on drawings of amoeba, which change while one looks at them. And one can't get a far-away look after an afternoon with mules whose fibrous legs have to be reproduced with every hair in place. "I get woggle-eyed counting those fibers," Miss Demonet will tell you.

"Welcome To Our City

The Democratic League will say "welcome to our city" to the newly-elected Senators and Representatives in the Seventy-fifth Congress at a Congressional banquet Saturday night in the Wardman Park Hotel. Advance notice indicates attendance by members of the Diplomatic Corps, Cabinet officers, public officials and "prominent people." Parties are being made up of State groups, and already Senators Lundeen, Gillette, Herring, Green, Lee, Johnson, Schwartz, Hitchcock, Hughes, Brown, Pepper and Ellender have accepted invitations. They will engage in the banquet and dancing and will see a floor show.

Well, I'll Tell You . . . . . By Bob Burns

I just went to my first big Hollywood wedding today. This was different from any wedding I ever saw in my life except for one thing. They used the same contract that they use every place else. I don't see why they don't make out a special marriage contract to suit the circumstances like they do in every other business. I noticed in this wedding today, they used the words "Love, Honor and Obey" when I know very well he don't love her and she don't honor him and neither one of them can obey the other one because they're both gonna be mighty unreasonable. But he struck the key note of the whole transaction when he repeated the words "With all my worldly goods, I thee endow.' I thought of all of those millions of dollars he's got and them two big yachts and thousands of acres of land and a lot of houses and things, and I couldn't help thinkin' how different it was when my Cousin Dow got married down home. We was all at the wedding and when my cousin turned to the bride and repeated the words "With all my worldly goods, I thee endow," my Aunt Dutty nudged my Uncle Ukle and says "There goes his bicycle!"

Ballou Urges Plea for U. S. School Fund

Declares $30,000,000 Program Needed as Capital Grows.

$6,000,000 Asked for New Buildings Was Cut to $2,000,000.

Dr. Frank W. Ballou last night intimated that organized citizenry of the District should demand its share of Federal emergency agency funds to support a school expansion program in Washington.

Citing the definite need for a five-year school expansion program here, the superintendent of schools told representatives of Washington citizens' associations, meeting at Franklin School, that they must find a way to meet existing needs in the educational program. Elsewhere in the country, he hinted, such needs are being met through Federal emergency appropriations.

Ballou told the citizens of a contemplated $30,000,000 expansion program, made necessary by increased population, by necessity for replacing condemned elementary schools and by the necessity for making up for ground lost during the depression.

Cut to $2,000,000.

He said that he demanded $6,000,000 for new grounds and new buildings in this year's appropriation. Of this, only approximately $2,000,000 was allowed by the Budget Bureau.

Ballou said that the expansion program now thought of was "no more pretentious" than the 1925-30 program, which cost only $20,000,000. He pointed out, however, that the earlier plan was aided by a $4,000,000 tax refund from the United States Treasury.

Saying that the present expansion plan was handicapped by starting at a time when the Jacobs fiscal relations report had recommended a slash in the Federal appropriation, Ballou told the citizens that "if they were really interested" in the needs of the District they would find a way to get funds.

Need Is Increasing.

The needs of the schools now, he said, transcend any since 1920. He declared that the school system needs more building, more grounds and more teachers.

"If we had the same teacher-pupil ratio now that we had in 1927," he said, "we would be entitled to 600 more teachers."

Ballou explained that this year's enrollment, which will reach approximately 100,000, can be taken care of only by increasing the size of classes and by cutting down on all expenditures.

The School Superintendent asserted that his department should have at least a third of the District budget to operate efficiently.

Citing the distribution of Federal funds to other parts of the country for public buildings, Ballou, rhetorically, asked why Washington should be forced to get along without school facilities.

Quoting a Midwestern University president, he said: "The permanent solution to the youth problem is to give them more education of the right kind."

Several members of the Board of Education were present at the meeting. Mrs. Philip Sydney Smith presided. Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle, president, was absent because of illness.

Youthful Bandits Rob Restaurant

Two young bandits late yesterday robbed the Little Tavern hamburger shop at 2628 Connecticut avenue northwest of $20 and escaped.

The robbers, police were told, entered the cafe and one of them sauntered over to Edward Sowder, 27, an employer, of 1300 Staples street northwest. With Sowder on duty was Al Gable, counterman, of 620 I street northwest.

"Give me your money," one said.

"Quit your kidding," responded Sowder.

"I'm not kidding, buddy," snapped the bandit, whipping out two pistols.

The other robber also produced a gun. The money was taken from the cash register.

The thieves also held up a customer in the restaurant, Charles P. L. Meyer, 45, of 2701 Connecticut avenue. They examined his wallet, found it contained no bills, returned it to him and fled.

District Sales Act Passes in Senate

The Senate yesterday passed a bill to establish a uniform sales act for the District on the same basis as laws in 42 States.

The bill follows closely the uniform sales law recommended by the Commission on Uniform Sales and by the American Bar Association.

"There is no substantial statutory law regulating sales within the District," Senator King, chairman of the District Committee, explained, "and there is considerable confusion in the application of common law to transactions in the District.

"The development of the metropolitan area surrounding Washington extending into Maryland and Virginia, both of which have adopted the provisions of the uniform sales law, tends toward confusion in commercial transactions to the detriment alike of the merchants and customers."

Fire Damages Warehouse.

Fire, thought to have originated when an oven became overheated, caused slight damage last night in the three-story warehouse of the Bliss Herb Co., at 806 Rhode Island avenue northeast. The flames were extinguished quickly.

Escaped Aliens Hunted in D. C. Chinatown Area

Detectives last night were searching Washington's Chinatown for several Chinese believed to have escaped from Charleston, S. C., after they were smuggled into this country.

The detectives were assigned to the Chinatown area—H street northwest—after a lookout was received here by Detective Chief Bernard W. Thompson.

The wire stated the aliens had been smuggled through one of the Charleston ports and are believed to have come here. Thompson said every effort will be made to apprehend the men if they appear here to take part in the Chinese New Year celebration which began at midnight.

Jury Reviews Nujjam Death Facts Today

Murder Charges May Be Placed Against Girl and 2 Men.

A coroner's jury this morning will review the facts in the robbery-murder of James Nujjam, 54-year-old insurance collector who died Sunday at Sibley Hospital.

Three persons, a pretty 19-year-old blonde, her fiance, and a third youth, will be arraigned at the inquest to hear police and witnesses at the hearing, which may result in murder charges being placed against the trio.

Those held, Eunice Constance Gerardi, 19, of 514 Kennedy street northwest; her friend, Lawrence Norden Ricker, 24, of 1530 R street northwest, and Robert William Meinzer, 23, of 3107 Seventeenth street northeast, were denied bond and held in custody for the inquest.

Investigators who "broke" the mysterious case said each has admitted taking $18 from Nujjam January 21, striking him in the head and carrying him to a spot near Capitol Heights, Md., where he was left lying by the roadside.

In signed statements given to Detective Lieut. George Darnall and Detective Sergts. Jeremiah Flaherty and Aubrey Tolson, the trio admit picking up Nujjam in front of a beer parlor at North Capital and N streets getting some drinks and taking a ride.

The girl, police said, confessed to having driven a large green sedan which figured in the quick solution of the case. Rinker and Meinzer have confessed, it is alleged, to striking Nujjam and taking the money.

Norvell to Head District Red Men

James T. Norvell was named great sachem of the Improved Order of Red Men of the District at the ninety-fifth session of the order Tuesday night.

Other officers elected were:

Great senior sagamore, Virgil M. Costello; great junior sagamore, J. E. Biddle; great prophet, William E. Moriarity; great chief of records, Walter M. Alexander; great keeper of Wampum, Roy T. Algate; great representative, Frank D. Sieffert; great trustee, H. W. Tippett.

Officers appointed by Norvell were great sannapp, Charles T. Mueller; great michinewa, E. E. Jarboe; great guard of the wigwam, Fran Voehl; great guard of the forest, Norbert Acton; great instructor, Thomas Dennis; great instructress for degree of Pocahontas, Mrs. Mary Douglas.

The advisory council consists of Past Great Sachems Albert H. Dyer, Thomas Dennis and Charles O. Storm. The officers were installed by H. D. Burtnett, of Harrisburg, Pa., executive head of the great council of the United States. He was assisted by Past Great Inchohonees W. C. Wachter and Herbert F. Stetser. Presentation of past great sachem's jewel was made to Moriarity by Wachter.

Colored Citizens Urged To Aid D.C. Civic Group

Woolsey W. Hall, president of the Federation of Civic Associations, was the principal speaker last night at a meeting held in the auditorium of the Garfield School by neighborhood associations commemorative of civic enterprise and community endeavor of colored men and women in the upbuilding of the District of Columbia.

He urged a wide participation, by colored citizens, not only in work of various civic associations, but also in matters of general interest. A drive for membership in the Garfield Association was proposed, with a view to acquisition of modern sanitary facilities for the area by extension of sewerage and water to the whole community.

Godchild Says Roosevelt 'Makes Flowers Grow'

Katherine Looker, 4-yera-old godchild of President Roosevelt, with her older sister and parents, will be a week-end guest at the White House, the Associated Press reported from Northampton, Mass.

Commenting on her trip to Washington, Katherine said: "I am going on a trolley car to Washington to see my godfather who makes the flowers grow."

Her father, Earle Looker, is a biographer of the President.

Infant Death Rate in D. C. Is Discussed

Dr. Oppenheimer Urges Co-operative Plan to Lower Figure.

Infant Mortality in D. C. Higher Than United States Average.

Causes contributing to Washington's high infant mortality rate and plans now being devised to reduce the rate were discussed yesterday by Dr. Ella Oppenheimer, director of Maternal and Infant Welfare for the D. C. Department of Hhealth.

Formerly connected with the Children's Bureau of the U. S. Department of Labor, Dr. Oppenheimer made studies of infant mortality in a number of localities. A comprehensive bulletin based on her findings in Memphis and a program she helped to work out there recently will be released soon by the Children's Bureau.

Thumbing through an advance copy of the pamphlet yesterday, Dr. Oppenheimer discussed some of the infant welfare problems, similar to those now existing in Washington, that had been satisfactorily solved in Memphis, where the health department, the medical and nursing professions and social service organizations worked out a co-operative correction program that took the city out of the group branded with high infant mortality rates.

Task Is Many Sided.

"The task of providing an adequate maternal and child welfare service for a community is a many-sided one," said Dr. Oppenheimer. "It depends first of all on a good general health program, for all those measures necessary to protect the health of other members of the community are even more necessary for the protection of mothers and children. For example, the control of tuberculosis and venereal diseases, the provision of pure water and milk supplies, the provision of adequate facilities for the care of the sick, the provision of basic needs for food, shelter and clothing are all necessary factors in reducing infant mortality. Washington's inadequacy in all these respects is well known."

In this connection Dr. Oppenheimer pointed out that only one U. S. city having a population of more than 400,000 had a higher infant mortality rate than Washington. "The latest census report shows that Washington, in fact, has a higher rate than the United States as a whole," she said.

More Public Health Nurses.

Stressing that present available facilities for prenatal, natal and postnatal care are woefully inadequate, she said that one of the greatest needs in this regard at present is for more public health nurses. "At present, counting the nurses available for service at Children's Hospital and those in the Visiting Nurse Society, we have at most only 150 nurses for public health work. A city the size of Washington needs at least 300 persons available for this service."

Extended clinical facilities — "enough clinics to care for all mothers before and after childbirth"—and a child health education service that would result in mothers' registering for prenatal care much earlier than most of them have in Washington in the past would be other safeguards against infant deaths, Dr. Oppenheimer believes. She hopes within the year to complete a detailed study of the local infant mortality situation with the end in view of working out a program involving the co-operative effort and interest of health and social agencies, the medical, nursing and social work professions.

Six Fight Contempt Charge by Senate

Attacks on indictments accusing them of contempt of the Senate were lodged in District Court by six officials of the Railway Audit & Inspection Co., Inc., yesterday with the observation that the law under which they were indicted was not properly passed by Congress.

The six are charged with having refused to appear before the Senate Committee investigating labor troubles. They were W. W. Groves, W. Boone Groves, James E. Blair, James C. Boyer, Robert S. Judge and L. Douglas Rice.

The principal point raised by the accused men is that their presence was not essential to the course of the congressional investigation. Oral arguments will be heard on the attacks next week.

Forum Here to Hold Youth Act Symposium

A symposium on the American youth act will be the subject of the next session of the Capital City Forum to be held tomorrow at 8:15 o'clock at 1502 Fourteenth street northwest.

The speakers will include William F. Goodykoontz, a student of George Washington University Law School; William W. Hinckley, national chairman of the American Youth Congress; Joseph P. Lash, national secretary of the American Student Union, and Natalie Moorman, of the New Negro Alliance.

Detectives Seize Burglar Trying To 'Crack' Safe

A would-be safecracker was "caught in the act" early yesterday morning while he was attempting to open a safe in a paint company store at 1445 Church street northwest with an acetylene torch.

The intruder tried to escape police through the roof of the building. He was captured hiding behind an automobile on the third floor by Detective Sergts. Joseph W. Shimon and Harry Britton.

The detectives were summoned by a passerby who noticed the burglar crawl through a window. The torch and other tools were found near the 500-pound safe, which had been pushed from the office to a rear room.

At police headquarters the man gave his name as Harold Hayes, colored, 29, first block P street northwest. He was held for investigation.

Woman Hit, Badly Injured By Auto Here

Elderly Pedestrian Confined to Hospital; 21 Licenses Suspended.

A 70-year-old woman was confined to Georgetown Hospital last night suffering painful injuries received when she was struck by an automobile.

The woman, Rosa Myers, 3620 Connecticut avenue northwest, was knocked down at Connecticut avenue and Porter street northwest by an automobile operated, police said, by Bernard Clarke, 36, of 1240 Twenty-second street northwest.

Witnesses said the woman walked into the path of Clarke's machine from behind parked cars. She was treated for cuts to her head and body and for shock. Clarke was not held by police.

Twenty-one driving licenses were suspended for temporary periods yesterday when the revocations board acted on the cases of motorists charged with speeding.

Thirty-day suspensions—Lamar Brown, 1018 Ninth street northeast, 40 miles; Arthur C. Downer, 1324 Euclid street northwest, 40 miles; Herbert Fingerhut, 605 Decatur street northwest, 48 miles; James A. Planners to Honor Members of NRC

Dr. Charles E. Merriam, Dr. Baldwin M. Woods and Charles W. Eliot 2d will speak at the dinner honoring the National Resources Committee, which will be given at the Willard Hotel tomorrow night by the American Planning and Civic Association.

"Our National Resources under Reorganization" will be the general theme of the program, at which the hosts will be Frederic A. Delano, president, and the directors of the association.

Dr. Merriam, who is a member of the NRC and of the President's committee on administrative management, will speak on "Planning Possibilities under the President's Reorganization."

"Planning on the Pacific Coast" will be the subject of Dr. Woods, chief of the department of mechanical engineering at the University of California.

Eliot, executive officer of the NRC, will report on the achievements of the committee since its establishment in 1933.

B. & O. Underpass Nears Completion

A new underpass beneath tracks of the B. & O. and Pennsylvania Railroads on Eastern avenue in Kenilworth will be opened for traffic early next week, Capt. H. C. Whitehurst, highway director, announced yesterday.

This project is part of the District's grade-crossing elimination program and was completed at a cost of $200,000. With its opening, a grade crossing at Quarles street northeast will be closed.

Work on the new viaduct at Michigan avenue near Catholic University also is nearing completion, Capt. Whitehurst said. Both these projects were included in the city's $410,000 grade crossing program.

An additional allotment of $250,000, granted recently by the Bureau of Public Roads, will be used for widening the present underpass on Bladensburg road near New York avenue northeast, it was reported.

Senate Gets Art Gallery Gift Measure

National Collection of Fine Arts Is Name Designated.

Details of the proposed administration of the National Art Gallery, which will house the collection donated by Andrew W. Mellon, were disclosed yesterday as Senator Connally, chairman of the Senate Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds, introduced a bill authorizing acceptance of the gift.

The bill specifies that the site for the gallery shall be on a tract bounded by Seventh street, Constitution avenue, Fourth street and North Mall drive.

Additional space is reserved for future expansion of the gallery in a tract bounded by Fourth street, Pennsylvania avenue, Third street and North Mall drive.

Name Is Selected.

The Smithsonian Institution is given authority to permit the A. W. Mellon Educational and Charity Trust to erect the gallery subject to approval by the Fine Arts Commission.

Establishment of a bureau within the Smithsonian to administer the gallery under the direction of the board of trustees of the National Art Gallery is provided. The bureau would be designated the National Collection of Fine Arts.

Members of the board of trustees comprise the Chief Justice, the Secretary of State, the Secretary of the Treasury, the secretary of the Smithsonian and five general trustees chosen by the board of regents of the Smithsonian. Government employes are barred.

The terms of the first five general trustees would expire in successive years beginning in 1939. Successors would be named in each instance for ten years.

Maintenance Pledged.

"The faith of the United States is pledged to appropriate funds to maintain" the National Art Gallery, the bill states. The trustees are directed to bar all works of art which do not meet the high standards of the Mellon collection.

The board is authorized to appoint and fix the salaries of the director, assistant director, secretary and chief curator of the gallery and to pay them out of the trust fund. The employes will be subject to the civil service laws.

The District Commissioners are directed to close Sixth street within the boundary of the site. The National Capital Park and Planning Commission is instructed to make further recommendations for the widening of Third, Seventh, Ninth and other adjacent streets.

Senator Connally said that public hearings will not begin on the bill before the latter part of next week.

Committee Weighs D. C. Budget Pleas

The House sub-committee on District appropriations yesterday heard a half dozen more District department heads and then adjourned hearings temporarily.

Among those heard yesterday were officials from the Public Utilities Commission, the Coroner's office, the department of weights, measures and markets, the Municipal Architect's office, and the chief clerk of the Engineer Department.

Chairman Collins said the committee will not meet today and may not resume hearings until Monday, when school estimates will be considered.

Center Hears Address On Hebrew Scriptures

Attention to a large number of Scriptural words in the litany and liturgy of both church and synagogue, apart from proper names and places, was called last night by B. H. Hartogensis, Baltimore lawyer and publicist, in a lecture before the Jewish Community Center.

Hartogensis took as his topic "How Hebrew Scriptures Have Enriched Our Language."

Poles to Lay Flowers On Kosciuszko Statues

Floral tributes commemorating the birthday of Brig. Gen. Thaddeus Kosciuszko will be placed before his bust in the Capitol and about the monument in Lafayette square tomorrow by members of leading Polish organizations.

Kosciuszko, who fought in the American Revolution, was born February 12, 1746. Wreaths will be placed about the statues by members of the Polish National Alliance and the Polish Women's Alliance of Washington.

Liquor Licenses In District Show Reduction of 147

Washington has 147 less liquor beer and wine dealers than it did at the end of 1936, records of the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board revealed yesterday.

The number was reduced, Isaac Gans, board member, pointed out, when dealers failed to secure license renewals before February 1. Heading the reduction list, he said, are "on sale" beer and wine establishments. On Januaray 31, there was a total of 448 beer and wine dealers in the city. Now there are 367.

The "beer season," however, will see this number increase, Gans declared. Beer sales soar during summer months and drop in the winter, records of the board show. Balance of the decrease in license holders was distributed among "on sale" liquor places and wholesale beer houses.

Relief Workers Oppose Posting Surety Bonds

Order Requiring Them to Pay Premium Stirs Controversy.

A recent order requiring 81 District relief workers to post surety bonds for protection against losses may prompt an open controversy between District heads and welfare employes, it was indicated last night.

When the bonding order was first announced several months ago, relief workers in the Public Assistance Division—whom it will affect—banded together and secured 37 names to a petition of protest. The order was enacted over their objections, however.

Each worker was bonded for $2,000, the cost of which will be taken from their salaries. The protesting workers contended the bonding order placed an unfair burden on them and pointed out that they do not handle actual cash disbursements. The city, they said, should be made to pay the bonding fee of $5 a year.

Records revealed that Miss Alice M. Hill, relief director, has been bonded for $5,000. Eight employes in the office of Auditor Daniel J. Donovan also were required to post bonds, William G. Wilding, an assistant auditor, for $5,000 and the others for $2,500.

Welfare Director Elwood Street said the social workers were professional employes and as such would perform their duties honestly without being bonded.

The George A. Fuller Construction Co. of Washington, builder of several of the new government buildings here was awarded a $5,907,000 contract to construct a new postoffice and courthouse in Los Angeles, the Treasury Department announced last night.

House Given Celler Civil Service Bill

Measure Extending Retirement Act Reported Favorably.

The Celler bill to repeal section 213 of the economy act, known as the "marriage clause," was favorably reported to the House yesterday along with two other bills by the Civil Service Committee.

The measure carries amendments prohibiting the appointment of anyone to a Government job if he has a relative in the service providing the combined salaries of the respective jobs exceeds $4,000 a year. The amendment would not affect persons now in the Government service.

The last vestage of the economy act, the "marriage clause," specifies that when dismissals are necessary in any executive department a man or woman whose wife or husband also is employed by the Government must be dropped first.

The Civil Service Committee also reported a bill to extend the retirement act to legislative employes on Capitol Hill. The measure would extend the retirement privilege to all workers in the House and Senate Office Buildings and the Capitol, but would require them to make up back payments before obtaining pensions.

A third bill approved authorizes the Civil Service Commission to recognize legal or voting residences of applicants for civil service status.

The House Civil Service Committee today will open hearings on the Ramspeck bill to extend the civil service to all executive employes of the Federal Government. Harry B. Mitchell, chairman of the Civil Service Commission, will be the first witness.

Jury Returns 23 Indictments Her

The District Grand Jury yesterday returned 23 indictments to Justice Peyton Gordon in District Court. In addition, the jurors reported three cases in which there was insufficient evidence upon which to base an indictment.

Those indicted were: Charles H. Jones, Charles H. Harrington, Charles Jackson (ten charges), housebreaking; Lester Lynn, jr., grand larceny; John Henderson, Harry H. Jackson, Howard Butler, John Henderson, Porter Lewis, Howard Butler, and John Washington, robbery; Curtis Knight, assault with intent to commit robbery; Joseph G. Tyler, and Eddie Thompson, assault with a dangerous weapon; Aubrey M. Goode, forgery and uttering; Chester Weaver, rape, and James Edward Dyson, second degree murder.

SPORTS The Washington Post SPORTS

* X WASHINGTON: THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 11, 1937 17

This Morning . . .

With Shirley Povich.

Unless Jimmy Braddock knocks Joe Louis horizontal for the required ten seconds in the fistic proceedings at Chicago next June, the genuine heavyweight championship of the world will be clouded by doubt. Anything less than a knockout victory for Braddock would elevate Max Schmeling to the rightful No. 1 ranking among the world's heavyweights.

POVICH.

Schmeling has a far better claim to the challenging role than Louis, of course. It was the stolid-visaged German who tore down the aura of invincibility which had been built up around Louis following his knockout victories over Primo Carnera, Max Baer, Kingfish Levinsky and a horde of lesser lights. Schmeling, with his 12-round knockout of Louis, reduced the Detroit Negro from his super-man stature to the ranking of an ordinary heavyweight.

Yet the managers of Braddock found it expedient to sidetrack Schmeling in signing for Braddock's first defense of the title. The threat of the anti-Nazi boycott in New York and Louis' extreme popularity in the West constrained Braddock's pilot to accept a bout with the Brown Bomber in preference to a Schmeling match.

There was the added purpose, too, of protecting Braddock's interests and equity in the title. Louis, after the Schmeling bout, and particularly after the Pastor bout, appeared a far safer opponent than the man who knocked him out. Off his performance against Louis, Schmeling would have been a prohibitive favorite against Braddock. Against Louis, Braddock may be no underdog in the betting.

The walls of Schmeling from across the ocean will hardly fall upon sympathetic ears, though. It is agreed, of course, that Schmeling was given the run-around in the title arrangements, but it is recalled, too, that Schmeling does not come into the case with clean hands in that respect. It was Schmeling who set the style for run-outs when he refused to give Jack Sharkey a return bout after winning the title on a foul. Eventually he did fight Sharkey but not until after he had given the late Billy Stribling a shot at the crown.

There is nothing particularly inspiring about the history of the heavyweight championship since that evening in 1928 when Gene Tunney kissed off the title after defending it successfully against Tom Heeney. Since Tunney retired undefeated, the title has fallen into hands of guys who will never be ranked among the ring immortals.

Dempsey held the crown for seven years from 1919 to 1926, but in the past nine years it has passed dizzily from hand to hand. Braddock, the present incumbent, is the fifth man to hold the crown since Tunney.

Max Schmeling came into the title under most embarrassing circumstances for a champion. He was sitting down on the floor when he inherited it, knocked there by the fists of Jack Sharkey and gaining the title when his manager, Joe Jacobs, outshouted everybody else at the ringside and won his claim of foul.

There was nothing particularly brilliant, either, about the manner in which Sharkey eventually won the title from Schmeling. The pair staged a 15-round bout which was little more than a gymnasium workout and, at the finish, a pair of astigmatic judges decided that Sharkey had the edge in what little fighting occurred.

Sharkey will probably be best remembered not because he once held the title but because he lost it to a joke champion and physical monstrosity—Primo Carnera. There are still ringsiders at that Brooklyn battle who vow that Sharkey went down and was counted out from the effects of nothing more severe than the breeze of one of Ponderous Primo's errant uppercuts.

Carnera defended his title successfully only once. On that occasion he was meeting the venerable Tommy Loughran and had a 70-pound weight advantage, but Loughran was still upright at the finish. The next time Carnera defended his title he lost it.

That was against Max Baer. Between the pair of 'ems there wasn't enough boxing skill to balance the scales against a fugitive hair from a shaving brush. But Carnera forgot to duck, and Baer floored him nine times with round-house swings to the Italian's glass jaw. Speaking of glass jaws, it was that fight which gave rise to the belief that Carnera actually used bon ami as shaving soap.

And Baer? Well, he was indeed a great champion. The first time he defended his title he met a washed-up heavyweight who had been beaten 19 times by actual count, who was only one year off the relief roles, so unprofitable had been his fistic appearances. Yet Baer lost and Jimmy Braddock was crowned as champion.

In any comparison with the past history of the heavyweight title, the modern era is distinctly shamed. Before 1926, the title had never changed hands in a bout in which both challenger and champion were on their feet at the finish. Yet three of the six recent champions—Tunney, Sharkey and Braddock—gained the title on decisions. And a fourth—Schmeling—won it on a foul. Old-timers have cause to sneer.

Moynihan Is, Isn't New G. W. Football Aid

TIM MOYNIHAN.

By Lewis F. Atchison.

Irish Tim Moynihan last night was an assistant football coach at George Washington University—and then again he wasn't. The situation, to say the least, was more than slightly confusing and no little mystifying.

Earlier in the afternoon the former Notre Dame center, who has been on the coaching staffs at Texas University and Geargetown, was reported signed as an assistant for the 1937 grid campaign, but a subsequent investigation brought denials of this. He has been invited to help out with spring training at George Washington, it was disclosed, but whether or not he has signed a contract for a full-time position could not be confirmed.

Neither Jim Pixlee, head coach and director of athletics, nor Moynihan, could be reached for statements, but it probably is just as well. Each added attempt to clarify the situation and Moynihan's position—if he has any—only served to muddle it further.

Just a Student.

Max Farrington, Pixlee's assistant and an instructor in physical education, explained Moynihan's presence at George Washington, but very unsatisfactorily, as he admitted. Farrington presented what he termed the absolute, unadulterated facts in the case, and concluded with a remark that his own explanation—although true—sounded rather "screwy" and he wouldn't blame anybody for not believing it.

Moynihan, he said, registered in the physical education course at G. W. without any athletic official, save Bill Myers, knowing of his presence. One of Myers' principal duties is to help students, athletes especially, plan their classroom work to fit in with outside activities, such as employment. He helped Moynihan map a course to suit his everyday program.

Farrington first became aware of Moynihan's presence on the campus when he espied the latter in one of

Chicago Bout Signing Due Next Week

Clark, Who Engineered $500,000 Bid, Says to 'Go Ahead.'

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Feb. 10.—The signing ceremony which will bind James J. Braddock and Joe Louis to contracts for a heavyweight championship fight in Chicago in June, will be held next Thursday or Friday, Joe Triner, chairman of the Illinois State athletic commission, announced today.

Triner said the signing, originally scheduled for last Monday but delayed because of uncertainity over the battle site, would go through without a hitch this time. He said he had notified the Braddock and Louis boards of strategy to come to Chicago in plenty of time to arrange their affairs and expected no difficulty.

The new date, or dates, were made following a long distance conversation with Sheldon Clark, head of the sporting club of Illinois, and the man who offered Braddock the $500,000 guarantee to defend the title here, Triner said. Clark, at some undisclosed place in the East, gave the word to go ahead, the commission head said.

The setting of dates indicated the question of a battleground would be settled soon. Triner had planned to summon the boxers and their managers here this week, but set the time for next week to give the Chicago Park District an opportunity to act on the bid for Soldier Field. The park group yesterday delayed its decision until next Monday.

"We are determined to get this thing settled quickly," Triner said. "We would have set an earlier date except for the necessity of waiting for action from the park board on Soldier Field. Both Braddock and Louis will be busy next Wednesday, but they will be able to come here not later than Friday."

Braddock has a refereeing engagement Wednesday, and Louis has a ten-round piece of fight business with Natie Brown at Kansas City on his schedule for that night.

The title fight question was not mentioned at a meeting of Mayor Edward J. Kelly's charter centennial jubilee committee today.

Ambers Victor; Crowd Boos Decision

Ambers fought at the class limit, 135 pounds, while Day scaled 136¼.

The fight was close enough so that Ambers needed a split verdict of the officials to carry off the decision.

The two judges, Jack Britton and William (Kid) McPartland, both former fighters of renown, voted in favor of the champion. Each scored six rounds for Ambers, three for Day and one even. The youthful referee, Frank Fullam, marked his ballot for Day, giving the Chicagoan five rounds, Ambers four and scoring one even.

On the Associated Press scoresheet, Ambers won six rounds and Day, four—the fifth, eighth, ninth and tenth.

Day, carrying a heavier punch, rallied too late to overcome the early margin of points piled up by the champion. So effective was the Chicagoan's closing spurt, however, as he battered Ambers with left hooks and sharp right crosses, that the crowd booed the verdict lustily.

There were no knock downs, although Ambers slipped to one knee in the second round, and both tumbled to the canvas in the fourth while trying to wrestle from a clinch.

Lacking anything like a damaging wallop in either hand, Ambers relied on his speed, agility and left hook to pull him through. He had Day baffled by his jumping-jack tactics until the fifth round.

Ring Heads Bar Lewis; Furr In Trouble

By Bill McCormick.

World Light-Heavyweight Champion John Henry Lewis, Southern Welterweight Champion Jack Portney and District Welterweight Champion Phil Furr were among those officially declared "in trouble" with the National Boxing Association yesterday, The Post learned.

World Champion Lewis was suspended for one year in the territory governed by the N. B. A. The national organization wants to know why Portney was signed and ready to go through with a fight against the Cocoa Kid in Baltimore last Monday night, even though he was still under suspension, and the solons of sock are asking why Phil Furr is advertised as being managed by George Sheppard, New York fight manager who bosses Portney, when Portney's suspension grew out of his failure to meet Furr here.

Just to make matters more complicated and complete, the N. B. A. has indefinitely suspended Sheppard for "violation of contract" in the State of New Jersey.

Lewis Barred For Year.

Lewis was suspended under a rule passed by the N. B. A. in its annual convention in Texas last summer. This rule says that if a fighter under suspension by the organization boxes in a State not under the jurisdiction of the N. B. A., such fighter shall automatically be suspended for one year by the association.

Lewis was suspended by the N. B. A. until he went through with a contract to fight in Washington, made last summer. While that suspension still was in effect, Lewis accepted fights in Pennsylvania, a State not affiliated with the N. B. A. Hence the one-year suspension.

Portney was suspended by the N. B. A. until he fulfilled a contract to box Phil Furr here. He was booked to fight the Cocoa Kid in Baltimore, which also works with the N. B. A., but when the District Boxing Commission protested, the match was postponed "because Portney had injured his hand." The N. B. A. now is demanding that the Maryland commission explain why

3 Champions Repeat as 61st Westminster Dog Show Opens

By the Associated Press.

New York, Feb. 10.—It was a happy reunion for most of the 1937 best of breeds today as the sixty-first show of the Westminster Kennel Club opened in Madison Square Garden with a record entry of 3,144.

In the quick changing of the dog ring, many of last year's winners staved off the challenges of youngsters. Outstanding were three dogs who achieve the exceptional feat of topping their breeds for the third straight year. One of the Big Six of the show last year, one of those which gained the climactic best of show class, made her first step to repeat that honor and there were several other substantial victories.

The three-time winners were Mrs. M. Hartley Dodge's bloodhound, Brigadier of Reynalton; Mrs. William MacFarland's black chow chow, Far Land Thundergust, and Frederick Poffet's French bulldog, La France Model III. The chow judge had very little difficulty in selecting Thundergust, as he is regarded as an almost flawless specimen.

Harry T. Peters' Greyhound White Rose of Boveway was the best in show candidate from last year, which again won in her breed. The pure white hound stood out among the 18 entries.

The decision in one of the most popular breeds, the bull terrier class of 62 dogs, also went to a 1936 winner, Mrs. Z. Platt Bennett's Pantigon of Enderley of Coolyn Hill. Another repeater was the giant Schnauzer, Dewet of Ago Farm, owned by Eugene Greenhut.

The first upset of the three-day show occurred when last year's wirehaired fox terrier best, Wee Bit Tipsey of Hollyheath, succumbed to a newly imported English bitch, Flornell Spicypiece of Halleston. The latter, owned by Stanley J. Halles, of Chappaqua, N. Y., is a pure white animal and is highly regarded in the breed, which has put up more best in shows than any other.

Endymion of Limo Ridge, owned by Mrs. H. A. Fortington, of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., placed fourth in the puppy class of bull terriers. The winner was the Combrook Kennels' Combrook Snap.

Eureka! The Barkless Dog Evolves; On Display in London; Odorless, Too

London, Feb. 10 (U.P.).—Barkless dogs—basenjis from the heart of Central Africa—were exhibited tonight to London dog fanciers for the first time in any civilized land.

Great crowds assembled around Bongo and Bereke and their eight puppies at Cruft's annual dog show in Agricultural Hall, where 4,332 dogs, valued at $5,000,000 were exhibited.

The basenjis are the rarest breed here. They were brought from Africa by Miss Olivia Burns, who has picked up a nice piece of change from them and is rushing up some more by airplane.

Generations of dusky masters, who use them to chase game, taught them not to bark. Finally evolution stamped out their bark altogether, although they growl gently.

Hoyas 2d Half Attack Cuts Cadet Lead

Special Dispatch to The Post.

West Point, N. Y., Feb. 10.—Georgetown's fast-moving basketball five came here today and hung a defeat on the Army team, 40 to 37.

It was the third defeat in a row for the Cadets. The game was hotly contested throughout, Army being in the lead at half time, 19 to 16.

It was very effective long-range guns, in the persons of Shore, Bertrand, and Franks, wh.ch disorganized Army momentarily and turned the tide of battle in the Hoyas' favor early in the second half.

At the outset of the game Army flashed a speedy attack which netted them an 11-to-2 advantage after ten minutes of play. Samuel, Brinker, Meyer and Sullivan had featured in this point getting. Kurtyka, Nolan and Franks, with keen shooting from scrimmage, narrowed the Army's margin to a bare 3 points at half time.

The Hoya bombardment was halted at mid-time of the second half. But Army's shots were all going wild and the Cadets could make no headway.

A stiff Army defense kept the Collegians way out until they finally got the range and began wheeling their big berthas into action. With only two minutes to go Georgetown led, 38 to 32. Petroskey dropped one in from far down the court. Cadet Samuel got close up and his shot went through. Shore fouled him on the try and Samuel made good on the free throw. The Army bleachers were in an uproar, but the rally was halted by the final gun just as Cadet Pendleton's long shot went through the hoop.

Samuel, of Army, led the scoring with 11 points, scoring five field goals and a free throw. Franks was outstanding for Georgetown by his all-round playing. He also led his team in point getting.

Army Frees Jones For Nebraska Job

Norman, Okla., Feb. 10 (AP).—A routine army order divorced the twin careers of Maj. Lawrence (Biff) Jones today, leaving him free for his foremost love—football.

The order released him from active Army duty. Recently "the Biffer" gave up coaching at the University of Oklahoma, where he was an R. O. T. C., instructor, to remain in the Army. Then he gave up the Army to coach at the University of Nebraska.

Jones had been ordered to an officers' school at Fort Leavenworth, Kans., where his long coaching career might have ended.

He said he would leave for Lincoln, Nebr., Monday, the day Tom Stidham will open spring football practice here.

At the end of last season the tall, stern-faced mentor announced he would quit football to accept the Fort Leavenworth assignment he had passed up three years before.

Catholic U. Boxers Face Upset Threat in Terror Team Tonight

Catholic University's pupils of punch take another test tonight, but this one, a match with Western Maryland, is not included in the regular mid-year examinations. The first bout is scheduled for 8:30 o'clock at Brookland.

Not so terrifying this season, but not as green as when they emerged from the Maryland match rather battered and decidedly beaten, the Green Terrors figure to give the Cardinals a much closer fight than the average fan figures. The up-State squad has outstanding men in at least three weights, and with the help of an upset or two along the line, they can easily score a much bigger upset in the form of a victory over the Cardinals.

Tony Orienzi, captain and light-heavyweight, is the team's most potent puncher, and, despite his defeat by Lancelot Jacques, Maryland's sensational rookie, is still a top-flight college fighter able to go with the best. His opponent will be either Ed Dunne or Fred Rogers, depending on Rogers' ability to make the weight.

Another lad to be watched carefully, especially by the Catholic U. boy who faces him, is Clint Walker, middleweight, who is undefeated this season. Bob Walton, of Maryland, Rizzie, of Penn State; Edwards, of Navy, and Rugo, of M. I. T., are included in his casualty list. His record will be seriously endangered by Sully Greco's presence in the ring, however, for the latter is one of Coach Eddie La Fond's most adept pupils and a rugged, willing fighter.

This will be Catholic's last match before next week's important debate with Maryland at College Park, and La Fond is hopeful of turning in an impressive victory. He will rely on the same men who soundly thrashed Pitt last week, including Mr. Tex Guinan, the featherweight, who hopes to impress the judges sufficiently to win a decision for a change.

Baer-Pastor Bout Is Turned Down

New York, Feb. 10 (AP)—The New York State Athletic Commission declined today to approve a proposed ten-round heavyweight bout between Bob Pastor and Max Baer, pending applications by Baer and his manager, Ancil Hoffman, for licenses in this State.

Jimmy Johnston, director of boxing for Madison Square Garden, said the Garden expected to put on the match March 19.

Hero's Horse Wins And Really Saves Day

Los Angeles, Feb. 10 (AP).—Fogarty, 4-year-old in the stables of Neil Evans, Canadian sportsman, raced to victory and paid—not the fabled homestead mortgage—a breach of contract judgment against its owner.

Patricia Ridgeway, who recently won the $1,500 judgment attached Evans' horses. They were to be sold today.

But Evans paid, explaining he had won the money when Fogarty raced home first at Santa Anita Saturday. Pari-mutuels paid 4 to 1 on Fogarty, on which Evans had wagered $300.

Dougher, Local Newsman, Dies

Louis A. Dougher, 55, Washington newspaperman and former sports editor of the Washington Times, died last night at the Alexandria, Va., hospital following a heart attack.

Stricken at his home in Bon Air, Va., last Saturday, Dougher was taken to the Alexandria hospital the following day. Oxygen was administered throughout the past two days.

A native of Boston, Dougher had a record of 26 years' service with the Washington Times, 15 years of which were as sports editor. He was the author of a popular daily sports column entitled "Looking 'Em Over," and for several years was a traveling correspondent with the Washington Baseball Club.

Surviving Dougher are his wife, Mrs. Thelma Dougher, and four foster children, John, 26; Henry, 24; George, 20, and Mrs. William Cleveland, all of Washington. Masonic funeral services will be announced.

Blackbirder, Mountainy Man Entry Runs One, Two at Hialeah

Chasar Fails As 4-5 Shot In Race

By the Associated Press.

Hialeah Park, Fla., Feb. 10.—Blackbirder and Mountainy Man, two horses recently acquired by F. L. Flanders at private terms, finished one, two in the grade "B" handicap of a mile and a furlong that headed the eighth race card offered here today. Blackbirder was an easy winner by two lengths over his stablemate, while Mountainy Man had five lengths to spare over B. F. Lister's Old Comrade. The time was 1:51 3-5.

Mrs. Emil Denemark's usual luck was missing in this event. Her six-year-old Chasar was a 4 to 5 favorite in the field of five. He never was a threat and wound up fourth, giving the impression that he might not have liked the soft going which resulted from showers. Ned Storm was the only other starter.

The Flanders entry paid $5.60 straight and $3.50 place. Blackbirder now has three straight victories to his credit, the last two for his new owner. The gelding was purchased from Mrs. C. Hainsworth. Mountainy Man, just acquired from T. S. and J. S. Mulvihill, was making his first start for Flanders. He, along with Chasar, Old Comrade and Ned Storm, was named for the $50,000 added Widener Challenge cup of March 6.

Mountainy Man and Blackbirder delayed the start Starter Cassidy finally placed both of them, outside the stalls and got a good start.

The Flanders pair used perfect teamwork in the running. Mountainy Man set the pace to the top of the stretch, running Ned Storm into defeat. Then Lester Balaski called on Blackbirder. The son of Bostonian picked up the leaders and drew away. Old Comrade, which looked sore going postward, lasted to beat Chasar a neck for the show.

Yes Siree, liberally priced at $11.40 for $2, won his third purse in five starts as the program began. Eleven 2-year-old colts and geldings went postward in the three-furlong dash. Earl Steffen, crack juvenile rider, urged Yes Siree into command a few jumps after the start. The colt opened up plenty of daylight and easily earned top honors by three lengths. Armor Bearer, a paddock tip, raced forwardly and nipped Stormy Sea right on the wire for the place, which required a photo decision.

The first division of the split Coral Gables purse, 6½-furlong dash for 3-year-olds, saw Maxwell Howard's Sceneshifter, the $3.30 for $2 choice, an easy winner with four lengths to spare. This Colt, along with Fencing, recently was acquired from J. E. Widener. Sceneshifter has turned in three excellent races since changing hands. The son of Sickle took an early lead and romped along unextended, finishing in 1:19 1-5. Mrs. Payne Whitney's Tattered showed a very impressive winter debut in finishing second. Last for the first quarter mile, the colt closed with giant strides and ate up the ground fast-starting Harp o' Gold, then

The "helpful purse" event resulted in a hard-earned victory for Night Raven, whose backers collected at a rate of better than 11 to 1. Earl Porter, making his first appearance of the season, ran a splendid race and was beaten a scant neck after appearing to stumble in the stretch drive. Wild Pigeon was a length farther back in the third hole. Night Raven overtook the fast-starting Harp O' Gold, then hooked up in a duel with Earl Porter, which shot up with a rush around the far turn.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—YES SIREE, $11.40, $5.00, $3.40; ARMOR BEARER, $9.00, $6.40; STORMY SEA, $3.50.

YES SIREE broke very fast, quickly ran into lead, and drew away easily at end. ARMOR BEARER ran straight down the center of the track and was second in last stride. STORMY SEA got away fast, ran straight, but weakened in last sixteenth. BUSSE TRUMPET was hard ridden all the way. SILVADOR was blocked just after the start and had no chance. FAMILY FRIEND suffered early interference.

WEATHER, SHOWERY. TRACK, GOOD.

SECOND RACE—Seven furlongs (chute). Purse, $800; claiming. The Helpful. For 3-year-olds and upward, nonwinners of two races in 1937. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 2:35. Two-dollar mutuels paid—NIGHT RAVEN, $24.20, $12.00, $6.60; EARL PORTER, $6.40, $3.90; WILD PIGEON, $3.40.

NIGHT RAVEN, showing a liking for the soft going, ran into early lead, showed speed and held on gamely. EARL PORTER moved up fast around turn, but appeared to have stumbled at furlong pole. He recovered and finished gamely. WILD PIGEON, on the inside, ran good race. WHATWAY was a fast-going fourth. RECOVERY stopped badly.

$2.00 DAILY DOUBLE, FIRST AND SECOND RACES, PAID $179.80.

THIRD RACE—Six and one-half furlongs. Purse, $1,000. The Coral Gables (first division). For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won easily; place driving. Went to post at 3:04. Off at 3:10½. Two-dollar mutuels paid—SCENESHIFTER, $3.30, $3.10, $2.60; TATTERED, $6.00, $3.70; PROPH, $3.30.

SCENESHIFTER got away well, moved into lead at far turn, drew away and won nicely in hand. TATTERED, away slowly and outrun in early part, was taken to the outside in stretch and closed with a rush. PROPH, well up all the way, had no mishap. ZACA was sharply cut off at far turn and taken to outside, finished gamely. DEBATE had early speed.

FOURTH RACE—One mile (chute). Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place driving. Went to post at 3:35. Off at 3:35½. Winner, P. Bieber's b. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—HERMIE ROY, $18.40, $8.60, $5.00; KERRY PATCH, $3.80, $3.10; BELLUM, $3.70.

HERMIE ROY was outrun going into backstretch, began to move up turning out of backstretch, came around field, caught leader at furlong pole and won going away. KERRY PATCH closed fast and was next best. BELLUM did not appear to like the going. ATTA KNIGHT had no mishap. COUNT RAE stopped badly after assuming the lead.

FIFTH RACE—One mile and a furlong. Purse, $1,000. Grade C Handicap. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start poor. Won ridden out; place easily. Went to post at 4:05. Off at 4:09½. Winner, W. J. Sprow's br. g. (4), by Thunderstorm—Lather. Trained by K. Ramsey. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:51.

†F. L. Flanders entry.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BLACKBIRDER (entry) $5.60, $3.50; MOUNTAINY MAN (entry), $3.50; no show mutuels.

BLACKBIRDER, at home in the going, followed pace to top of stretch, where he moved into lead and was going away at end. MOUNTAINY MAN broke well in motion, assumed lead early, set fast pace in the going and was next best. OLD COMRADE appeared sore going to the post, but ran out of it and finished well. CHASAR was hard ridden last half mile, but failed to close any ground. He ran as if he did not like the going. NED STORM ran well for six furlongs, then quit.

SEVENTH RACE—Six and one-half furlongs. Purse, $1,000. The Coral Gables (second division). For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 5:06. Off at 5:07. Winner, Cosgrave Stable's b. g. (3), by Caruso—Diana D. Trained by A. E. Alexandra. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:18.

St. John's Defeats Central, 29-27

Extra Period Decides in Thriller

Swaggert Is Hero as His Foul Shot Paves Way for Victory.

Staging a Rover Boy finish, St. John's never-say-die Cadets gained a last second tie with the visiting Central quintet and nosed it out 29 to 27 in an extra period in a game that left a capacity crowd limp with excitement.

Trailing 25 to 22 with scarcely two fleeting seconds remaining, the Johnnies were boosted to 24 when Jack Reges, lanky center, flipped in a miraculous pivot shot from the foul stripe. Then with the time keeper nervously fingering his whistle, Billy Vermillion's frantic guarding caused him to foul Jimmy Swaggart, Cadet forward, simultaneously with the game-ending whistle.

With a deadly silence prevailing, this indifferent-appearing youngster stepped calmly to the line and sent the all-important shot toward the hoop. Striking the back rim the pellet caromed off the backboard and teetered precariously on the rim for a breathless fraction of a second as the hopes of the two teams who had fought four gruelling periods rested on the way it fell. Finally the ball wavered and then nestled in the mesh as an ear-piercing shout went up from the St. John's rooters.

Greble Makes goal.

Jimmy Gieble opened the extra period with a sensational leaping one hander and when Joe Gallagher looped one in from mid-court, the Cadets lead 29-25 with a minute left. Ralph Matera, sub forward, made a pot shot and Central was still in the game. From the wild, ensuing scrimmages many a desperate shot was flung but none found the mark. A last-minute shot by Matera rolled around the rim. Then the whistle again blew, this time proclaiming a victory 29-27.

The battle started tamely enough with both teams playing ragged ball and missing countless easy baskets and Central led 8-6 at the half. Charley Clark, Central guard went wild in the third stanza to score four baskets and Ralph Matera added another while Reges and Swaggart were keeping Cadet hopes alive. The fourth quarter opened with Central holding a 18-14 advantage and the game began to pep up.

Heygster boosted the visitors' score with a one-hand shot and Clark scored a snowbird after a clever fake and dribble. Gallagher and Reges and Swaggart retaliated in quick succession. Central led 22-20. Clark dropped in a foul to leave the Cadets three points behind. Reges flipped in a uncanny pivot shot to pull his team within a point of a tie. Then it was that the foul cropped up and spelled disaster for Central.

City Bank Wins Pin Loop Lead

After riding serenely atop the Bankers League since the beginning of the season, American Security No. 1 met up with its successor last night at Arcadia when City Bank, with three victories over the pacesetters, took the commanding position by a total pinfall margin.

Al Wright refused to take defeat without a struggle, chalking up a 396 set, aided by a new high season record game of 168. City Bank's rise to first place was the result of a 594 game and 1699 set.

Galt Davis' champion Rosslyn girls dealt Convention Hall a severe facing in the Ladies District League, with scores of 600, 537 and 541, for a 1,678 total. Lucy Rose featured the match with a 142 game and 351 set, being backed by Rena Levy's 343 and Blanche Wootten's 340. Highway Engineering dropped to seven games behind the leading Rosslyn aggregation, losing the middle game of its match with Arcadia when the latter compiled an seven 600 game, Pauline Ford, of the Engineers, threw in the best set of the night, a 369 effort.

Lorraine Gulli boosted her average over 112 in Lucky Strike's clean sweep over Temple, the Lucky Strike ace shooting a 138 game and 366 set. National Bee bettered its position in third place by blanking Swanee, Lucille Young leading the way for the Brewers with a 351 set.

General Land Office increased its lead to three games in the Lucky Strike Ladies League by whipping the second-place Commerce team two games . . . Both the leading teams in the Chestnut Farms Dairy League took a nose dive last night, the last-place Butter and Egg five taking the odd game from Wholesale and the seventh-place Accounting team humbling the District Men three games . . . Woodcock's 122 game featured Mount Pleasant's odd-game decision over Washington Centennial in the Eastern Star League.

Howard Five Bows To Carolinians, 30-24

Before a capacity crowd in the Howard University Gymnasium last night, the Bison quintet representing that institution suffered its fifth straight defeat of the season at the hands of the Greensboro, N. C., Agricultural and Technical College five, to the tune of, 30-24.

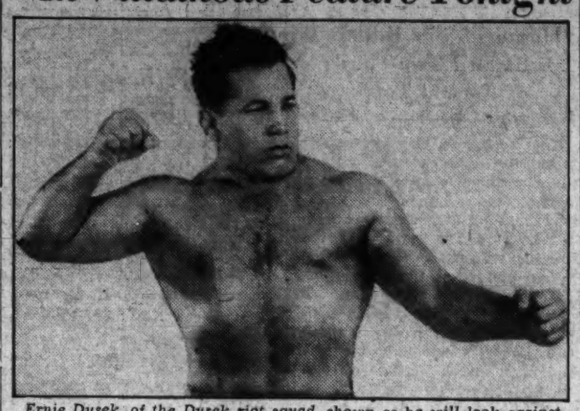
Referees—Cupid and Young.

Ernie Dusek Wrestles Katan In Villainous Feature Tonight



Ernie Dusek, of the Dusek riot squad, shown as he will look against John Katan, who defeated Joe Dusek last week. Ernie has his hair mussed up and is ready to shoot a right to the jaw, in the approved Dusek manner.

An ancient, if not honorable, wrestling feud will be settled at Turner's Arena tonight when Ernie Dusek and John Katan meet before what should be the season's first sell-out grappling contest.

Katan is a reformed unethical wrestler, who gave up his rough and tumble tactics when he found himself completely outclassed at being villainous against Ernie Dusek two weeks ago. Ernie subdued Jawn, but only after 49 minutes of some of the fastest action seen on a local mat in many months—and after the referee had considerably balled things up by stepping between the two grapplers just as Ernie was letting fly the punch which dropped Katan for keeps.

Last week, Katan started out after the entire Dusek family and drew as his first opponent in the planned mass massacre, Ernie's younger brother, Joe Dusek. Katan whipped Joe, and immediately demanded a rematch with Ernie, which he got and which serves him right.

A star supporting cast rivals the main event in color and promise.

This applies particularly to the clashing of Stanley Pinto and Laverne Baxter, boys who will be out to steal the show from the headliners.

Thirty-minute specials otherwise bring together Ed Meske and Jack Hader, Jack Kennedy vs. Floyd Marshall and Mike Sterlich vs. George McLeod.

Kennedy and Sterlich are two interesting newcomers out of the Pacific Coast, Kennedy being the last man tutored and trained by the late Farmer Burns, and Sterlich a Yugoclavian from the Pacific Coast.

Post Tournament Officials Invite School, College Fives To Compete for D. C. Titles

Stretching a friendly hand toward college and high school teams as well as to an army of other amateur fives, the District A. A. U. basketball committee yesterday announced its eligibility rules for the annual Washington Post A. A. U. tournament, starting March 1.

Headed by Chairman Winfree Johnson, the committee named February 24 as the latest date on which registrations of teams and players may be made. It also approved the Heurich gymnasium as the scene of the tournament.

So far as the players themselves are concerned, the tournament, sponsored by The Washington Post, is open to any individuals who have played at least two games with the team with which they are registered. They may register at the Washington Boys Club and secure blanks either at the Boys Club or The Post sports department a few days.

Must Have Played in Two Games.

The players must have appeared in the two games with their team during the 1936-37 season. Seniors on college and high school teams may play in the tournament on other teams providing they can fill this qualification.

Naturally, college and high school teams may enter the tournament providing they have registered by February 24. The tournament was won last year by George Washington University Freshmen.

The A. A. U. is extending invitations to the eight colleges in the city, Georgetown, Catholic University, George Washington, Maryland, American University, Gallaudet, Wilson Teachers and Southeastern to enter their varsity and freshmen teams.

The city's high schools are also to be tendered invitations. Mere registration does not necessarily commit the team to playing if other developments prevent. Registration must be made before February 24, however.

The teams may register as an athletic club if the university or school prefers not to have its official title used. A fee of $2 per team, the same entrance requirement as asked last year, holds good.

Teams within a 15-mile radius of Washington are eligible to compete.

Colonials Have High Hope for New One Next Year; Davis-Elkins Foe.

A paragraph may be added to George Washington sports history tonight when the eagey Colonials meet up with Davis-Elkins at 8 o'clock in the H street gym, but not because of any expected happening in the game.

The history involves that ancient edifice of white-washed brick and tin top, the gym itself. Variously described as the "Tin Tabernacle," H Street Hippodrome, etc., and whole-heartedly condemned by school officials, students and fans alike, the gym may be no more next year—at least not in its present form.

The more optimistic George Washington supporters have high hopes that next season will find Bill Reinhart's men performing in a brand new gym with ample space for players and spectators alike. If such an event transpires tonight's game will be the last varsity contest in the old gym, hence it will be a brief note on history's page.

George Washington does not expect to be unduly extended by the West Virginians, although the visitors are riding high on the crest of a winning streak. Their latest victim was Shepherdstown, defeated last night by a sizable margin. The Colonials, however, look strong enough to take Davis-Elkins and all of the teams it has whipped, and soundly spank them all, one after the other.

Special Dispatch to The Post

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 10.—After a slow first half, the Navy basketeers found themselves and registered a victory over William and Mary here this afternoon, 42 to 21. Frank Shamer, center; Capt. Bob Ruge, forward, and Bob Laney, guard, tallied the bulk of the Navy's points in that order.

The first ten minutes the Navy second stringers retired with the score knotted at 7 points. During the rest of the period, the Navy regulars ran the score to 17-9.

Furr had been listed as being managed by Sheppard in The Bang, a semiofficial boxing weekly. Since all boxing rules prohibit two boxers managed by the same manager fighting, the N. B. A. wants to know "how come?" that Portney and Furr ever were signed to meet here in the first place.

Ralph Murdock, generally accepted as Furr's manager, has stated that Sheppard is not Furr's manager, but has only acted as Phillip's Eastern representative in booking a series of bouts in New York City.

Sheppard, who besides being in trouble with the N. B. A. over Portney and Furr matters, is in hot water in New Jersey, is well known in Washington. He is listed as managing Portney, Charley Gomer, a lightweight; Pal Silvers, a heavy; Joey Greb, a welterweight; Tin Can Romanelli, a featherweight, and Roger Bernard, a lightweight.

his classes. They had met before, so it was inevitable that a friendly chat should follow in Farirngton's office after class, and later Max suggested that they visit Pixlee. Pixlee, according to Farrington, invited Moynihan to help out in spring training when most of the individual coaching will be done. Moynihan accepted with alacrity and pleasure.

If any financial consideration is involved Farrington denied knowing of it. He pointed out that the school could offer Moynihan something for his services if it so desired, but that this was hardly likely since the husky Irishman would lend his assistance only when he felt in the mood and if he found time.

Moynihan, according to Farrington, told the latter that he is in Washington primarily to secure a position in the Government. Why he should enroll in physical education, or what benefits he would derive from such a course he actually contemplated entering Government service, could not be explained by Farrington.

"It may be that he intends to work while getting his degree," Max reasoned. "But if he intends to remain in the Government I'm just as mystified as anyone else as to his reasons for taking this course. It does sound sorta 'screwy,' doesn't it?"

Yes, it does.

Trojans, Congress Hts. Play for Title Tonight

A battle of basketball giants will take place tonight at 9:15 at Hine Junior High School when the Trojans and Congress Heights meet to decide the leadership in the National League of the Southeast Community Center loop.

Eastern Scores Over Washington-Lee, 20-18

Eastern High School nosed out Washington-Lee, 20-18, in a bitterly contested and brilliantly played game yesterday at Ballston. Neither team was ever ahead by more than four points, and only a spirited rally near the finish won for the Washington quintet.

On the Air Today

Broadway must have chuckled at these benefit shows for the Red Cross and flood sufferers—because the big street of the American entertainment world has pooled its talent resources tonight to give this country the most gigantic, colossal—yes, terrific, free entertainment in history.

National, Columbia and Mutual networks will air the two-hour show, beginning at 12:30 a. m., and continuing until the wee small hours. This is a little late for we Easterners, but Broadway doesn't become free until after the theater crowds have filed out—and anyway, the Middle West and West Coast are entitled to one big extravaganza of this type at a prime hour.

Here's the list of performers who will be heard:

Noel Coward, Beatrice Lillie, Cedric Hardwicke, Evelyn Laye, Frank Lawton, Borrah Minnevitch, Reginald Gardiner, Charles Walters, Mitzi Mayfair, Paul Haakon, Blanche Yurka, Imogene Cocoa, Tamara, Roland Young, Helen Hayes, Vincent Price, Ruth Gordon, Grace George, Marta Abba, John Haliday, Fred Waring and orchestra.

Helen Chandler, Bob Hope, Bramwell Fletcher, Erica Mann, Bert Lahr, Gladys Cooper, Gertrude Lawrence, Charles Kemper, Dudley

Business Now Only 6 PerCent Below Normal

Washington Listed Among Cities Showing Full Recovery.

New York, Feb. 10.—Resting on a firm foundation of recovery, business at the end of January, 1937, stood at only 6 per cent below normal as compared with 21 per cent below in January, 1936, according to the monthly survey of 147 trading areas in the United States conducted by the research department of Brooke, Smith & French.

"Fewer gains," the report states, "were made in business activity among the 147 trading areas during January than for any month since last August. This was true not only of points in the flood district, but also of centers affected by industrial disturbances."

The greatest January gains with indexes improving 3 per cent or more over December were registered in the following 22 areas:

Altoona, Augusta, Camden, Columbia, S. C.; El Paso, Erie, Fort Wayne, Fort Worth, Harrisburg, Jacksonville, Knoxville, Lansing, Minneapolis, Mobile, Newark, New Haven, Oklahoma City, Phoenix, Pueblo, St. Paul, Tampa and Topeka.

These 46 areas were at normal or above in January: Albuquerque, Atlanta, Austin, Bakersfield, Baltimore, Bangor, Billings, Boise, Charleston, W. Va.; Charlotte, Cheyenne, Colorado Springs, Columbia, S. C.; Columbus, Ohio; Dallas, Denver, Detroit, Erie, Grand Junction, Green Bay, Greenville, S. C.; Harrisburg, Houston, Indianapolis, Jackson, Miss.; Jacksonville, Kalamazoo, Manchester, N. H.; Miami, Milwaukee, Peoria, Phoenix, Portland, Oreg.; Reno, Richmond, Shreveport, Sioux Falls, Spokane, Springfield, Mo.; St. Paul, Terre Haute, Tulsa, Washington, D. C.; Wilmington, Winston-Salem and Yakima.

Associated Electric Output Gains 13.1%

New York, Feb. 10.—For January, Associated Gas & Electric System reports net electric output of 389,977,559 units, an increase of 45,120,719 units, or 13.1 per cent above the same month last year.

Production for the 12 months to January 31, amounted to 4,245,021,133 units, which is 479,404,999 units, or 12.7 per cent above the previous year.

Foreign Exchange.

By the Associated Press.

Most foreign currencies worked lower, in terms of the dollar, yesterday as Holland guilders reversed their up-trend for the first time since December 19 last. The Netherlands unit lost .09½ of a cent to 64.66 cents in New York. Amsterdam demand for dollars for commercial and investment use was a factor, bankers said. French francs dipped .00½ of a cent to 4.65⅝ cents and Swiss francs lost .01½ to 22.82½ cents. The pound sterling edged ⅛ of a cent higher to 4.89¼.

In London the dollar was even at 4.89¼ to the pound, unchanged from the overnight New York rate. The American unit in Paris closed at the equivalent of 4.658 cents to the franc, compared with the New York overnight rate of 4.66 cents.

The Market

A Special Correspondent.

Steel and Railroad Shares Head Advance in Active Trading; Wheat Higher.

New York, Feb. 9.—The rise in share prices continued. New gains were made and old ones consolidated in a turnover of close to 3,000,000 shares. On the whole, the stock market looked more substantial than it did yesterday. Convertible bonds were robust, but Government issues softened. Dollars were weak against francs and sterling, but Dutch currency was allowed to slide. Money markets were unchanged. May wheat closed ⅞ of a cent higher at 135¾ cents a bushel.

In stocks the steel division held its sway over the rest of the market. U. S. Steel common opened at a new high price and its ruggedness set the pace. A number of other steel issues topped any prices paid for them in the past five or six years. Among the favorites were American Rolling Mill, National, Bethlehem, Republic and Crucible. Steels were strong from the start and enthusiasm was maintained when at noon U. S. Steel reported the largest volume of shipments for January enjoyed in years.

Because of the activity in Steel and other high-priced stocks the roles played by the low issues seemed less important, but many of them were active. International Agricultural Chemical, International Telephone, American Zinc, Armour and others had a brisk turnover. Amusements were neglected. Warner was a shade lower, but the tendency of the market was to forget the strange episode of yesterday.

Next to the steels the railroad stocks turned in the best score. Some rails ordinarily out of the front rank moved actively forward. Lackawanna and Lehigh Valley were conspicuous. B. & O., Central and Delaware & Hudson made frequent appearances on the ticker tape.

Utilities.

Public utilities were stirred by the action of two large companies yesterday in deciding to register with SEC. Some traders may have assumed that peace with the Government was nearer, or that a new era of expansion was about to open, a view not shared by many utility officials. Copper shares turned more active in the late trading. Cerro and United States Smelting were sharp gainers in the silver section. Rubbers hardened. Mail orders improved. Oil shares were sluggish. Motor stocks did better with interest centered in Chrysler on hopes of a good dividend. The stock advanced two points. Mack and White were strong.

Some interest was taken in the ability of American Can and Continental, long depressed, to snap back 2 points. Paper stocks progressed nicely, helped by mergers. The airplane crash was responsible for a bearish stand on United Air Lines, but most of the aviation group was firm.

How much attention was paid by the markets to the slightly more hopeful tone of news from the strike centers and to the signs of opposition in Congress to the President's plan for packing the Supreme Court with yesmen is difficult to say. Strictly on the basis of general trade conditions were favorable to the bulls. Mid-week reviews of the steel trade told of a further gain in operations "on top of January output that was an all-time record." The Iron Age points out the natural expectation that, if so high a rate can be maintained in the face of strikes and floods, relief from these conditions will bring a further sharp rise. Rush orders now are coming in from the damaged regions, according to the Iron Age. Railroad traffic last week recovered briskly.

Auto Strike.

Wall Street doesn't seem to be able to get a much clearer picture on strike developments than any other section of the country, which is contrary to the usual case; but newspaper headlines suggested some progress was being made. Speculation in the stock market in any event quite evidently is looking beyond day to day developments in Detroit and Washington. It is paying more and more attention to the longer term implications of this country's steady outpouring of money—of more money than is being collected.

All that is most certainly bringing an inflationary boom nearer, and attempts to choke it off by any other means than a halt to Government expenditures may well prove to be futile. Meanwhile the Federal Reserve Board, in a commendable effort to do what it can, is taking up the slack in excess reserves. At the same time it points to its removal of certain dangerous elements it hastens to assure the country that its acts are not going to be especially effective, i. e., that money rates won't thereby be tightened.

Options.

Spreads in the put and call market have increased. The swift rise in Steel has brought a quotation of 7 points down for a put and 7½ points up for a call, one of the widest markets for active stocks, although Allied Chemical option buyers are given no close comfort with 20 down for a put and 25 up for a call. Telephone is 5 and 7. General Electric at 1 down and 2 up and General Motors at 2 down and 3½ up look steady enough. New York Central scarcely suggests expectation of a wide movement, as it is quoted one way for a put and two for a call. Puts on Columbia Gas are offered at the market.

U. S. Steel.

Resumption of the forward drive in United States Steel has given a fillip to gossip of new financing. Steel opened ten minutes after the trading began. It quickly sold at a new high level above 105. The corporation can offer common stock only at 100 or higher, so that the further above par the common goes the easier it will be for financing in common shares, when it is desired so to do. Steel's hundred million improvement program is mentioned as the principal reason for new financing; the other is the year's regular and arrears dividend's on the preferred, amounting to around $58,000,000. Ultimately, it is believed in some quarters that U. S. Steel will sell additional common stock, but the time is not believed to be nearer than midyear, and certainly the market is discounting the event. If an early sale of stock were contemplated, the matter would be presented at the annual meeting in April, proxies for which will go out in a week or so. No hint has been given that a stock sale will be considered at that time.

Wheat Prices Advance With Foreign Buying

2,500,000 Bushels Reported Sold to European Purchasers.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Feb. 10.—Stirred by big purchasing for Germany from Argentina, Canada and Czechoslovakia, wheat soared almost 2 cents today, but partly reacted later under profit-taking. About 2,500,000 bushels of wheat in all were estimated as having been bought today to be shipped to Germany from other countries. Adding impetus to the upturn of wheat values was announcement that domestic flour sales the past week were the largest in two months, owing to a flurry of family buying orders.

At the close, wheat was ⅛@⅞ higher compared with yesterday's finish; May 135⅝@135¾, July 117½@117⅝, Sept. 113½@113⅝; corn unchanged to ¾ lower, May 109⅝@109¾, July 103⅛@104⅛, Sept. 96¾@96⅞; oats unchanged to ⅛ up, May 51@51⅛, and rye unchanged to ⅛ off, May 112½@112⅝. The provisions outcome was 5 to 40 cents setback.

1936 Building Exceeded 1935 By 52 Per Cent

Volume of 5.6 Billion Is Estimated Two-Thirds of Normal Total.

New York, Feb. 10.—Construction activity in 1936 exceeded all advance predictions by a substantial margin, reports Engineering News-Record in its annual review published today. The year's total construction volume registers 5.6 billion dollars, a 52 per cent gain over 1935.

Compared with 1932-33 average which was 2.6 billions, the present level is about 130 per cent above that touched at the bottom of the depression and is almost equal to the 1931 level of construction activity. Thus the industry has reached two-thirds of normal volume, which on a comparable basis may be set at $8,500,000,000. It is significant that the 1936 increase has come despite a marked rise in construction costs, which now stand at the highest levels since 1924.

A prominent feature of the year's economic history is that construction, in company with others of the heavy capital-goods industries, advanced at a much faster rate than did manufacture and general business. Manufacturers gained 15 per cent over 1935, while there was a 14 per cent gain in general business activity. The fact that construction increased more than three times as much is mainly due to its greater depression decline. For the same reason there is more left to be made up in 1937 and 1938.

There is every indication to look forward to an increase of another 25 per cent in construction during 1937, which will bring the coming year's total to $7,000,000,000, although 1937 is certain to see a shift in the relation between private and public work. Public works might fall off somewhat in comparison with the level maintained the past two years. Large Federal project activity is on the decline.

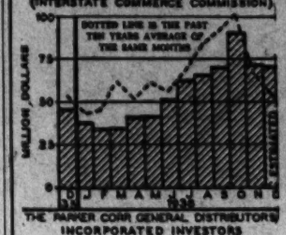
Railroad Net Income Gains 14.5% in Year



Boston, Mass., Feb. 9.—Estimated net railway operating income for December dropped slightly from November income but far less than the normal seasonal drop. Compared with December of last year, railway net was up 52 per cent, while during the full year 1936 net operating income gained 14½ per cent over that in 1935.

Curb Prices Rise In Late Trading

New York, Feb. 10 (AP).—A last-minute buying rush rallied a faltering Curb market today and prices were whipped to about their best levels of the session. Earlier in the afternoon mounting offerings had knocked a substantial portion of the list from the high ground reached in the morning period. Specialties and industrials attracted most of the buying. Although utilities were in favor late in the day, Mercantile stores ran up 2¾ to 44¾, New Haven Clock gained 1⅛ to 28⅛, Thew Shovel 3¼ to 59 and American Investing Co. of Illinois 3 to 35. Commonwealth Edison moved up 2⅛ to 136, Electric Power & Light preferred "A" added 3¾ to 69¾ and Electric Bond & Share was up ⅝ at 25⅛. Transactions totaled 895,000 shares compared with 845,000 Tuesday.

Egg Prices Tumble.

New York, Feb 10 (AP).—White egg prices toppled about 2 cents a dozen today. Trade circles said the drop occurred when U. S. Government buying stopped suddenly following support the last two or three weeks. Best white grades sold at 27 to 28 cents a dozen, compared with 29 to 30 cents Saturday.

$104,075,000 Utility Issues Offered Today

The largest public offering of electric and gas utility securities thus far made under the securities and exchange act is announced for today in the form of a new issue of $75,000,000 first and refunding mortgage bonds, 3½ per cent series due 1967, and a new issue of 275,000 shares of no par $5 series cumulative preferred stock, of Northern States Power Co. of Minnesota. The bonds are priced at 101 per cent and the preferred stock at $103.

The offering is being made by a group of 30 investment houses headed by Bancamerica-Blair Corporation and including the following: The First Boston Corporation, Schroder Rockefeller & Co., Inc., Edward B. Smith & Co., H. M. Byllesby & Company Inc., W. C. Langley & Co., A. C. Allyn and Company Inc., Emanuel & Co., Brown Harriman & Co. Inc., Blyth & Co., Inc., Lehman Brothers, Bonbright & Company Inc., Goldman, Sachs & Co., Hayden, Stone & Co., Granbery Safford & Co., Ladenburg, Thalmann & Co., Kidder, Peabody & Co., Lee Higginson Corporation, Harris, Hall & Co., Inc.; Spencer Trask & Co., Glore, Forgan & Co., J. & W. Moseley & Co., Wells-Dickey Co., Minneapolis; Kalman & Co., St. Paul; Stern Brothers & Co., Kansas City; Piper, Jaffray & Hopwood, Minneapolis, and Thrall West Co., Minneapolis.

The first and refunding mortgage bonds, 3½ per cent series due 1967, are to be dated February 1, 1937, and are priced at 101 per cent plus accrued interest. The preferred stock is priced at $103 plus accrued dividend from January 1, 1937.

Net proceeds from these issues will be used, together with other funds of the company, to redeem or pay all of the company's funded debt now outstanding except the issue of St. Paul Gas Light Co. general mortgage gold bonds, 5 per cent, due March 1, 1944.

The new bonds are redeemable as a whole or in part at the option of the company after 30 days' notice at the following prices, plus accrued interest: If redeemed prior to February 1, 1942, 107½ per cent; if redeemed on February 1, 1942, and prior to February 1, 1943, 105 per cent. The premium will be reduced by one-quarter per cent on February 1, 1943, and on the first day of February of each year thereafter, to and including February 1, 1962. No premium will be paid if the bonds are redeemed on or after that date.

The $5 series cumulative preferred stock is redeemable at $110 per share and accrued dividends at the option of the company at any time and from time to time in whole or in part upon at least 30 days' notice.

Foreign Markets.

By the Associated Press.

London, Feb. 10.—The stock market was generally mixed in late dealings, although most issues were in good demand. Copper stocks were strong and the oil section and transatlantic shares sold higher. Home and Argentine rails held steady, while some industrials reacted and finished lower. Gilt-edged securities remained quiet.

Paris.—Coal shares were exceptionally weak and Royal Dutch lost 95 francs from Tuesday's close. Rentes finished with net gains of 105 to 170 centimes and Bank of France sold 160 francs higher. Suez Canal and Canadian Pacific were among the group which declined.

This Insulating Board is

A WALL OF PROTECTION

CERTAIN-TEED provides efficient insulation as well as great structural strength.

Applied to interior walls, CERTAIN-TEED offers these important advantages: Insulates as if beautifies . . . Provides permanent decoration . . . Corrects acoustics . . . Reduces the passage of sound through walls and ceilings . . . And it is easily cleaned. Ordinary insulating materials lose much of their efficiency through the absorption of moisture. This cannot happen with CERTAIN-TEED. Use it inside your house—for new construction and for remodeling.

No Down Payment, 3 Years to Pay on the F. H. A. Plan.
COSTS NOTHING TO FIND OUT
Don't delay. Get the facts. Inquire about our low prices—and save. Old roofs made new by applying CERTAIN-TEED Millerized shingles right over the old roof.

Introducing the Creator of...

Ned Brant

"Bob" Zuppke

OF COURSE, Robert C. ("Bob") Zuppke needs no introducing to American sports fans. The dynamic master of Illinois football teams for many years, he is still a most potential threat wherever his teams play. It was under his coaching that the Galloping Ghost with the purple "77" on his jersey, "Red" Grange, rose to fame as one of the game's most spectacular players.

AND COACH "Bob" Zuppke watches over the careers of Ned Brant and the Carter College athletes as zealously as his own flesh and blood gridiron champions. For it is his desire that NED BRANT be an authentic and sincere portrayal of college athletics and that Ned Brant, himself, become a model of good-sportsmanship, square-shooting and clean living for his many thousands of followers.

Ned Brant

THAT ZUPPKE'S efforts are rewarded is evidenced by the enthusiasm of NED BRANT fans everywhere. And football coaches all over the country have given the feature their whole-hearted approval.

BESIDES THE daily strip that tells the running story of Carter College, once each week, on Sunday, Zuppke diagrams football, basketball and baseball plays, in season, that are followed and studied by young prep school and sandlot athletes from coast to coast.

ZUPPKE MAKES his home in Champaign, Illinois, campus town of the University of Illinois. He spends his summers vacationing in Michigan and, among his other hobbies, is a painter of no mean ability.

Rebels Decree Death of Alas, Noted Educator

Spanish Embassy Advised of Sentence; Groups Seek to Save Him.

Word was received at the Spanish Embassy yesterday that Dr. Leopoldo Alas, president of the University of Oviedo, had been sentenced to death by the rebel junta of Gen. Francisco Franco, commander of the rebel armies in Spain.

He was arraigned, according to the advices by a prosecutor at a "drumhead" court-martial, with these words:

"The most rigorous repression must begin with those who by virtue of their intellectual capacity and culture are responsible for the poisoning of the Spanish conscience and for all the blood that has been shed."

The following is an excerpt from a cablegram received at the embassy here from the Spanish government at Valencia:

"The charges against Dr. Alas are grounded solely on trivial facts which occurred long before the rebellion and are wholly dis connected with the uprising. The crimes charged to him are: his having been Undersecretary of Justice and member of the House of Representatives during the first Republican government, from 1931 to 1933; his having taken part in public gatherings of the Left Republican Party; his having lectured in favor of the establishment of a public and non-sectarian educational system; his having taken part, as a spectator, in an open meeting in which the pardon of Thaelmann (German Communist deputy) was requested, and even his having once stated in a press interview that all professional journalists should be expected to possess a degree of culture superior to the average man. During the trial several of his university colleagues testified favorably to his conduct as president of the university. The whole trial is a juridical monstrosity and a typical example of the persecution of the rebels against intellectuals, professors, and Catholic Loyalists. The University of Paris and other universities in France and Belgium have wired the Burgos Junta asking the commutation of the death sentence."

2 Held in Slaying Of Florida Couple

Fort Pierce, Fla., Feb. 10 (U.P.).—St. Lucie County police tonight held a woman and a colored man in connection with the death of Mr. and Mrs. S. L. Williams, whose buckshot-riddled bodies were found at their home near here.

Authorities refused to reveal the identity of either of the suspects. It was reported, however, that the woman was taken into custody when Williams' missing coupe was discovered at her home.

Mrs. Williams' body was found on the floor of her bedroom by her daughter, Mrs. Alto Adams, wife of a lieutenant colonel of the staff of Gov. Fred P. Cone of Florida. Police found Williams' body shortly afterward in the smoldering remains of a garage in the rear of the house.

23 Bodies Recovered.

Manila, Feb. 10 (AP).—Mangled bodies of 23 persons, killed in the plunge of a passenger bus down a 200-foot mountain precipice, were recovered today by coroner's assistants. The crash occurred near Baguio last night.

Appendix Removed

HANNAH WILLIAMS DEMPSEY, wife of the former heavyweight boxing champion, underwent an emergency operation for appendicitis at Miami Beach, Fla., yesterday. Her condition was reported good.

Wallace Urges Crop Control By Government

U. S. Taxes, I. C. C. Powers Suggested to Regulate Farm Production.

By the United Press.

The American cotton carryover supply is "close to the line" where positive Federal production control should be applied to prevent accumulation of a price-wrecking surplus, Secretary of Agriculture Henry A Wallace said at a press conference yesterday.

He said he believed Congress should pass legislation this session authorizing use of Federal taxing or interstate commerce powers to regulate farm production as part of an "ever-normal granary" program.

The program, indorsed by a conference of national farm leaders Tuesday, would provide for Federal commodity loans to encourage storage of surplus commodities for use when production falls below demand. It calls for benefit payments when desirable for reduction in plantings. Compulsory corp control would be involved only as a last resort when surpluses piled up too high.

Wallace said that cotton and possibly rice are the only commodities of which present surpluses indicate "positive production control might be necessary immediately." The cotton carryover is about 7,000,000 bales.

He emphasized that the new crop control program should involve compulsory acreage reduction, instead of voluntary contracts as under the old AAA. He said he had "no precise idea" as to just how the taxing power might be applied to force compliance.

Wallace declined to say whether he considered the proposed program in conflict with the Supreme Court's decision killing the old AAA. "That is a matter for expert legal opinion," he remarked. He insisted there is no connection between his proposing the new farm program at this time and President Roosevelt's program for judicial reform involving an increase in Supreme Court membership.

Crest of River Past Memphis, Dikes Watched

Lower Mississippi Levees Are Built Higher as Flood Peak Nears.

By the Associated Press.

Memphis, Tenn., Feb. 10.—An anxious but confident watch upon the levees of the lower Mississippi River was redoubled tonight while the crest of the river's greatest flood crept past Memphis and on toward Helena, Vicksburg, and New Orleans.

The river level was stationery here, indicating the peak was at hand. Upstream the gauges fell with increasing rapidity, relieving engineers of all concern for beleaguered Cairo. Down the river, however, the rise was on.

Confident the levees of Arkansas, Mississippi and Louisiana would hold as solidly as have the upstream dykes, engineers nevertheless took no chances. Crews were busy sandbagging possible weak spots and in many places building the levees higher.

Meanwhile, reporting 83,486 refugees in the care of the Red Cross in the Memphis area, George E. Myer, in charge of relief work, estimated $3,000,000 would be needed to help 13,795 families rebuild and refurnish their flood-devastated homes.

Myer said the estimate does not take into consideration others who might be forced to evacuate should further levee trouble develop.

Georgia Protests Sherman Tribute

Atlanta, Ga., Feb. 10 (U.P.).—A resolution introduced in the Georgia House of Representatives today objected strenuously to a new postal stamp issue in honor of Gen. William T. Sherman, who marched from Atlanta to the sea.

The resolution insisted the stamps should bear the inscription: "Gen. William T. Sherman who marched through to the seas, pillaging, plundering and burning the homes and property of Georgians, starving the innocent and helpless and devastating the section to such an extent that it has never recovered."

Burton Holmes

"IN NEW AND OLD JAPAN." Last of five travel talks by Burton Holmes, illustrated with still and motion pictures, with slide coloring by Mildred Petrie and Grace Nichols. At the Roosevelt High School. Reviewed Wednesday evening by W. O. Whitney.

Nippon—the land of Fujiyama and of flowers! On such a topic, with knowledge gained from ten trips spread over 45 years, last evening Burton Holmes drew to a regretted conclusion his 1937 series of travel lectures.

For the fifth talk, easily the most nepenthean in sheer beauty and fantasy, Mr. Holmes was introduced by Katsuo Okazaki, second secretary of the Japanese Embassy, who briefly spoke on his native land.

Particularly marked this season has been the extreme informality of Mr. Holmes, and in this survey of the Japan of today as contrasted with the Flowery Kingdom of his earlier visits, the characteristic was singularly notable.

With his collection of still and motion pictures—with the black and white of the latter vying in expressive eloquence with the exquisite tinting of the former—with his chatty remarks implying more of the lure, the romance and the beauty of the country than would be manifest by dictionary definitions, Mr. Holmes was at his best.

Holmes in Command of His Topic.

Even if one could spell the names of the charming places visited, though all too briefly, and detail the many glimpses of exotic natural and artificial splendor, it would be unnecessary, for Mr. Holmes and his thorough knowledge—and ability to expound thereon—would be sufficient for a complete narrative.

One might casually mention the calls at Yokohama, Tokyo and Nikko; the views of cormorant fishing, the Three Monkeys of Nikko, the gigantic portrait statues (not idols) of Gautama Buddha, and imposing temples; the comments on the religions, social habits, athletic and theatrical pastimes, and the agriculture (rice) and industry (silk) of the country.

But towering, in fact, fiction and memory, over all is the majestic grandeur of Fujiyama, in which is embodied everything so inseparably associated with Japan. And with the memory of Fujiyama raising its snow-capped peak in the crepuscular light, Mr. Holmes brought to a close the season, which is to be numbered among his finest.

National Flood Aid Fund Hits $19,383,000

$5,000 Given by Nevada Legislature; Soviets Donate $150.

The American Red Cross reached a total of $19,383,000 yesterday in its Nation-wide drive for funds for the relief of flood sufferers in the stricken Ohio and Mississippi river valleys.

A contribution of $5,000 to the fund was voted by the State Legislature of Nevada, according to a telegram received by Admiral Cary T. Grayson from the Nevada State controller, Henry C. Schmidt.

Panama and the Canal Zone reported contributions of $10,000 to the Red Cross Chapter there. President Juan Demostenes Arosemena, of Panama, contributed $100 and the press of Panama aided in raising the funds.

Meanwhile, it was announced yesterday that Mlle. Rachelle Carley, headliner at the Earle Theater, had decided to stay over to sing at the flood relief benefit to be given by the French colony of Washington at St. Paul's at 1413 V street northwest tonight.

At the C. F. Droop & Sons Co. a large papier-mache dog has stood vigil for more than a week, with an appeal for flood sufferers around his neck and a Red Cross flag fastened in his golden collar.

Martin Services To Be Tomorrow

Funeral services for Commander Leon Martin, Dental Corps, United States Navy, will be held in Fort Myer Chapel at 11 a. m. tomorrow. Commander Martin died in Miami, Fla., February 8. His wife, Mrs. Beatrice M. N. Martin, of Philadelphia, survives.

He was born in Philadelphia in 1881 and appointed to the Naval Dental Corps in 1913. During the World War he was on duty at the Naval Academy and was stationed at the Naval Medical School here from 1927 to 1930. He retired from active duty two years ago.

Funeral services will be conducted by Lieut. Comdr. Joseph H. Brooks, Chaplain Corps, United States Navy. Burial will be in Arlington National Cemetery with full military honors. Honorary pallbearers will be Commanders H. E. Harvey, Dental Corps; J. A. Hamoney, Dental Corps; R. Barber, Dental Corps; J. V. McAlpin, Dental Corps; E. K. Patton, Dental Corps, and L. C. Frost, Dental Corps.

The Woodrings Receive Congratulations on Son

An addition to the family of Secretary of War and Mrs. Harry H. Woodring arrived in a local hospital at 6 p. m. yesterday as Mrs. Woodring gave birth to a 6½-pound boy. The youngster was named Cooper Coolidge Woodring.
